AND WAS ACCEPTED IN AN HOUR.

Herald tells the following anecdote of Prof. Foster, who filled with much ability one of the chairs of the Faculty of the college in Knoxville, Tenn.:

Prof. Foster was well educated in the sciences usually taught in college, but his ignorance of the common affairs of life rendered him a remarkable man, furnishing a rare subject for the study of human nature in one of its multiform phases. Being advised by some of his friends to get married, he, with childlike faith and simplicity, accepted their advice, and promised to do so if he could find a young lady will-ing to have him. They referred him to a number of the best young ladies in the city, any one of whom, they had no doubt, would be willing to accept his hand and make him happy. He was one of the most kind hearted of men, as void of guile as of offence, and an entire stranger to the forms and caremonies of modern courtship. He couldn't see the necessity of consuming a year or two in popping the question—"Sal-ly, will you have me?" So he went that UARDWARE, very day to the residence of the nearest young lady who had been commended, and being welcomed and seated in the family circle, as he always was wherever known, he at once made known the object of his visit by saying in a clear and distinct voice. "Well, Miss Sarah, my friends have advised me to get married, and they recommend you and a number of other young ladies to me as suitable persons, and I have now called to see if you are willing to marry me."

Had an earthquake violently shaken the premises, the household could not have been more astonished. Like a frightened roe. Sarah started to run, when her mother caught her, and said :

"Why, child, don't be frightened, the Professor won't hurt you.'

Being again seated, a deep blush suc-ceeded the paleness which had been caused by the startling announcement, and she rallied enough to be able to say to the Professor that as his proposition was entirely unexpected, she must have some time to consider the matter. This he granted, but said :

"As I am anxious, in case of your refusal, to see the other young ladies to-day, I can wait only one hour for your abswer.

Knowing the worthiness, sincerity and simplicity of the Professor, the matron took her blushing daughter up stairs for consultation, while the father was left to entertain his proposed son-in-law as best he could under the novel circumstances. Of course the discussion of the sudden proposition between Sarah and her mother was private and cannot be given in full. The most essential points of it, however, were told afterward. It was readily admitted that he was entirely worthy of Sarah's hand and heart.

"But, mamma," said Sarah, "how would it look to other people for me to have to give an answer in one short hour-only sixty minutes-jomp at a hasty chanceand to think how my young friends would jeer and langh at me. Wouldn't they tease me to death? No, ma, I can never face that music.

"But stop, my child, and listen to me. There is not a young lady in the city that would not jump at the offer made you. Let them laugh. Girls must have some-

A correspondent of the Indianapolis The clerk persuaded him to try to make out for a few days with some fifteen or twenty pounds. Sarah and the clerk were not the only ones who laughed over the inident. He never called for three or four ushels afterward. If the Professor and his wife are still living they must be well stricken in years, and if they see this brief sketch of their early lives, and find any errors in it, they

A Woman at the Wood-Pile. NEW DISCOVERY

HOW HEAVEN'S FIRST, BEST GIFT TO MAN SAWS WOOD.

The Danbury News says : "Did you ever see a woman undertake to saw wood ? It is always a little while before dinner, when the pies won't bake, and the potatoes absolutely refuse to come to the boiling point, and the only stick of wood is exactly three inches too long. After vain attempts to prove the elasticity of matter by putting a two-foot three-inch stick into a two-foot U. stove, she goes out to the saw horse, puts her knee on the refractory stick the way she has seen the men do. But the edges C D of the wood are sharp, and she takes it CISTS. down with an ejaculation, and with a growing disregard for appearance, put her foot on it instead. Her hair never fails to come down at this juncture, and she has to stop and twist it into a tight knot behind before beginning to saw. Here the saw com-thing to laugh at, but it won't hurt you. Tell him yes, emphatically. If he were a stranger whose antecedents were unknown to us, however prepossessing in person and manners, or profuse in his professions of love, I would withhold my consent. But we have long known him, his moral character is without reproach, he is amiable, kind-hearted, and sincere, a fine scholar, with an honorable position in the college, and he makes no false pretences. You know just what he is. What more do you want ?'

"But, mamma, I don't know that he loves me, he hasn't even said so.

"O, well, daughter never mind that. Generally, those who are the loudest in their professions of love have least of the pure article. You can teach him by example to love you. It is far better than precept.'

Leaning her head upon her mother's bosom, Sarah said, in a submissive tone :

"Well, ma, just as you say-I'll tell him yes ; but, although the hour isn't half out, we'll not go down until the last minste of the hour.'

At the expiration of the fifty-ninth minnte, they returned to the Professor and papa, Sarah still blushing, but more calm than before. Then, with a firmness that astonished herself as well as her parents,

"Yes, sir, if papa consents."

He gave his consent without hesitancy, and it was readily agreed by all that the wedding should take place a week from that time. Then Professor Foster, with his usual calmness, conscious of having done his duty, withdrew to report progress to his friends

Well, in due time the Professor went to the clerk for the license. The clerk informed him that the law required a bond and security in the sum of $1,250, to be woid on condition that there was no legal objection to the proposed union of the two persons named. The Professor very promptly replied : "Ob, never mind the bond, Mr. Clerk; I will pay $1,000 down and will hand you the balance in a day or -After further explanation by the clerk, the Professor soon complied with the law and obtained his license.

At the appointed time the wedding came off in the best style of the city, and the company enjoyed the occasion with the greatest zest. The hours flew like humming birds. As the clock struck 12 the Professor picked up his hat and started for his boarding house. His principal attendant, surmising his intention followed to the front door, and informed him that matrimonial etiquette required him to stay and board and lorge at the house of his futlierin-law until he and his wife wished to live by themselves; that he would be furnished with a room adjacent to Sarah's room, in order that, if she happened to get thirsty, he might be near to get her a drink of fresh water.

In the morning the bride and groom were greeted with the smiles of the family, together with those of some early callers. and inquiries were made if they had slept well. Both responded that they had never slept sounder in their lives, he adding, with his childlike simplicity, that he was happy to say Sarah did not call for water during the whole night. That last remark was quite a riddle to her, and she looked curious, but said nothing, no one venturing to ask him to rise and explain. Just at dusk he observed the cat drag about twelve inches of old stovepipe out from under a bush and crawl into it. Then the cat inserted its legs through four holes that had been punched in the iron, and with its head projecting through the end, and its body clad in armor, it winked at Chubb, and rambled off to attend the massmeeting. Chubb says now that he wouldn't take a hundred dollars for that cat ; but if we do not tunnel under Chubb's yard some night and blow his tomcat into eternity with a submarine torpedo, it will be very singular. THE FAMILY HAMMER .- There is one thing no family pretends to do without. That is a hammer. And yet there is nothing that goes to make up the equipment of a domestic establishment that causes one-half as much agony and profanity as a hammer. It is always an old hammer, with a handle that is inclined to sliver, and always bound to slip. The face is as round as a full moon, and as smooth as glass. When it strikes a nail full and square, which it has been known to do, the act will be found to result from a combination of pure accidents. The family hammer is one of those rare articles we never profit by. When it glides off a nail head and mashes down a couple of fingers, we unhesitatingly deposit it in the yard, and observe that we will never use it again. But the blood has hardly dried on the rag before we are out of doors in search of that hammer, and ready to make another trial. The result rarely varies, but we never profit by it. The awful weapon goes on knocking off our nails, and mashing whole joints, and slipping off the handle to the confusion of mantle ornaments, and breaking the commandments, and cutting up an assortment of astounding and unfortunate autics, without let or hindrance. And yet we put up with it, and put the handle on again, and lay it away where it won't get lost, and do up our mutilated and smarting fingers, and yet if the outrageous thing should happen to get lost, we kick up a
