THE GOBLIN CAT.

A BALLAD-BY "PETER BELL,"

"Come hither, hither, little boy, A sixpence bright this is;

I'll give it all to thee if thou Wilt drown these little kittens." Quoth thus the good old housewife she,

And thus the boy quoth he: "Lady, I'll drown them willingly,

If mine the bit may be." Then in a bag she thrust each kit, And tied it with a tow string; And sped the boy with bag and bit Like arrow from a bow-string.

He stood upon the riverside, That boy with sunny brow; "Mere, mere," the little kittens criedtie, mocking, cried, "me-ow,"

Then, purring, rubbed against his fact The poor old pussic-mother, As if to say, "Sweet lad, nay, nay!

O, spare them! I've none other." No pity had that little lad, He did not case a feather;

But in the sack he thrust the cat,

And drowned them all together, Then felt that little boy that he Had done a dreadful deed; And so he turned with a brow that burned

And fled with all his speed-In a tempting candy-shop, To buy both this and that: But for his bit he maught could get

Except a candy-cat. He put it in his pocket deen,

And to the good-wife ran; "Oh, what's the matter-why dost weep, My boy-my little mann'

"Oh, lady, lady, I have done An awful deed, I see, These little innocents to drown Who ne'er did harm to me !"

Then from his pocket swelled a shriek, A ghastly, hourse "meons." And fear did blanch his ruddy cheek, And pale that lady's brow;

As forth out sprung a goldlu grim, A ent with woful wail. Six spectral kittens from her mouth, Suspended by the tail.

Then turned and fied that wife with dread, The boy, he followed after : While fierce pursued that goblin brood

With shricks of feline laughter. From morn till night they kept their flight; From morn till night fied they;

And if old beldame's tales be true, They run unto this day. Nor ever shall they fluid a rest,

Nor tarry in their flight-So suffer those who in the woes Of eats and dogs delight.

HIS WIFE'S FRIENDS.

That Danbury News man has much to answer for. The Peoria Review is the last of the papers to flourish as an imitator of him, and here is a specimen of its work : Squire Blinks, a retired old gentleman, lives away down on Seventh street. The other morning three old ladies, from Macon county, came to his house on a visit. They used to know his wife before she was married. The Squire welcomed them to his mansion, and then went out to his barn and swore for half an hour. While he was soothing himself thus, his wife called him into the house. She handed him an umbrella to keep off the sun, and said the ladies had walked up from the depot and left some things there for him to bring up. So he brought them up, making two trips for the baskets, bandboxes, and two black oil-cloth travelingbags, all of which the Squire discourteously called "informal old traps."

As he sat in the back kitchen wiping his brow, his wife brought out the market basket, and said there was not a bit of sugar or tea in the house, and she remarked that while he was going down town be might as well get the molasses ing filled. The Squire asked her how long those old migratory pelicans were going to stay. And she asked him if he thought she would be so rude as to ask them. Then the Squire went down, and laid in the groceries. When he got back, his wife said she had forgotten something, and thought of it just when it was too late. She must have some corn-starch.

The Squire asked her if any of the old rearcerows had drepped the least hint as to the duration of their visit. She said not. The Squire looked sad and discontented. When he laid the paper of corn stanch on the kitchen table, his wife said they must have a codfish for dinner. One of the ladies said, in the course of convercation, that she was fond of cod fish. The Squire asked if the old buzzards had yet MONUMENTS, HEAD and TOMB committed themselves on the extent of NETSLARS, MANTELS, &c., manutheir present roost. She said he ought to be askamed of himself. When he had clapped the codish down on the table with a whang, his wife got him to bring in some water and wood. Mrs. Spoonanger said she never dined without ale, and the Squire was asked if he would go down and being up a bottle. He asked if he should go into the parlor and get those old. cormorants to make out a list of what they did like, and furthermore asked if they were yet silent as to when they thought they would go away. He got the ale, and ly exe tel. [Jshustown Nov. II. 71.-tf.] for fear he would have to trot down town again, he hired an express wagon, and C loaded it with all sorts of garden truck, a MONONGARELA & OLD RYE WHISKY bettle of whisky, a box of sardines, a pound of snuff, some cave oysters, dried toboaco, pickled walnuts, canned corn, maekerel, split peas, etc. The next day Foreign Wines, Gins, Brandies, &c., the Squire was sent down town only eight times. Early the next morning he started out into the country to see a man. When he got home he asked his wife if any time had been set for the departure. On the evening of the following Monday, one of the ladies said should be the residence of John Buck's store. Night the ladies said should be the residence of John Buck. Esq. [April 4.187]. the ladies said she thought she ought to start on next Friday, so as to reach home AW AND COLLECTION OFFICE before Sunday. Mrs. Binks said they TIERNEY & NULL, ought not to be in a harry. The Squire ground, and said they ought to make their visit out. On Friday morning the Squire all parts of the United States.
