M., on Saturday last. The barn contained all his grain, hay, and farming tools, all of which were lost. The fire was evidently the work of an incendiary, as the fiend was tracked to and from the premises. Mr. Decker estimates his loss at about $2,500. So says the Journal.

-The Huntingdon Journal tells this story : A couple of hands on a wood train, a few days ago, prepared their dinner upon a chopping. Among other luxuries they made themselves a cup of coffee. However, while drinking their coffee, they thought it had a queer taste, and immediately after they were seized with violent vomiting. They determined to examine their teapot, and in the bottom of it they found a copperhead snake. How the ser pent got there has not been told.

-Some time ago, Mr. John W. The horses made a sudden start and Mr. L. was thrown backwards to the ground with great violence, sustaining injuries to the spine from which he died last week. His remains were interred at the Hoffman church, in Somerset county, on last Friday, in the presence of a very large concourse of people.

Who Can Beat It?-The Somerset Herdd says: On Friday, Oct. 10th, Mr. Holmes, head sawyer at Reed & Meyer's steam saw mill, on Shaffer's run, in Allegheny township, did some of the biggest sawing we have and forty-five minutes. Fourte n ever heard of being done by one circular saw

Several other parties met them, made the bet, and put up $20 as a forfeit, intending to close the bet on Thursday evening preceding the sawing. John C. Gaither, of Southampton Mills, was chosen to keep the time and measure the

Thursday evening, the 9th, came, and all was in readiness at the mill to either lose or win the contest of the next day; but the parties who had put up the $20 forfeit allowed it to be lost without even putting in an appearance. The logs were all white pine, 16 feet long, and from 16 inches to two feet in diameter at the small end.

Everything being in order on Friday mornbefore 7 o'clock, A. M. At twenty-five min-utes past 11 A. M. one of the logs that had been put upon the carriage and degged fast, came loose and rolled just as the saw was entering it, tearing out thirty-one of the thirty-two teeth in the saw and stopping the whole proceeding.

In the forenoon sawing, up to the time of the accident, Mr. Holmes used twelve and a half minutes to point up his saw and take out an iron roller at or near the saw, which reduced the actual time of sawing to four hours and twenty-four and a half minutes. In that time he cut 19,200 feet of one inch plank, measured by tape line. There were but three plank spoiled out of the whole amount of lumber, and they were not measured. The lumber was all well sawed and would pass as first class lumber as far as the sawing.

Fortunately there was no one injured by the flying teeth, although there were a good many spectators in the mill at the time. One tooth stuck in one of the timbers overhead and another flew out of the mill on to the log scaffold. The most of them flew down into the pit. The saw was a 58 inch Emerson Patent, inserted tooth.

At the rate they were sawing, if nothing had happened, over 40,000 feet would have been the day's work, instead of 25,000.

This, however, is simply a denial of what we had said, towit: that the effect of the provise was to qualify the section so that no other than the Judge of Cambria county could fill the office. doubt-aye, indeed, we could swear-that | The question is one of interpretation merely, and we adhere to our former opinion, notwithstang the able and earnest argument of the counsel of Mr. Petts. The whole law evinces that it was not the intention of the Legislature to create a new Court, wholly independent of the judicial organization already existing in the county of Cambria. The purpose, though a very mistaken one, was to add to the existing judicial organizareader, once more we implore, and after | tion another for a portion of the county, composed of the same Judges and officers, which should occupy a subordinate position.

The first six sections establish the Court, define its powers, but nowhere fix the number of Judges, declare their grade or provide for an election at any time or place. The seventh is the first section to declare the organization of the Court and determine who and how many Judges there shall be, and it declares they shall be the President and Associates of the Courts of Cambria county. The fact that this declaration is put in the form of a proviso is not any less declaring of the legislative intent, and intent in the provisions making the Prothonotary of the Common Pleas the Clerk of the District Court, and requiring it to be attended by the District Attorney and Sheriff. Additional evidence of the parasitical type of the Court is that the provision of its judgment shall not be liens on real estate until transferred ful Indian Summer! thou favorite child of | to the Common Pleas-that no real estate shall be sold under its executors, and that but one general lien and extension docket shall be kept as provided by law, to-wit: that of the Common Pleas. All these provisions are heightened in their effect by the entire absence of any other provision for election by organization or otherwise.

The respondent sets forth an election as Judge of the District Court at the general securing those life-like photographs of election of the year 1871 as his title to the themselves, their families or their friends, office. But it is very evident there was no at Spence's famed Photograph Callery in authority for this, if our interpretation of the act be true-that the proviso so qualified the enactment that none but the Judges provided in it can hold the offices. Though the proviso may not be effectuated because of its inconstitutionality, it cannot be stricken out in giving the interpretation to the section. The section speaks as authority in its purpose, and not in part which may be severed without violence to the legislative purpose, whereas here the parts are so dependant that one cannot take effect without the other, so as to carry out the legislative intent. We cannot legislate by way of substi-The answer of the respondent is objectionable as being argumentative to a degree. But the facts set forth in it are covered by the demurrer of the Commonwealth, and can be readily separated from the argumentative portions. As these facts do not constitute a sufficient title to the office of President Judge of the District Court of Cambria county, we must give judgment against the defendant.

And now to-wit, October 20, 1873, this case having been duly heard and considered by the Court, it is ordered that judgment of ouster be rendered for the Commonwealth, and against the defendant, and it is hereby ordered and adjudged that James Potts, the | and Society, Culture and Progress, Nature defendant, unlawfully holds and exercises the office of President Judge of the District Court of Cambria county, and he is hereby excluded and ousted therefrom. He believes, as we believe, that no family should do without a sewing machine, and thus believing he offers, on the most liberal terms, a machine that never has and never will fail to give entire satisfaction in every instance, and if the parties whom he solicits do not see fit to purchase that is the end of the transaction. He deals fairly and squarely, and descrives to be dealt with in like manner. Let him be encouraged.

Edward King's carefully and profusely illustrated paper on Old and New Louisiana, in the Great South Series, is remarkable for its calm and dispassionate statement of the actual state of affairs in New Orleans and Louisiana generally. Two American serial stories are begun: Catherine Earle, by Adeline Trafton (author of "The American Girl Abroad") to run through the year, and the other, "Earthen Pitchers," by Rebecca Harding Davis, which will be concluded within three or four numbers. Mr. Froude's historical sketch of an "English Abbey" is also here begun; and in Stedman's series on the "Victorian Poets' there is an admirable paper on the "Most Inspired of Women," Elizabeth Barrett Browning. In the same num-ber appears a biographical sketch of Stedman, by A. R. MacDonough, with portrait, in the series of Younger American Authors. Professor Newcomb gives an interesting account of the making of the new great telescope at Washington; there is an illustrated story by Edward King, "Only Haif a Woman"; a story by Louise Chandler Moulton, "For Pastime"; and verse by George Mac-Donald, Celia Thaxter, H.
