THE Herald brings out an interesting The duty of the Democracy is, then, ington correspondent of the Cleveland circumstance connected with the appointment of Chief Justice Waite. It seems that he was first nominated by S. L. M. Barlow, of this city, some six months ago, and that in appointing him President Grant has followed Mr. Barlow's advice. There is nothing wrong in this; and indeed it right be well for General Grant and for the country if he would oftener draw counsel from the same source; but the fact tends to strengthen belief that in 1864 Mr. Waite voted for McClellan. We dare say such was the case. We suppose that it is indisputable that not long before that election he was in full sympathy with a most estimable class of men then known as Copperheads, who, while they believed in maintaining the integrity of the country, strongly disapproved of many measures which Mr. Lincoln, Mr. Seward and Mr. Stanton were then putting in force. These measures were freely denounced at the time by such men as Mr. Barlow, Judge Thurman, the present Senator from Onio, Judge Black, of Pennsylvania, and Gov. Seymour, of New York; and unless we are greatly mistaken Mr. Waite at that time shared their views, and was perhaps even more extreme in his feelings than some of them. This makes it all the more remarkable that he should have been appointed Chief Justice on the suggestion of Mr. Barlow, and that Mr. Thurman should have been the principal advocate of his confirmation in the Senate. - N.
