A Fortune Made by a Waistcoat.

Some people have a fancy for fine waistcoats. This taste was more common in my young days than it is now. Stirring public events were apt to be celebrated by patterns on waistcoats to meet the popular fancy. I remember that the capture of Mauritius, at the close of 1810, was followed by the fashion of wearing waistcoats speckled over with small figures shaped like that island, and called Isle of France Waistcoats. It was a galling thing for French prisoners of war on parole to be confronted with these demonstrations. At court, highly ornamented waistcoats have been the fashion for generations. George, Prince of Wales, while Regent, was noted for his affection for this rich variety of waistcoats, and thereby hangs a tale. His Royal Highness had an immense desire for a waistcoat of a particular kind, for which he could discover only a piece of stuff insufficient in dimensions. It was a French material, and could not be matched in England. The war was raging, and to procure the requisite quantity of stuff from Paris was declared to be impracticable. At this juncture one of the Prince's attendants interposed. He said he knew a Frenchman, M. Bazalgette, carrying on business in one of the obscure streets of London, who, he was certain would undertake to proceed to Paris and bring away what was wanted. This obliging tailor was forthwith commissioned to do his best to procure the requisite material. Finding that a chance had occurred for distinguishing himself and laying the foundation of his fortune, the Frenchman resolved to make the attempt. It was a hazardous affair, for there was no regular communication with the coast of France, unless for letters under a cartel. Yet, Bazalgette was not daunted. If he could only land safely in a boat, all would be right. This, with some difficulty and manœuvring, he effected. As a pretended refugee back to his own country, he was allowed to land and proceed to Paris. Joyfully he was able to procure the quantity of material required for the Prince Regent's waistcoat; and not less joyfully did he manage to return to London with the precious piece of stuff wrapped around his person. The waistcoat was made and so was the tailor's fortune and that of his family.

Saving and Having.

Either a man must be content with poverty all his life, or else be willing to deny himself some luxuries, and save, to lay the base of independence in the future. But if a man defies the future, and spends all that he earns, (whether his earnings be one dollar or ten dollars every day), let him look for lean and hungry want at some future time—for it will surely come, no matter what he thinks.

To save is absolutely the only way to get a solid fortune; there is no other certain mode. Those who shuts their eyes and ears to these plain facts will be forever poor, and for their obstinate rejection of the truth, mayhap will die in rags and filth. Let them so die and thank themselves. But, no! They take a sort of recompense in envying fortune. Great waste of breath! They might as well curse mountains and eternal hills. For I can tell them fortune does not give away her real and substantial goods. She sells them to the highest bidder, to the hardest wisest worker for the boon. Men never make so fatal a mistake as when they think they are mere creatures of fate; 'tis the sheerest folly in the world. Every man may make or mar his life, whichever he may choose. Fortune is for those who, by diligence, honesty, frugality, place themselves in position to grasp hold of fortune when it appears in view. The best evidence of frugality is the five hundred dollars or more standing in your name at the savings bank. The best evidence of honesty is both diligence and frugality.

Brigandage.

Italy is still haunted by brigands. In the southern provinces, several large bands exist. One of them, which has a chief bearing the monkish name of Cappucino, is carrying on business in the neighborhood of Molitarno, and in conjunction with three of his followers succeeded in capturing a rich landed proprietor recently, after burning his houses and brutally murdering his entire family. These savages seem to defy all attempts at capture, and commit terrible atrocities. And yet there is a mawkish sentimentality about carrying out the sentence when the crime of murder and cruelty is brought home to those wretches, and no matter how deeply the hands of the culprit may be dyed in blood every effort is made to obtain the sovereign clemency. It was almost with a thrill of horror that the newspapers related the carrying out of the last sentence in the persons of two brigands belonging to the noted band of Eligio Fiorlo. One of these had been found guilty of having committed thirty-nine murders, and the second, a youth scarce twenty-one years of age, an almost equal number. At the trial of the lord seventeen were condemned to death, but had their sentences commuted to imprisonment for life, because they had voluntarily given themselves up to the authorities. Among those who received the royal clemency was the chief, Florio, one of the most sanguinary wretches that has ever borne the name of brigand.

A Feat of Memory.

The Scotsman says: "On the occasion of Professor Fawcett's speech at Brighton the other day, the report of which occupied more than two columns of the Scotsman, a curious instance was afforded of memory such as is not often equalled. A gentleman who went down to Brighton to report the speech for fourteen newspapers, called upon the Professor some time before its delivery, and, explaining the nature of his business, requested the favor of a statement of the principal points of his speech. Professor Fawcett very courteously proposed not only to give him the substance of his speech, but to rehearse the whole of it for him. This he did, and the reporter took it down. Later on while the speech proper was being delivered, the original copy made at the rehearsal was checked over, word for word and from beginning to end. So perfectly had the speech been committed to memory, there was not one single mistake, except in one place a word was substituted for its equivalent in the notes."

(DAILY and WEEKLY.)

The Weekly Established 1804
The Daily Established 1843

THE WEEKLY POST has no superior as a Family, Political and Literary Journal, and should find a place in every Democratic family in Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio, and West Virginia. It is among the great weekly journals of the country each issue containing fifty-six columns of carefully selected and edited matter, suited to the family circle, embracing Political Editorials, General Editorials on all leading topics; Literary selections as well as original efforts both in Prose and Poetry; Bank and Art Reviews.

Without a Rival

The Latest LIVE STOCK MARKETS

and the general Grain and Produce Markets of all the trade centres of the country, and Foreign Markets, General News and Select Miscellany.

THE GREAT POLITICAL REVOLUTION

of 1874 will work an entire change in the political management of the country, and it is highly important that Democratic ideas and Democratic arguments and principles should be spread before the people. This can be done in no better manner than by extending the already large circulation of

THE PITTSBURGH WEEKLY POST

In the future as in the past, THE POST will be the most vigilant advocate of the pure and undefiled principles of Democracy, as handed down to us by the forefathers of our government and will always be found advocating

HONESTY, ECONOMY and REFORM

in the administration of government. While THE POST will be the firm and unflinching advocate of Democracy, it will uphold no man in its ranks who does not perform honesty in all official stations and public places. This paper will reserve to itself the right to maintain its

DEMOCRACY and INDEPENDENCE IN ALL THINGS, and on all subjects; looking only to the best interests of the whole country and all classes of the community.

Owing to the recent changes in the United States Postal Laws,

after the 1st of January, 1875, all newspaper postage must be paid by the publishers, so that it will be necessary to add the postage to the subscription, to all subscribers residing outside of Allegheny Co. Those residing in the county are required to pay no postage. Subscribers will see that this does not increase the price of their papers, as they only remit us to us the postage they are compelled to pay to their local postmasters.

The DAILY POST,

which occupies the position of being the only Democratic Daily Paper in Western Pennsylvania and longest established Democratic Daily in the State, will contain all the latest news and markets down to 8 o'clock A. M. of each morning, and will be furnished to all mail subscribers at $10.00 per year, postage paid by the proprietors.

THE SUN.

WEEKLY and DAILY for 1875.

The approach of the Presidential election gives unusual importance to the events and developments of 1875. We shall endeavor to describe them fully, faithfully, and fearlessly.

THE WEEKLY SUN has now attained a circulation of over seventy thousand copies. Its readers are found in every State and Territory, and its quality is well known to the public. We shall not only endeavor to keep it fully up to the old standard, but to improve and add to its variety and interest.

THE WEEKLY SUN will continue to be a thorough newspaper. All the news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment, and always, we trust, treated in a clear, interesting and instructive manner.

It is our aim to make the WEEKLY SUN the best family newspaper in the world. It will be full of entertaining and appropriate reading of every sort, but will print nothing to offend the most scrupulous and delicate reader. It will always contain the most interesting stories and romances of the day, carefully selected and legibly printed.

The Agricultural Department is a prominent feature in the WEEKLY SUN, and its articles will always be found fresh and useful to the farmer.

The number of men independent in politics is acreasing, and the WEEKLY SUN is their paper especially. It belongs to no party, and obeys no dictation, contending for principle and for the election of the best men. It exposes the corruption that disgraces the country, and threatens the overthrow of republican institutions. It has no fear of knaves and seeks no favors from their supporters.

The markets of every kind and the fashions are regularly reported in its columns.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN is one dollar a year, which is cheap for eight large, and forty-six columns. As this barely pays the expenses of paper and printing, we are not able to make any discount or allow any premium to friends who may make special efforts to extend its circulation. Under the new law, which requires payment of postage in advance, one dollar a year, with twenty cents the cost of prepaid postage added, is the rate of subscription necessary to get the WEEKLY SUN, in order to have the WEEKLY SUN at this rate. Anyone who sends one dollar and twenty cents will get the paper, post-paid, for a year.

We have no traveling agents.

The Weekly Sun, Eight pages, fifty-six columns. Only $1.20 a year, postage prepaid. No discounts from this rate.

The Daily Sun.—A large four-page newspaper of twenty-eight columns. Daily circulation over 20,000. All the news for 2 cents. Subscription, postage prepaid, 65c a month, or $7.80 a year. To clubs of 10 or over, a discount of 10 per cent.

Address, "THE SUN," NEW YORK CITY.

The New York WORLD

THE DEMOCRATIC PAPER OF NEW YORK.

THE CHEAPEST AND BEST

POSTAGE PREPAID BY US.

The Weekly World, One Year - $1.00

An extra copy to getter-up of club of ten.

The Semi-Weekly to getter-up of club of twenty.

The Daily to getter-up of club of fifty.

As the news of the past seven days is given in the weekly edition of THE WORLD (Wednesday's) very condensed, in addition to the news, many special features are prepared expressly for it. The Grange department gives each week the latest news of the order and of the Patrons. The agricultural department presents the latest experiments and experiences of practical culturists, full reports of the Farmers' Club of the American Institute, letters from practical farmers, and interesting discussions of profitable farming. The page for the family circle combines interest and amusement for the fireside during the long winter evenings. Full and trustworthy live stock, country produce, and general produce market reports show the state of trade.

The Semi-Weekly World, 1 Yr., $2.00

An extra copy to getter-up of club of ten.

The Daily to getter-up of club of twenty-five.

The Semi-Weekly contains (Tuesdays and Fridays) all the contents of the Weekly, one or two first-rate Novels during the year, and all the cream of the Daily World.

"THE WORLD" AND ITS WORK.

[Binghamton Leader.]

Those of our Democratic friends who desire to subscribe for a New York paper will find none that equals The World in ability, or that so fearlessly and clearly advocates Democratic principles. In the news from all parts of the world, it is complete, and its editorials on all subjects are vigorous and logical. To the farmer it is invaluable: teaches him many things that tend to promote his best interests which he sorely needs his eyes open to. The World is now doing a great work in behalf of the Democratic party, and should be fully sustained.

A THOROUGH NEWSPAPER.

[Manchester Union.]

The World, in point of ability, enterprise, and influence, stands at the head of the Democratic press in this country.

Address, "THE WORLD,"

A LITTLE CONFAB
—ABOUT THE—
Singer Sewing Machine
And Where to Buy It.

COUNTRYMAN—See here, neighbor, can you tell me where I can buy the sewing machine people talk so much about?

CITIZEN OF EBENSBURG—Yes, with pleasure. I presume it is the Singer Sewing Machine that you mean.

C.—Yes, that's the name of it.

C. OF E.—Well, just down there, two doors east of Zahm's store, is the place, and my word for it you will be well pleased with your purchase if you invest in one of those machines. Messrs. BAILEY & TATE, the agents, have now on hand all styles and sizes of these indispensable machines, from the cheapest to the most valuable, and are accommodating gentlemen who will be pleased to show you the ins and outs of their various machines, whether you desire to buy or not. They also keep thread, needles and all the other paraphernalia of a sewing machine, and are at all times prepared to attend to the repairing of machines in a substantial and satisfactory manner, and at very moderate rates. Don't forget the place—High street, two doors east of Zahm's store, Ebensburg [4-24.-tf.]

A ROMANTIC THIEF.

The facts of a long-continued system of robbery by a confidential employe have just been brought to light in Paris. A certain Teschemacher, German by birth, has long enjoyed the entire confidence of a great Anglo-French firm, Messrs Poisset, of Bradford and Paris. Though but twenty-eight years old, and boyish of appearance, Teschemacher occupied the position of chief cashier, and was even trusted with authority to sign for the firm. Just before the war in a public place, he made the acquaintance of one Marguerite Chauvin, a young person of some attractions, and of superior education. Led for her sake into large expenses, he began to gamble on the Turf, with such luck as to win nearly £4,000 in a very short time. Thereupon he bought two ponies, a basket carriage, and other knickknacks of this sort, and hired a charming little house in the Avenue Bourdon, a neighborhood very retired. There he set up a staff of servants, passing under the name of Baron Alphonse. Speaking English excellently, he was supposed in the Avenue Bourdon to be a wealthy and eccentric milord, whose ruinous expenses were a subject of gossip. Going out early in clothes of the latest fashion, he passed the day at his desk in a coat almost too ancient for respectability, dined for a franc and a half, and returned home late, fashionably clad as he had set out. His bachelor chamber, modest beyond what his position authorized, was known to all in the office at 81 Boulevard Magenta. But fortune changed. Cards and horses turned against the cashier. He began to falsify his books. But for three years the double life was led without discovery, though the servants of Baron Alphonse were wonderfully suspicious after the fact. A fortnight since came a warning of a catastrophe inevitable, though so long deferred. M. Poisset arrived from Bradford, and proposed to go over the books. Teschemacher saw his game was up, opened the safe, took out £12,000 in notes, and caught the night mail to London. Having taken care to balance the books, he still left no suspicion behind, until his non-appearance caused alarm. Before the telegraph overtook him, he had taken ship for Quebec on board the Pressima. His companion even was too late to catch him, having delayed a long time over her trunks. She came back to Paris, and was arrested with 22,000l. upon her. Of course the Atlantic Cable had been brought into requisition, and it is to be hoped that when the runaway lands at Quebec he will find certain persons with arms wide open ready to receive him.

THE INVENTOR OF THE CIRCULAR SAW.—The Detroit Free Press says: In a lovely, secluded position in the northwest corner of the cemetery near the ever beautiful little village of Richmond, Kalamazoo county, Michigan, the historian can find, on a pure white marble slab, nearly concealed from view by a large cluster of lilac bushes, engraved thereon the simple name of "Benjamin Cummins, born A. D. 1772, died A. D. 1849." And who was Benjamin Cummins? He was the inventor of the circular saw, now in use in this county and in Europe. Nearly sixty years ago at Burtonville, New York, near Amsterdam, this man hammered out, at his blacksmith's anvil, the first circular saw known to mankind. He was a noted pioneer in Michigan; a first cousin of one of the Presidents of the United States, a slave owner in New York State, a leading Mason in the days of Morgan, and at whose table the very elite of the then great State of New York feasted and drank freely of his choice liquors and wines; a vessel owner on the North River before the days of steamboats; a Captain in the war of 1812, where, after having three horses shot from under him, with one stroke of his sword he brought his superior officer to the ground for an insult and became he was a traitor and a coward, and after having been court martialed, instead of having been shot, he was appointed a Colonel in his place. And in this lowly grave are the ashes of the man who, nearly seventy years ago, at Albany, New York, took up and moved bodily a large block of brick buildings, and, to the astonishment of the world, constructed a mile and a half of Erie Canal through a bed of rock, and who also built, per contract, those first low bridges over the same. He also aided in the construction of the first ten miles of railroad built in the United States, and founded both the villages of Esperence and Burtonville, on the old Schoharie, near Amsterdam. The study and the aim of this man's life appeared to be to accomplish that which none others could accomplish, and when the object sought was secured or overcome he passed it as quickly by as he would the pebbles on the sea shore.

FUNNY PHOTOGRAPHS.—Here is something for the eyes. Take your sister-in-law and a collection of photographs of your friends—the cabinet size is the best suited. Select two with face turned the same way; arrange them in the frame until they form one picture. The result is a most comical combination. You take, for instance, Mr. H. and Miss W. Mr. H. has the high comb and braids of Miss W., while her jet earrings and laces and bows give him a fanciful appearance. Or, Miss W. wears across her upper lip the well-waxed mustache of Mr. H., while his collar and her ruffles form a unique style of neck-dress. But the queerest effects are the combinations of expression. You have fun-loving eyes over a stiff upper lip, and Miss A.'s gentle features with the haughty tone of Miss B.'s expression. Move the picture slightly, and one looks out from behind the other like the "angle over the right shoulder." Try it. We have just discovered it, and our young friends say it is "too funny by half."

An Irish footman, having carried a basket of game from his master to a friend, waited a considerable time for the customary fee, but finding no present appear, scratched his head and inquired: "Pat, my master should ask, 'Paddy, what did the gentleman give you?' what would you honor have me tell him?"
