A Emp's CHARITY .-- Last summer a pair of robin red-breasts built their pests in the vicinity of a fashionable country boardinghouse. In dustime the heads of bur young robius were observed by some of the bounders, peering above the sides of the nest, when some thoughtless boys passing that way shot both the parent birds and left the young ones to perish.

The ladies and genilemen, moved to pity were devising plans for their relief, when a ittle brown wren flew to the next, surveyed the unfortunate state of things for a moment and then disappeared. In a few minutes it returned, bearing food of some kind for the starving robins,

Much surprised at this, the human sympathizers resolved to await further develplans of relief into operation, and were delighted to find the wren had in real good carnest assumed the care of that orphan family. With untiring energy it hunted to the wants and fastes of its proteges, and husband. The next thing he did was to go continued its kindly offices until the robins to a cradle where his infant child was lying were full-fledged and able to take care of asleep, and deliberately blew its brains out. themselves.

When counsel touched apon the fact that the youngest child of the defendant had been kept in the court-room during nearly the entire trial, Mr. Holmes' effect-we must make our vote a telling excitement knew no bounds. "It's false ; abme me as much as you like, but you shan't abuse my children," he exclaimed, and he sprang with elenched fists upon Mr. Courtney. One of the court officers seized his arm and forced Mr. Holmes back into his seat. Judge Spankling, in consideration of the severity of Mr. Courtney's remarks, severely reprimanded Mr. Holmes for the offence. In charging the jury he took the ground that they should find for the plaintiff if they believed that a contract of marriage had been entered into and that the defendant had broken the contract without the consent of the plaintiff. He called attention to the fact that there was no evidence, that when Mr. Holmes said "everything is off between you and me, May," that the plaintiff had assented to the recission of the contract of marriage. After an hour's deliberation the jury found for the plaintiff in six thousand dollars .- N. Y. Special to FIENDISH FANATICISM .- An atrocious tragedy was recently committed in Toquerville, Ufah, which, for some unnecountable reason, was not reported by telegraph. TOM SCOTT'S FORT RAPID TRANSIT SCHEME .-- Now that Hon. Thomas A. Scott has become the acknowledged "Hailroad King" of the world and his railway maninulations are attracting no small share of the public attention, it would not be uninteresting to relate an episate in his life that took place in Mercersburg, when he was simply a dry goods clerk ; and long acfore his giant enterprise were dreamed of: Arnold Brooks, nov deceased, a colored hostler, well-known in Merecisburg and a universal favorite, had charge of the stubles connected with one of the hotels of that place, the owner of which had some splendid trotting stock in which Brooks took great pride, and the speed of which formed a great staple in his conversation. One day, when he was dilating on the merits of his respective unimals with more than usual unction, Scott interrupted him with the rather startling banter : "Brooks I'll bet you five dollars that I can produce a pony that can pace faster than any horse you have got in the stable can trot." Brooks accepted the banter immediately; preliminaries were arranged and a handful of "fips" and "levies" -- the perguishes of his position-was put up by the enthusiastic hostler. The race came off. It was Tom Scott's first triumph in rapid travel, and Brooks was badly disappointed and defeated, and as he often remarked in tells ing his story, "d--n it, he took de money, dat was de wust." But the unfortunate horseman was not forgotten, and up to the time of his death he received from the great railroad magnate, at unexpected times, many a largess of no mean amount. -Fulton Democrat.
