

Cardinal McCloskey's Church.

DESCRIPTION OF ONE OF THE MOST CELEBRATED CHURCHES IN ROME.

Cardinal McCloskey is highly honored by having given him as his titular church one of the most celebrated in Rome. It is just at the left of the Piazza del Popolo...

The church was built by means of a collection among the common people and hence its name, 'St. Mary of the People.' It was rebuilt by Baccio Pinti...

In the right transept is the tomb of Cardinal Polocanthorus, of Cyprus, a fine specimen of fifteenth-century work. A door leads into a cloister containing the tombs of Archbishop Rocca and Bishop Gomiel...

The last chapel on the left is the Assumption by Annivale Caracci. In the left transept is the tomb of Cardinal Bernardino Lonati, with a fine fifteenth-century relief of 'The Resurrection.'

The altar-piece, representing the nativity of the Virgin, is one of the best works of Sebastian del Piombo. In the last chapel is the tomb of Cardinal Antonio Pallavicini, who died in 1507.

To close cracks in cast-iron stoves good wood ashes should be sifted through a fine sieve, to which is added the same quantity of clay finely pulverized...

Cooking, Parlor and Heating Stoves

At various times we have published notices to our readers the profits realized from covering manure, instead of being dried by the sun, as is generally done. We have given this advice from the fact that we have actually seen...

Four acres of good soil were manured; two of them were manured with ordinary barnyard manure and with an equal quantity of manure from the covered shed. The whole was planted with potatoes. The produce of each acre were as follows:

Potatoes treated with barnyard manure: One acre produced 272 bushels. One acre produced 292 bushels. Potatoes manured from the covered sheds: One acre produced 442 bushels. One acre produced 471 bushels.

The next year the land was manured with wheat, when the crop was as follows: Wheat on land treated with barnyard manure: One acre produced 41 bushels. Wheat on land treated with manure from the covered sheds: One acre produced 42 bushels.

Wheat on land manured from the covered sheds: One acre produced 58 bushels. One acre produced 61 bushels. The straw also yielded considerably more upon the land fertilized with manure from the covered sheds than upon that to which the ordinary manure was applied.—Rural New Yorker

THE RELATIVE VALUE OF CORN HAY.—It has often been remarked at current prices it would be much more economical to have less corn instead of hay, or at least have more grain and less hay. It is the case that the feeder finds that the winter is half over that he is compelled to buy provender of the kind, and then it becomes a question for him to decide whether it will be most profitable to buy corn and feed his hay now, or to purchase hay to the advantage of feeder and the manure pile.

Based upon carefully made calculations, we find that 80 pounds good hay is equal to 62 pounds of corn, or to place the matter in another way, if a ton of hay has a feeding value represented by 1,250, then a ton of corn meal will be represented by 1,600. Taking these figures as a guide, we find that when a ton of hay is worth $20 the equivalent value of a ton of corn meal is just now we may place their value here at $20 and $20 per ton, that at present rates we shall have a dollar in favor of hay; but I should think this was more than allowed for the increased trouble of handling feeding hay, and more than made up by the increased value of the manure from the ton of corn meal.

I do not intend to advocate the use of nothing but corn meal, but to suggest that it may be found economical to use more meal and less bulky food, especially when the hay is purchased and hauled a considerable distance.—Country Gentleman.

To Cleanse Feather Beds of MATRESSES.—When feather beds come solid or heavy, they may be made clean and light by being treated in the following manner: Rub the cover with a stiff brush, dipped in soap suds. When clean, lay the bed, or any other clean place, where the rain will fall on them, and thoroughly soaked, let them dry in the sun for six or seven consecutive days, shaking them up well, and turning them over each day. They should be covered over with a thick cloth during the night; if exposed to the night air, they will become damp and mildew. This way of washing the bed-ticking and feathers makes them very fresh and light, and is much better than the old-fashioned way of emptying the beds, and washing the feathers separately, while it answers quite as well. Care must be taken to dry the bed perfectly, before sleeping on it. Hair mattresses that have become soiled and dirty, can be made nearly as good as new by ripping them, washing, tacking, and picking the hair free from the bunches, and keeping it in a airy place, several days. Wash the ticking gets dry, fill it lightly with the hair, and tack it together.

NATURE'S wonders are even more astonishing than those of art. The Catholic Bishop of Canton, China, has sent to the Jardin d'Acclimatation a plant whose flower changes color several times every day. It is spoken of as another wonderful evidence of her capacity in leading Nature out of her ordinary paths. It appears, however, that it is, if not the same, at least more remarkable than a natural freak found in Southern Australia, which is a beautiful flower, similar to our well-known morning-glory, with a distinct color of color on its bell-shaped calyx. In the early morning the color-streaks are pale blue; toward noon they turn to a rich purple tint, which changes to a light pink during the afternoon, and the day declines the color fades, appearing entirely after sunset, when the flower closes and dies.
