It is almost needless to say that as a Democrat and as an honest, upright and clever gentlemen, Mr. Somerville has no superior anywhere, and that he would faithfully and acceptably perform the duties of the office to which he aspires is just as certain as that he would be elected by an overwhelming majority if he was placed upon the track. TTE CATHOLIC FAIR-Its Past and Future. -The ladies' fair in aid of the Church of the Holy Name, during the two weeks it has thus far been in operation, met with quite a liberal patronage, all things considered, the net receipts up to Saturday night last exceeding the sum of $400—not a mean amount when the stringency of the money market is taken into account. On to-morrow evening the fair will again open its doors and remain open during all of next week, with the exception we presume of next Thursday evening, when the grand Martha Washington tea party and other pleasant festivites are to reign supreme at Belmont For this creaming slove of the Belmont. For this crowning glory of the ladies' fair the most thorough arrangements are being made, and there is every reason to believe that the event will be one of the most enjoyable and memorable that Ebens-burg has ever known. Ample provision will be made for the accommodation and enjoyment of all who may attend, and quite a large delegation is looked for from Altoona and elsewhere, all of whom will be treated to a free ride on runners from Cresson to this place, provided there is snow sufficient for the purpose; otherwise there will be arrangements made for running an extra train on the Branch road, that is if the number of visitors should justify the enterprise. At the party itself the role of Martha Washingphysical endurance, and with due care for ton is to be assumed, and well assumed it will be, by Mrs. Winnie Moore, while the immortal George himself is to be rehabilitated in the person of our warm-hearted friend James P. Murphy, who has the ability and the determination to do full justice to the "father of his country" even if he should sacrifice one of the most immaculate of in continental costume, and even we ourself expect to be one of the ushers on the interesting occasion, though we have no intention of going back a matter of one hundred years in our style of wearing apparel. If you come to see us "ush," however, you cannot fail to be edified by the exhibition. In this connection it is also well enough to bear in mind that a grand shooting tournament is to take place on the grounds at Belmont during the same day, (Thursday,) for several valuable prizes, and we have reason to believe that nearly all the best marksmen from this and adjoining counties

"The Protestant Episcopal Church Congress" is an article that will claim attention in certain quarters. A number of stories especially adapted to the season form an attractive feature of the present number. In addition to the ar-ticles already mentioned, there is an exhaustive review of the year 1875, which, with Literary Notices, closes the number. A card from the editor, the Rev. I. T. George H. Conger alias George H. Conklin was arrested in New Haven yesterday on a warrant isseed by the city attorney charging him with bigamy. He was locked up in default of bail, and was to have a hearing in the city court this morning, but as the prosecution is not prepared, an adjournment was expected. The warrant alleges that the accused married Mary Jane Rorabaugh in Wilmore, Cambria county, Pa., on the 22nd of December, 1872, and that afterwards, on the 8th day of June, 1875, he feloniously married Arabella E. Stillman, of Fairfield, Conn. As previously stated. Conger gave himself up at the station house in this city last Tuesday, but as his offence was not committed here, Chief Marsh notified him that he properly belonged to the New Haven authorities.

His route would be to Tyrone, thence to Blairsville Intersection, and from thence to Indiana. Mr. Miller had but one arm (the left arm being off near the shoulder); he was of round, plump form, about five feet nine inches in height, weight about five feet nine inches in height, weight 190 pounds, and wore a wig of light chestnut color. It is possible that his mind was temporarily disturbed, and that he wandered out of his way. Information sent to D. W. The Currency Question.

The Government made a mistake in paying interest on Bonds deposited in the Treasury for the security of the National Banks, instead of issuing Greenbacks which pay no interest—The Proposed Resumption of Specke Poyments impracticable and injurious to the credit of the country—What is Basis!—What are Circulating Medial [SECOND PAPER.]

DEAR FREEMAN—Want of time must account for my non-appearance last week.

In my first paper I gave an explanation of the workings of the national bank system. I now propose to show why the Government should never have issued a dollar of currency to these monopolies. In the first place the Government pays interest on the bonds deposited for the security of the notes it gives the national banks. Secondly, it gives them currency to the amount pays interest on the bonds deposited for the security of the notes it gives the national banks. Secondly, it gives them currency to the amount of 90 per cent. of the bonds, with the reservation that they keep a reserve of 25 per cent. In bank. But why did not Government issue greenbacks instead of paying interest on nearly $400,000,000 to the banks? The answer is obvious: This was one of the many ways devised for robbing the people and enriching the privileged class. At the commencement of the panic the amount of the national bank currency was $350,000,000, or nine-tenths of the total amount on which the Government was paying interest to the national banks. The Secretary of the Trensury in his Report for 1873 illustrates this as follows: "A certain national bank in Chicago," he says, "deposited in the Trensury $100,000 in bonds which cost it $115,000 in greenbacks. The Government paid the bank $5,000 in gold semi-annually, which was worth $5,750 in greenbacks. The Government also gave the bank $90,000 in national bank notes, requiring it to keep a reserve of 25 per cent.. or $22,500." He then goes on to show what the bank made by loaning its $67,500, and concludes by declaring that it netted about 11 per cent. on its investment. Now, at this same rate, the interest on the $39,258,760 in bonds in the Treasury as security for the $350,332,881 of national bank notes, on Nov. 1, 1873, amounted to $19,4238, from which deduct about $6,000,000 tax paid by the national banks to the government, and you have a balance of more than $13,000,000 paid in one year for absolutely nothing. Assuming the national banks to the government, and you have a balance of more than $13,000,000 paid in one year for absolutely nothing. Assuming the national banks to the government had issued $350,have $100,000,000 thrown to the dogs in this way alone. Now, if the Government had issued $350,-000,000 of legal-tender notes it would have saved 000,000 of legal-tender notes it would have saved those $100,000,000, and greenbacks would not have depreciated more than they did during the war. And had Congress made the greenback a full it gal-tender the greenback would, to-day, be on a par with gold.

The act of 1809, providing for the resumption of specie payments, and for the payment in specie of such bonds as were not contracted to be paid in coin, was a direct violation of the Constitution of the United States, which says: "Congress shall pass, no ex post facto law or bill of attainder," etc. Now this bill, inasmuch as it was passed long after the debt was contracted, is an ex post facto law, and, therefore, void. will take a hand in the sport. No one who reced, is an ex post facto law, and, therefore, void.

THE SHERMAN BILL.

We come now to the bill for the resumption of specie payments, passed in January, 1875, and provided for the resumption of specie payments on and after January 1st, 1-79. By this bill the greenback is deprived of its pertial quality of legal-tender and gold is made the measure, or unit of currency and the BASIS OF CREDIT.

"But," some will say, "does not this act provide for the rodemption of the greenback in gold?" Yes; but where are we to get goldsufficient for this purpose. By the report of the Secretary of the Treasury for 1873, (the latest suthentic statement on this point I have at hand,) it appears that on Nov. 1 of that year the amount of gold in the country was $135,000,000, and $5,000,000 of silver. Supposing that, after Jan. 1, 1879, $300,000,000, of greenbacks would be presented at the Treasury for redemption, and there would be only $135,000,000 of gold in the Treasury—and there will not be anything like there would be only $135,000,000 of gold in the Treasury—and there will not be anything like that amount—what then? Why, the Government would have to suspend payments, and the greenback dollar would be worth only $15, ets. When we consider that the amount of greenbacks is far above that figure, and the available gold will be far below, we can form an idea of the effect this measure would have, even had we not a huge national debt and also the national bank notes, and all other bank notes, demanding gold. To have a specie basis for our greenback and national-bank note erculation, which amounts to about $700,000,000, would require nearly one half of all the gold used as a circulating medium in the world—the amount being $1,500,000,000. But the end sought by the Gold Power is not the resumption of specie payments, but the depreciation of the currency, that thereby it may build up the currency, that thereby it may build up the currency, that thereby it may build up the wealth of the condboider and gold-speculator, on the ruins of industry.

WHAT IS BASIS?

I answer, basis is the foundation on which credit rests. The basis of the greenback, and the bonds, and all government securities, is the ENTIRE WEALTH of the nation. All the lands, improvements, and chattels of the United States constitute the security of the greenback. It is this real worth of the nation which gives gold its circulating value; otherwise it would only possess an intrinsic worth as a commodity of merchandise for sale at home, or for export, and it is this quality of a rare and unstable commodity which renders it an unsafe and unreliable basis of currency and measure of value.

reliable basis of currency and measure of value.

CIRCULATING MEDIA.

A medium of circulation is a current sign of had been a seed to represent the wealth—or basis—at the back of it, in the transaction of business, instead of the ancient method of barter and exchange. There are many kinds of media. The media most generally employed are, metallic coins, paper currency, bonds, notes, checks, drafts, bills of exchange, clearing-house checks, drafts, bills of exchange, clearing-house checks, drafts, bills of exchange, clear-notes, checks, drafts, bills of exchange, clearing-house checks, etc.

Now all these instruments of business must have credit—or basis—behind them. Naturally, the security with the greatest credit behind it is the one most sought by all intelligent business men; and it is for this reason that the currency of the Government is in such great demand. It is a current sign which receives credit in all parts of the country. In this respect it is far superior to the paper of individuals which can have at most only a local circulation and a local credit.

THE DEMAND FOR MONEY greater at some seasons of the year thanther times.
The demand for money varies with the recur-The demand for money varies with the recurring seasons of the year. In the fair there is a great demand for money to ship the products of the agricultural portions of the country, especially the Great West, to the Eastern markets. This demands for the time a great volume of currency. The immediate demand over, the money which was thus employed seeks investment, and this investment is generally in Eastern banks, and these banks, in lieu of a more safe investment, put it into stocks, and all species of hazardous speculation, and the consequence is when it is needed to meet the wants of the Western it is not to be had. A SHOCKING FATE .- A correspondent of the Altoona Mirror, writing from Houtzdale, Clearfield county, under date of the 18th

The saddest accident that has happened in this community for a long time was the accidental self-shooting of Eugene Woodin, while hunting, on last Thursday. Mr. W., in company with Harry Test, left this place for Mountain Branch, about five miles distant, for a day's hunt. On arriving at the above named place, they separated. Soon after Mr. Test heard the report of Mr. Woodin's gun. Noticing no stir in the direction of the report, he went to see what Mr. W, had shot, when to his horror he discovered his companion lying on the ground dead. Two barrels of his gun were discharged, the contents of both entering his head a little above the left eye, passing through the vantt of the cranium and out at the back part of the head, completely emptying the skull. His hat was found twenty-five feet up on a tree with some of the brain in it. From marks in the snow, positions of body, gun etc., it is supposed he leaned his gun against a log and it slipped down, striking the nippless, causing its discharge. Mr. Woodin was a young merchant, well known and universally respected. He was honest in all his business transactions, exemplary in his conduct, kind and cheerful with all he met. A large circle of warm friends deeply mourn his loss. On Friday his remains were taken to Towanda, Bradford county, the home of his parents, for interment. The saddest accident that has happened in DECEMBR 20, 1875. DEAR FREEMAN—In commenting on the solution of Mr. Bearer's absurd fence problem by I. McTamany, I said 62% rods at 75 cents. Your type made it 62 rods at 65 cts. Again, in regard to A. D. H.'s problem, I said as 5760 : 7000 so is 12 oz. Troy to 14 7-12 oz. Avoirdupois. Your type made it 14 7-12 Troy. As to Mr. Trout's puzzle, I did not think the diagonals were to count the same as the other lines, else I would have had the figures so arranged. But it was only a puzzle.

nave had the figures so arranged. But it was only a puzzle.

F. J. P.'s answer to Mr. Scanlan's cheese problem is correct. So was mine. Either 9 lbs. or 12½ lbs. is a correct answer, as can be proven. Below please find solutions to problems in last week's issue:

1st. To A. D. H.'s trapezium—97.28 rods is the length of the fence; but the diagonal will not cut the trapezium into two equal fields, either in size or shape. My opinion is that it cannot be done.

2d. To F. J. P.'s cannon ball problem—2428 lbs. was the weight of the ball according to Brooks, if he made a ball 4 inches diameter weigh 50 lbs. Troutwine certainly erred if he made 1 inch diameter weigh 35.9 lbs.

3d. J. C. Scanlan's problem. Answer—A got $35.7 1443-2163; B 261 1381-2163 and C $242 1498-2163

36. J. C. Scaulan's problem. Answer—A got $487, 1443-2163; B 261 1381-2163 and C $242 1498-2163 of the gain.

As regards W. B. C.'s problem, I will not claim the chromo, but will make him a still better offer—thus: When he furnishes a carrect solution to his own problem I will send him a horse, saddle and bridle. When he becomes possessed of the power of annihilating matter he will be able to gain the reward offered.

AN ARITHMETICAL PROBLEM
in your Puzzle Department: A man bought a quantity of cider for $55.00 and sold one-fourth of it and 15 gallons over at a gain of 40 per cent, on that lot; then he sold the balance of it, and the gain on the two sales was 90.5-11 per cent, of the whole investment. Had he sold the first lot at the same price as the second, his gain would have been 70 per cent, of the whole investment. How many gallons did he buy, how many gallons in each lot sold, and what were the prices per gallon?

LORETTO.

CRESSEY STATION, Merced Co., Cal., 1 Dec. 15, 1875. Dear Freeman.—I used to think that I was have arithmetician in Cambria county, but since I left I see the big guns have opened fire at a fear-til rate, and some of them, at least, evince that they couldn't get a certificate from me. Give me the Irish people for arithmetic. If you do not believe me, try Patrick O'Connell, of Johnstown, once. I pronounce him the best mathematician in Cambria county, I might say in the State of Pennsylvania. I am a good arithmetician, but an incident occurred the other day which kind of puzzled me, and if your Cambria county big guns can help me out, I shall be under eternal obligations. Perhaps the Johnstown Institute can aid me. I can solve the problem by using the functions of a circle, such as sine and co-sine, but in arithmetic I am dead beat, only I solved it my self and carried out the fractions to five decimal places.

The question is a practical one and occurred on The question is a practical one and occurred on our farm, or reach as we call it here. It is this: There is a land to be plowed, which is a mile and a half long and eight rods wide. Three plows turn over twenty acres a day; consequently there are seventeen days' plowing. Now, measuring from the side in towards the centre, what is the width that will be cut off each day? Seventeen apswers are required, carried out to five decimal apswers are required, carried out to five decima places—all done by arithmetic. I have the an

I furnish herewith a geometrical solution which will give the proportions. You may show this beautiful diagram, which I venture to say Mr. Patrick O'Connell will pronounce correct. And if he says so, no use talking. Yours, Rob Roy. CHEST SHRINGS, Dec. 18, 1875, NORWAL SCHOOL, Indiana, Dec. 20, 1875. DEAR FREENAN-I would like to contribute the DEAR FREEMAN—I would like to contribute the following problem to your "Puzzle Department." I think the answer would make some people open their eyes. Problem—Supposing the borough limits of Ebensburg to be one mile in length and one-half mile in breadth, and presuming the entire population of Pennsylvania to be three millions, what part of said population could stand on the ground enclosed in the borough limits of Ebensburg, allowing each individual to occupy two square feet of ground?

HON. JOHN REILLY .-- A Washington correspondent of the Harrisburg Patriot furnishes brief sketches of the Pennsylvania delegation in the national House of Representatives, from which we extract the following in regard to the member from this district, Hon. John Reilly :

district, Hon. John Reilly:

Mr. Reilly can well say that the position sought him not he the position. Born in Indiana county, Pa., Feb. 22, 1838, his father, determined that his children should all receive the best education he could afford, sent John to the common schools until by energy and application he mastered the rudiments of a good English education. First clerk in a country store, at the age of cighteen, he entered the service of the Pennsylvania railroad company, as an attache of the Engineer Corps. After filling various positions under the company, until 1835, he was promoted to Superintendent of Transportation, which place he retained until his election to congress. In 1867 and 1868 was president of city commissioners of Altoona, In 1872-3 was president of the Bell's Gap railroad company, and is largely interested in manufacturing and mining matters in the state. A company, and is largely interested in manufac-turing and mining matters in the state. A self-made man in every particular, he is im-mensely popular at home as attested by the fact that the nomination for congress was ab-solutely forced upon him. The district was largely republican, but Mr. R. completely revol-utionized it. His majority was nearly 1,200.

Johnston, Esq., as her own. Under all the peculiar circumstances, her death is doubly sad and distressing. She was a most amiable lady—a model wife and a true mother to her three surviving young and interesting children, two boys and a girl. It is sad and melancholy for the additional reason, that her mother (Mrs. Johnston) is, and for some time has been, an invalid. She and Mr. Johnston, and especially Mr. Scanlan, have the heartfelt sympathy of this entire community in their great bereavement. The deservedly high appreciation in which the subject of this notice was held by all who knew her and esteemed for her many virtues, was cloquently manifested by the immense throng of people who followed her remains to their final resting place in the Catholic cemetery, yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. The impressive ceremonies of the Church on such occasions were perfermed by Father Boyle, who delivered a feeling and eloquent address, appropriate to the occasion and full of warning to all who listened to his impressive words, after which the ending scene at the grave commenced the final journey to that bourne from whence no traveler ever re urns. May she rest in peace.

It has special correspondents in Washington during the session of Congress, and at Harduring the session of Congress, and at Harrisburg during sessions of the Legislature, and will give full reports of all that is interesting in the proceedings. Its Local news is complete and varied, yet chaste and pure.
