

Facts Not Generally Known

Melons were found originally in Asia. The cantaloupe is a native of America, and is so called from the name of a place near Rome, where it was first cultivated in Europe. The nectarine is said to have received its name from nectar, the particular drink of the gods. Peaches were originally brought from the East by the Romans. The greenage is called after the Gage family, who first took it into England from a monastery in Paris. Filberts originally came from Greece. The walnut is a native of Persia, the Caucasus and China. The Greeks called butter bontaro--'cow cheese.' Before the middle of the seventeenth century tea was not used in England, and was entirely unknown to the Greeks and Romans. The bean is said to be a native of Egypt. The cucumber was originally a tropical vegetable. The pea is a native of the South of Europe. Spinach is a Persian plant. The tomato is a native of South America, and takes its name from a Portuguese word. The turnip came originally from Rome. Sweet marjoram is a native of Portugal. Coriander seed came originally from the East. The clove is a native of the Malacca Island, as also is the nutmeg. Capers originally grew wild in Greece and Northern Africa. Garlic came to us first from Sicily and the shores of the Mediterranean. Ginger is a native of the East and West Indies. Sage is a native of the South of Europe. The gooseberry is indigenous to Great Britain. Cloves come to us from the Indies, and take their name from the Latin clavus, or French clou, both meaning a nail, to which they have a resemblance. The horseradish is a native of England. Vinegar is derived from two French words, vin aigre, 'sour wine.' The nasturtium came originally from Peru. Parsley is said to have first come from Egypt, and mythology tells us it was used to adorn the head of Hercules. It is a curious fact that while the names of all our domestic animals are of Saxon origin, No-man nam's are given to the flesh they yield. When James Buchanan was Minister to England he had ears of corn, hermetically sealed, sent to him from this country. The word biscuit is French for 'twice baked,' because, originally, that was the mode of entirely deriving it of moisture to insure its keeping. Claret is a corruption of claret, a term applied in France to any red or rose colored wine. Almonds are natives of the Northern part of Asia and Africa. In ancient times they were much esteemed by the natives of the East. Apples were originally brought from the East by the Romans. The crab apple is indigenous to Great Britain. The asparagus was originally a wild seacoast plant and is a native of Great Britain. The chestnut is said by some to have originally come from Samitis in Lydia, and by others from Castanea Thessaly, from which it takes its name. The onion was almost an object of worship with the Egyptians two thousand years before the Christian era. It first came from India. Quinces originally came from Corinth. Apricots are indigenous to the plains of Armenia. Cherries were known in Asia as far back as the seventh century. Damsons originally came from Damascus. Lemons were used by the Romans to keep moths from their garments, and in the time of Pliny they were considered an excellent counter poison. They are natives of Asia. Citron is supposed to be the Median, Assyrian or Persian apple of the Greeks. Rhubarb is a native of Asia. The strawberry takes its name from an ancient custom of putting straw beneath the fruit when it began to ripen. Its delicacy was praised by both Virgil and Ovid. The peach originally came from Persia. We are indebted to the infamous Catharine de Medici for ice cream. The capability of frogs to exist without food for a lengthened period has been demonstrated by an American bridge builder. When a railway bridge was constructed across the Flint River, in Georgia, in 1863, a frog was encased in the brick foundation of one of the columns. This year the hole was opened, and the frog sprang out healthy and strong after its twelve years' confinement, the only visible change being a bleaching in its appearance. As the mortar was soft when the frog was buried alive, a clear induration of its shape and size is now visible where the mortar around has hardened into adamant. FOR SORE THROAT.—One of the most celebrated physicians of England directs the following for sore throat: Camphored ice, spread over a small piece of muslin; on this sprinkle lightly cayenne pepper; over this again add a little more camphored ice. Almost instant relief will be afforded by applying this to the throat.

THE GREAT CAUSE OF HUMAN MISERY.

CURE FOR LOVE OF LIQUOR.—At a festival at a Reformatory Institution, recently, a gentleman said of the cure of the use of intoxicating drinks: "I overcame the appetite by a recipe given to me by old Dr. Hatfield, one of those good old physicians who do not have a percentage from a neighboring druggist. The prescription is simply an orange every morning a half-hour before breakfast. 'Take that,' said the doctor, 'and you will neither want liquor nor medicine.' I have done so regularly, and find that liquor has become repulsive. The taste of the orange is in the saliva of my tongue, and it would be as well to mix water and oil as rum with my taste."

FOR SORE THROAT.—One of the most celebrated physicians of England directs the following for sore throat: Camphored ice, spread over a small piece of muslin; on this sprinkle lightly cayenne pepper; over this again add a little more camphored ice. Almost instant relief will be afforded by applying this to the throat.

THE GREAT CAUSE OF HUMAN MISERY. Just Published, in a Sealed Envelope. Price etc. A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment and Radical Cure of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatocoele, and its Consequences, including Emissions, Gleet, Nervous Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally; Consumption, Epilepsy, and Piles; Mental and Physical Infirmities, &c.—By ROBERT J. CULVERWELL, M. D., author of the "Green Book," &c. A world-renowned author, in his admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of Self-Abuse may be effectually removed without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations, bougies, instruments, rings, or cordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically. This Lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands. Sent under seal in a plain envelope, with an address, on receipt of six cents, or two postage stamps. Address the Publishers: H. S. J. HIGH LAKES.

Lake Harkness, Plumas county, Cal., has an altitude of 7,330 feet. In Clear Creek county, Colorado, are two beautiful little lakes, each of about a mile in circumference, very deep; and the water, of dark bluish green, is extremely cold. There is no apparent source of supply, as the lakes are surrounded by high mountain walls of granite blocks, piled in magnificent confusion and quite heavily timbered. They are at an altitude of at least 9,000 feet, and are the source of the famous Clear Creek Canyon stream.

About six miles south of these lakes, and at an altitude of fully 10,000 feet, just above the timber line, is situated Chicago Lake, now widely known as the scene of Bierstadt's "storm in the Rocky Mountains." It is a most picturesque sheet of clear limpid water; but appears at a little distance to be almost black owing to its great depth. The water is intensely cold, but contains an abundance of trout. The lake is about a half mile in diameter, and at the upper or northwest side a perpetual bank of ice and snow creeps down to the water's edge. On the south an imposing wall of smooth granite towers almost vertically to the height of 2,000 feet; while on the west there are series of majestic terraces, like huge steps, 300 to 400 feet high. The north wall slopes away at an angle of about 45°; and to the south and east there is an easy, gradual slope down into Chicago Canyon. This lake would appear to have been the crater of some volcano; yet there are no traces of volcanic action.

There are hundreds of lakes in the Rocky Mountains. Prominent among them are the Twin Lakes, altitude 8,700 feet; San Cristobel and Lake Mary, in the San Juan country (somewhat higher), and Grand Lake, in Middle Park. There are many smaller lakes in the region of the timber line, varying in elevation from 10,000 to 12,000 feet. These lakes are all along the snowy region—in the National Elk, Sagache, San Miguel, Uncompahgre, Sangre de Christo, and other ranges. In the National range, which, according to Professor Hayden, "is by far the largest and grandest in the United States," there are several considerable lakes above 9,100 feet, and many smaller ones from 10,000 to more than 12,000 feet above the sea level.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.—It is difficult to ascertain the amount of crops, or the average yield, of very distant times past, but the average yield per acre of wheat in the eleventh century was estimated by the highest authority of that day, the author of 'Fleta,' at only six bushels. So three hundred years later in 1390, fifty-seven acres on a farm at Hawsted yielded only three hundred and sixty-six bushels, and on an average of three years; little more than that. The actual productive power of Great Britain in the article of wheat alone increased during the half century from 1801 to 1851 to the extent of supporting an additional population of 7,000,000, an increase which can be ascribed with confidence mainly to improved cultivation. So in every country where agriculture receives the attention it deserves the productive power of the soil has largely increased. Even the Atlantic States of the Union, where the system of cultivating the soil without maintaining its fertility by proper treatment prevailed for many years, are not an exception, since the condition of agriculture is rapidly improving in the oldest of them, where this system was earliest begun, and the general average of crops, with the exception of the potatoe, is increasing from year to year as a more proper culture is introduced and preserved in the farmer being led to improve his practice by the pressure of an increasing population and constantly rising prices. In New England, for instance, the general average yield of Indian corn per acre has risen to about 35 bushels, while crops of 50 and 60 bushels per acre are not uncommon, and 80 and 100 are sometimes attained by careful tillage.

A MEADVILLE lady gives this excellent receipt for making buckwheat cakes: One quart of buckwheat flour, a small cup of Indian-meal, one and a half tea-spoonful salt, four table-spoonful good lively yeast; mix with milk and tepid water enough to make it the consistency of muffin batter; then beat will for fifteen minutes, and set in a warm place to rise over night. In the morning the batter may be sour; if so dissolve a teaspoonful of soda in a little warm water and stir in; if the cakes are not sweet add more saleratus; do not beat the batter; add a table-spoon full of molasses to brown the cakes—the milk does not brown them sufficiently. Bake on a well-heated griddle that is perfectly clean; a soapstone griddle needs no greasing; an iron griddle should be greased with a piece of rind of ham or fat salt pork on a fork. Butter and silver-drips syrup are best to eat with buckwheat cakes; maple syrup is also good.
