GOVERNOR HARTRANET WAS INSURUrated last Tuesday, and the address which he delivered on the occasion will be found in another column. In these dive of Givernor's messages, long drawn out, the conspicuous merit of the address is its brevity.

THE Kentucky legislature on last Tuesday elected Hon, James B. Beck United States Senator to succeed John W. Sterenson, whose term will expire on the 4th of March, 1877. Mr. Beck is a gentleman of well known ability gress for the last eight years. ----

THE Pittsburgh Post concludes an article on Blaine and his Presidential aspirations by declaring that he might possess all the good qualities with which he is at present credited, superadded to those of his maternal ancestor, yet he would not receive a decent recognition from the Republican party as a candidate for the Presidency or any other coffice if a Catholic. He might be a Lincoln in religion and a Morton in morals and be looked up to as a shining light and trusted leader, so that he was not a Catholic. Such is the proscriptive, bigoted and puritanical practice of the Radical party.

I am not unmindful that the welface and progress of a State depend less upon its no measures of administration can produce any substantial good unless they are dietated by public opision or are begetten of for reform or reform can work them to permanent benefit. Invention may exhaust itself in contrivances of public utility and rulers may be never so wise in their devices, but if the dispositions and intelligence of a people are unprepared for the reception of emedies they will not take root in their affections or affairs. Imbued with these convictions, the maxiers for the conduct of my administration were easily formed. It was only necessary to resolve that its acts should have no selfish taint, that they should be colored by no personal predilections or warped by any favorite theories, and that inspired neither by fear nor favor they should aim to reflect the people's will. With the lights with which Ireaven has endowed me I have striven to adhere to these maxims, and if at any time I have failed to conform thereto it has not been from lack of patient investigation and honest excition or of a tender icalous regard for the honor of the State but from a misconception or misapprehenion of the wishes or needs of her people. In the future then, as in the past, as the Executive of the Commonwealth, I can have no interest to serve that is not her interest, and can embrace no dectrine or embark in any cause that will not advance the material prosperity and promote the enlightenment of her citizens.

My opinion upon the questions that effect the government of the State have been presented in my annual message and it is unnecessary to again refer to them.
