It will be seen that the above act requires the publication of these accounts in January of each year. It seems that the time was found impracticable, and the Legislature last winter amended the act to read as follows :

SECTION 6. The corporate authorities of every such municipality or distr ct shall, at the end of their fiscal year, prepare and publish in at least two newspapers, &c.

Hence it is clear that borough, township, and road statements are to be published in April, "the end of the fiscal year," and the school accounts in June, which is the "end of the fiscal year, for school purposes. We hope our local officers will make a note of this, so that all parties may work themselves out of the tangle into which we now are touching this matter.-Beaver Radical.

WIDE AWARE for March is crowded with good things for us all. The two magazines, WIDE AWARE and St. Nicholas, have accomplished an excellent thing ; they have brought us elder ones into close sympathy with the children, and made us boys and girls together. Everybody reads the children's magazines. Both the boys and girls have their own special story, "How Miss Chatty Earned a Living," by the editor, and "Lost in the Woods," a maple-sugar story, by J. H. Woodbury, for which Merrill has drawn a fine frontispiece, a capital picture of a busy sugar-camp. The geography class get a paper "About Maps," full of curious facts, and most entertainingly written. Elia Rodman Church gives an interesting ac-count of "Life Among the Ojibleways," and Emma Burt has a fanciful story, with a fanciful picture, concerning "The O'd Elm of Boston." The editor's serial, "The Cook-ing Club," has deepened into a bit of intense story, and the other serial, "Young Rick," by Miss Eastman, is full of adventure, There is "Work for Little Fingers," by Daisy Evebright. There is also another piece of Work for Little Fingers proposed in "Centennial Trees,"-a proposition that each boy and girl shall celebrate the contennial year by planting a tree. It is a good idea, and ought to be carried out. There are largeprint stories for the little ones, music, puzzles, rides on the Magic Carpet, and poems by Holme Maxwell, L. G. Warner, Mary E. Atkinson and others.

Thinking it was rather long in reaching the powder, he looked back to see if it had gone out, when it suddenly exploded, a portion of the rock striking him in the bowels causing death on the following morning, as above, stated. Deceased was 66 years of age, and for the greater part of his life resided in Munster township, but about a year ago removed to Wilmore. He was a good citizen and an upright man, and was much respected by all who knew him. His remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery at Wilmore

All which betokened a kind beart and a charitable disposition ; but that her acts were prompted by any such inward monitors our readers can best judge when we assure them that the lady in question has recently presented a bill to the bereaved intented. The reason of that is that husband in which she charges $7 for attendance during the illness and $3 for assisting to prepare the body of his deceased wife for interment. CHEST SPRINGS, Feb. 28, 1876.

DEAR FREEMAN-As some of the contributors to your "Puzzle Department" appear to be get-ting sorrowful. I guess it is about time I should begin to feel a little that way myself. Hence I am sorry that it hurts A. D. H.'s feelings to be here in our midst. Furthermore, DR. KEY-SER'S LUNG CURE is a specific in all incipishown a slight mistake. I am equally sorry that he did not see any of my solutions to prob-lems, as it prevented him from having the pleasure of criticizing me "a little." And, lastly, Lamporry that he did not avail himself ent lung diseases, and nips them in their bud, in that way stopping the tubercular deposit on its way to the lungs, as it courses its way through the blood. DR. KEYSER'S of the opportunity given him to criticize my sloution to "Loretto's cularged kettle. So wish-ing 10 make him feel happier, and not desiring to give him the trouble of hunting up my re-cent solutions. I will send some answers to problems for him to criticize. Feeling much obliged to "Loretto" for informing me that my answer to his kettle orolus my was not correct. CHEST SPRINGS, Feb. 22, 1376. CHEST SPRINGS, Feb. 22, 1376. DEAR FREENAN-I imagine, but may be mis-taken, that the following solution will give the quietus to that everlasting trapezoid question; yet "Loretto" is like the "Village Master" in Goldsmith's poem, for, "e'en though vanquish-ed, he can a rgue still." After finding the hy-pothenuses of immumerable small triangles, I found that the line common to both fields is 97.45 rols, and the other sides of the first field are 40 rods, 80 rols and 4 rods, respectively.

are 40 rods, 80 ross and 4 rods, respectively

are 40 rods, 80 rols and 4 rods, respectively, while those of the second are 100 rods, 36 rods, and the common side. The answer to that plank problem is found by multiplying the length in inches by the width, then dividing by 6 and extracting the square root of the quotient, to which last add the thickness, and you have the side of the cubical box. I thought it would do no barm to explain a little, as some didn't get it right. The length of a second's pendulum is 39.10 inches, nearly, and in 24 hours there are 8600 seconds; also, in 10 minutes there are 600 sec-onds; then twice 600 seconds multiplied by 39.10 onds: then twice 600 seconds multiplied by 39.19 and divided by $5100, gives .543 or one-hal ucariy. ----

A GREAT NATIONAL WORK.

The Centennial History of the United States, from the Discovery of the American Continent to the First Century of American Independence. By Jus. D. McCabe, Author of "A Manual of Gen-eral History," "The Great Republic," &c., &c. eral History," "The Great Republic," dc., dc. There has long been a great and universally-felt want of a History of the United States suit-able for general use. This want is now being supplied by The National Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, who have issued a handsome vol-ume, styled "The Centennial History of the United States," by James D. McTabe, a well-known historical writer. This work will, un-doubtedly, take rank as the Standard History of the United States. It is no dry mass of de-tails- no bombastic effort to inflame the nation-al pride, but is a clear, vivid and brilliant nar-rative of the events of our history, from the discovery of the American Continent down to the present time. It traces the evidences of our country, and gives a most interesting account country, and gives a most interesting account of the indians of North America, from the time of the Indians of North America, from the time of the coming of the white men. The voyages of Columbus, the explorations of the different nations of Europe and the final occupation and conquest of the land by England, are told with graphle power. Every step of our colonial history is traced with patient fidelity, and the sources of those noble, and we trust enduring institutions which have made our country free and great, are shown with remarkable clearness. The causes of our great struggie for Independence are told with a logical force and ability unsurpassed in any work of the day. Then follows a clear and succinct account of the formation of the Fedcral Constitution; the establishment of the Union; the course of affairs until the breaking out of the Second War with England; and a

out of the Second War with England; and a fuil and comprehensive account of that War and its results. The events of our career from the close of that contest to the commencement of the Civil War, follow in their order. The history of the Civil War is related with In-tense vigor, and with a strict fidelity to truth. The author pleads the cause of no party or sec-tion. He states facts, points out the lessons which they teach, and appealing to meither pa-sion nor political feeling, trusts to the good sense of his countrymen to sustain his views The book contains an Appendix, giving an ac-count of the approaching Centennial Exhibi-tion.

It is comprised in one large, handsome octavo volume of 925 pages, and contains 442 fine octavo rolume of 925 pages, and contains 442 fine en-gravings on steel and wood of historical per-sonages and scenes. The price is so low that all can afford to purchase a copy, and each sub-scriber is presented with a superb lithographic engraving of the Centennial Exhibition Build-ings and Grounds. It is sold by subscription only, and the publishers want agents in every countr.
