Upmonts .- These are men that take newspapers, pay for them, and read them. Observe the order in which fair and just to them that a newspaper should be paid for as the barrel of flour or new coat. They never entertained any other opinion. When the year runs out, or a little before, they are on hand with the pay. There is no more difficulty with them in remembering this period than in remembering Sunday or the first of January. If one of them wishes to stop his paper, he either calls or writes by his postmaster in due season, like a man. This class is dear to the heart of the editor. Their image is embalmed in his warm affections. May they live a thousand years, and see their sons' sons of the fourth generation. The second class now in mind is the

Do Wells.—This class is nearly related to the other—so near that it is hard to tell where one ends and the other begins. These men always pay in advance in the beginning, and intend to do so continually. But memory fails a little, or some mishap intera little, sometimes quite a period. But their recollection, though nodding oceasionally, never gets sound asteep. It pronounces the word in due time, "The printer is not paid;" and forthwith their will to do well kindles into netivity. Now comes the paying up-"Meant to do so before. Don't mean to let such things pass by," A publisher can live with such men. They have a warm place in his memoryonly a little back of the Uprights. If such a man dies in arrears, his wife or son remembers that he might not have neid up for his newspaper, and forth-Next come the

EASY GOERS -These men believe in W. H. STENNETT, Gen Pass, Ag't. Gen. Sap't, Chicago. newspapers. They have fully settled | January 28, 1876 1y. In their own minds that a newspaper is a good thing. They take them, too, Sometimes at the first they pay up for the first year; at any rate they mean to, pretty soon. If they do so, they set down with the comforting convic tion that their newspaper is now settled for; and this idea having once got into their heads, refuses obstinately to be dislodged, but keeps its holding from year to year; a truth once-now an illusion gray and rheumatic with years. The editor, viewing the elongated and elongating space in the accounts current of their dollars, begins to ask if they are dead or gone to California. INTEREST ALLOWED ON TIME DEPOSITS Now he begins to poke bills at them. They suddenly start up to the reality that they are in arrears; and, like men, as they are at the bott on, pay up. They never dispute his bills-they know books tell better stories than moss-covered memories. If the publisher has faith enough, or a long purse, and can live like a hibernating bear, he may survive this class. But if he is a mortal only, woe be to him. The next class is that of the Down HILLER.-Here we begin to slide over to the other side. The picture suddenly gets sombre. We shall despatch the Down Hills suddenly. One of these may take a paper because his wife wants one, or the children are zealous to read it, or a neighbor persuades him. When it begins to come he dismisses all thoughts about it further. If the editor sends a mandirectly to him at the end of two years, he may get some pay for his paper, with growls and surly looks. He never pays any debt if he can get rid of it, and a newspaper least of all. Still, he hates lawsuits, constables, and all that. A dun has the same effect on him that a bullet has on a hippopotamus-glaneing from his hide, or sinking in the blubber harmless. He is always sliding down hill, and soon merges into another class, of

THE NIX CUM ROUSE .-- No matter how this man began his subscription, he never pays for it-not he. "He don't like that sort of paper, It don't give news. He never did like it. He didn't want it in the first place, and told the postmaster at the sent it back more than a year ago; besides, he never began to take it till a long time after it came, and he hadn't had only two or three of them, at any rate, and those he hadn't read." Wipe him off. Here comes

THE SCAREGRACE .- It is enough to say of him that he never fails to have a newspaper-two or three of them. When he thinks they have come about long enough for the publisher to want pay, he sends back with "stop it." Or he takes up his quarters and leaves for parts unknown. He does not want to BARK, HIDES, AND PLASTERERS' HAIR, pay, and he don't mean to. Get it if

Houdin, the most celebrated conjurer of his day, was a clever constructor of automata. The taste was first developed in him in consequence of his purchase from a Dutch mechanic, named Opre, of a small barlequin, which leaped out of a box, performed some evolutions, and returned to the box at the word of command. This automaton had to be repaired by Houdin, who afterwards repaired other automata, namely: Vaucanson's duck, and the Componium, a mechanical orchestra, which could play operatic overtures with precision and effect, and could improvise variations without repeating itself. It was exhibited by a Prussian, named Koppen, in Paris, about 1829, and brought him in a considerable sum, after which he sold it. The automata made and exhibited by Houdin were four in number. One was a pastry-cook that issued from a door at the word of command, bringng various refreshments, according to the request of the spectators. At the side of the shop, assistant pastry-cooks were seen rolling paste and putting it in the oven. Another of Houdin's automata was an imitation of the two clowns Auriol and De Bureau, The latter beld out a chair at arm's length, on which his comrade performed aerobatic tricks like his namesake in the circus at the Champs-Elysces. Afterward Anriol smoked a pipe, and accompanied with the flageolet an air constructed by Prof. Pepper. It tumbled and postured on a swinging trapeze. It was patented, and the mechanism is fully described in the specification. A conjurer named Benumont improved upon this by making a large doll vault upon a swinging rope, and, after holding by its hands, disengaging them from the rope without assistance, and then hang by its feet. A third mechanical contrivance of Houdin's was the mysterious orange tree, on which flowers and fruit seemed NAIL, GLASS, OILS, PAINTS, &c. to grow at the request of the ladies. This was also used as part of a coninbeing discovered in one of the oranges, which opened, when two butterflies took it by the corners and unfolded it. The electrical dial trick of Houdin may also be classed as automatic, it being intended that the spectators should believe it to be isolated. A dial of ONE-IT COSTS ONLY $35. transparent glass was hung up in the theatre, and while suspended it would mark any hour desired by the andience. and would strike the time on a crystal ting your feed with it. bell suspended with the dial .- Cham-

WONDERFUL NATURAL PROVISION. -In the struggle for life which is going on perpetually throughout the whole of the animal creation, it is interesting to observe the wonderful provisions which Nature makes for the preservation of the weaker and more helpless animals. The color of the creature is often adapted in a wonder ful way to its mode of living and place of concealment, and contributes very materially to its safety. We know how difficult it is to distinguish the where he is resting, till he betrays himself by moving. The birds that sing in the hedge rows have colors on their backs which harmonize with the color of the leaves about which they Repairing Neatly and Promptly Done. | flit, while the feathers on their breasts borrow the white hue of the clouds above them. The partridge can hardly be distinguished from the stubble where it makes its nest, while in northern countries the winter dress of the hare and ptarmigan is white like the snow among which they are seen. The same is the case with the inhabitants of the water. The frogs which live in the pool or muddy ditches are known to vary their color according to the nature of the sand or mud among which they live. The tree-frog, on the other hand, is green, and thus is with difficulty distinguished from the trees to which it adheres. Fish, especially those which inhabit fresh water, are so like in color to the weeds and stones among which they lie, that it is often very difficult to detect their presence. One of the most wonderful instances of Nature's care in providing for the protection of the more defenceless creatures is found in the apparatus for defence with which the cuttle-fish is furnished. As soon as its quick eyes catch a glimpse of an approaching enemy, knowing the impossibility of saving itself by flight, it prepares at once to seek safety in concealment. With this object it sinks downwards, and throws out from a vessel with which it is provided a black stream of inky fluid. This entirely surrounds and conceals it, and as it takes a considerable time to disperse, the enemy is generally baffled; if, however, the cuttle-fish is still in danger, it pours out another flood of ink, and remains quiet until the peril is past .- The Young Crusader.
