

Another harbinger of Spring, in shape of a warm day, has been met with in appearance in this community. It is not...

Dr. John H. Clark, who it will be remembered purchased the Callan House property, has not long since, has just returned and opened his office for the accommodation of the public. The Doctor knows how to keep a hotel in the very best style, and they who seek the hospitalities of this famous boarding resort will have no reason to regret the act.

A freight brakeman named Wm. Crum, whose home was at or near Wilmore, this county, was thrown from the deck of a car by a sudden stop, nearly opposite the Charles hotel, Altoona, on Friday last, and falling on the track, seven of his cars passed over his body, literally cutting it in pieces. He was much esteemed by all who knew him.

Having frequently heard of Carrolltown, a town of some size and importance, it is quite likely that many of our readers will visit that place in a day or two to make arrangements for giving an entertainment on Wednesday evening of next week. If he does, we hope our readers will be particularly given him a grand ovation, which is certainly well deserving of.

While Mr. Thomas Griffith was returning home from a visit to a sister of his residing between this place and Wilmore, his horse was stopped by a would-be highwayman, who demanded his money. Mr. Griffith refused to take it after a short struggle, and the highwayman, with a pocket-book, a loaded revolver, with which he was not long in securing the right of way.

It is perhaps a well known fact to those who have read the Wilkesburg Times, of Saturday last, that Mr. Griffith, of this place, was on Saturday last, on his way to Altoona, on the Erie, from his mountain fastnesses, to get measured for his new regimentals. He was accompanied by a young man, who was which their lofty tops rose near the clouds on his own native hills. Mike will have to "go it alone" with his "number," as uniformly is the case on the branch.

A sixteen hundred pound steer, such as Joe Gutwald trotted out yesterday, gaudily with its bells, fancy colored papers and appropriate trappings, was shown in something worth blowing about—a feat which two of Joe's boys succeeded in accomplishing very effectively on a pair of tin snips. The animal was shown in the market this evening and to-morrow morning.

About the hour of midnight Wednesday a "robbery" was committed in this place, many manipulators of concentrated capital appeared in front of our domicile and proceeded to treat us to several strains of sweet melody, for which the scolding remonstrances of a very elderly lady, who was doubtless by then had they not awakened us from a sound slumber which we found it impossible to resume for fully an hour after their departure.

Pen-ent Epistle from Rob Roy.

Dear Sir: I have not a particle of anything to write you. I'll write a right long article, and write it right to you.

The printer may object to this; but, prythe, what of that? They surely know the matter is Emphatically true.

I now am living in a state of matrimony. Ah! Sin has been at work late, and Grace has gone away.

Joseph Miller is our bard. Hence I'm debarred of song; He scolds his stanzas by the yard, because the lines are wrong.

And though a Miller-Ire in fact, He does by no means look or act, Expect a judgment day.

Poets can always flourish here. Because the wind is high. And like them, days and months appear; They surely know the matter is dry.

This State is very rich, I'm told. In metals, rich and fine. Each farm has its own gold, Though I can't call it mine.

Fortunes come and fortunes go. And men will often go slow. That they get on a high.

Here one teetotaler got wife Because of legal tender. He was a good man, and his wife, And then got on a Bender.
