The art of baking consists in heating anything in an oven or fire so as to harden it, and this term is applied to the manufacture of bread and porcelain, and like most arts of primary importance, precedes the period of history, being involved in the obscurity

of the early ages of the human race. The very early mention of bread in Stock of Dry Goods, Notions, Millinery, Carpets, Oil Cloths &c., to be found in Cambria county. ritten history further hears out the [24.] written history further bears out the great antiquity of the art of baking. We are told in Genesis, xviii., 5, that A braham, wishing to entertain the three to fetch "a morsel of bread," and told Sarah "to make ready quickly three measures of fine meal, knead it and make cakes upon the hearth." A little later, the art of baking was carried to high perfection by the Egyptians .-From ancient Egypt the art of baking traveled with the march of civilization into Greece. We also learn that the baker business during the Middle Ag s was considered to be one so closely affeeting the interests of the public that it was put under strict regulation and supervision, and continued to effect the trade until very recent times.

In England as early as 1266 an act was passed regulating the price of bread by public assize, and continued until 1836. In 1812 the captain of an English ship ordered a baker in one of the towns of Sweden to bake a quanti- WHOLESALE AND RETAIL ty of bread to the value of £1 sterling. The baker, confounded at so large an order, refused to comply unless security was furnished that he would take the bread away, as so large a quantity could never be disposed of in the town. In the year 1804 Manchester, England with a population of 90,000 persons, did not contain a single public baker. (Just imagine a city in the United States without a baker.) In 1863, in Great Britain, an act was passed making a searching inquiry into the condition of bake houses and of the persons employed in them. History does not yet give much information regarding bakers in our own country; but possessing, as we do, in this age, all the inventions and appliances for making bread, there is no use in pursuing the subject further at this time. - The Confectioner.

A SAGACIOUS CAT .- One very strange thing I remember happening at the house where I was visiting. I had been told of it, but never fully realized how peculiar it was till I witnessed it friend, her husband, and four children; HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS GENERALLY. and when news was brought that puss had five new kittens, each begged so hard to be allowed to have one that orders were given to save four and drown the remaining one. Whether Mrs. Puss missed her child or not I don't know, but she seemed very well satisfied with those left her, and was more than usually happy when any of TIN, COPPER & SHEET-IRON the children would pay her a visit at her snug quarters under the kitchen table. A dozen times a day or more would the luckless kittens be dragged from their bed to be kissed and hugged. But it so happened that from some cause or other one whole day Nos. 278, 280 and 282 Washington St., passed without any one going to see the kittens, much to their mother's grief, who had frequently gone to the nursery in search of her young friends. Evening came; the whole family were together, the two younger ones, being on the floor, when, to their astonish ment, in wilked the cat, carrying a kitten in her mouth. This she carried to one of the children, and so soon as she saw it was kindly received ran quickly away. Bump, bump, was soon heard, and in came the mother cat with another kitten, which was deposited near another of the children. Curiosity was now excited, the two elder children took seats on the floor, to see if kittens would be brought to them. and in a very short time they were. Then wa p ssy's happ'ness complete; she would purr loudly, rub herself against each one in turn, and try by every means to show how pleased she was. During the time I visited at my friend's I witnessed the above strange scene three times, and never once did puss make a mistake in not giving the kittens to their proper owners, nor was the peculiar "bumping" noise ever heard when she carried any other but reasonable terms. Ned's. Need I say that it was soon named "Bumps" by the children ?-New Dominion Monthly.
