In Denmark, the ages she may have on at the time; all else are twenty for the man and sixteen then becomes the property of the other for the girl. The Minister of Justice may dispense with the rule. In France, no men marry before eightcen ; no woman before fourteen. Under the old monarchy, the ages were fourteen and twelve. By the ancient laws of France, the age for a male was thirty, and twenty-five for a female. In Hesse Darmstadt the rule was that the man must be twenty-five ; but this was reduced seven years ago to twenty-one, and the number of marriages has much increased in consequence. There is no limit as to the girl's age, it being left to the parents or guardians to take care that no mere child is wedded. In Greece, males cannot marry before fourteen nor females before twelve years of age. In the Ionian Islands, now a part of Greece, the age is sixteen for the male and fourteen for the female. In Hungary, the Catholic (or sacramental) marriages are regulated by canon law, other marriages by civit law. Under Furs Wanted cannon law, the ages are fourteen and twelve, and minors cannot wed without the father's consent. The civil law also fixes twelve as the earliest age at which a girl may marry. Men cease to be minors at twenty-four and women at sixteen. A minor's marriage, without paternal consent, is null and void. In Italy, the legal marriage is above the usual standard, being eighteen for males and sixteen for females. In Lapland, the age is seventeen for males. In Norway, no limit of age is required. In Sweden, it is twenty-one for males and fifteen for females. In the Netherlands, eighteen in the case of males and twelve for females. In Portugal, fourteen for males and twelve for females. In Prussia, eighteen for males and fourteen for temales, and a late law has made marriage merely a civil contract, like the leasing of a house. In Roumania, the ages are eighteen for males and fifteen for females. In Saxony, the limits of age are eighteen for males and sixteen for females; in Spain, fourteen for males and twelve for females. In Switzerland, the limits vary from fourteen to twenty for males and twelve to eighteen for females, according to the Cantonal and other laws. In Turkey, there is no age limitation. In Wurtemburg, the limit is fixed at twenty-one for males and fourteen for females. In Russia, the legal marriage ages are eighteen and sixteen. There are exceptions, however, for the natives of Caucasus may marry, the males at fifteen and the females at thirteen; and in some special cases the Russian Bishop of the diocese can authorize a marriage six months be fore the period allowed by law, either fore the period allowed by faw, ender for the male or the female. In the Grand Duchy of Finland, which is part of the Russian Territory, no mar-riage is allowed to be contracted, with-out supreme authority, before the age of twenty one for males and fifteen for of twenty one for males and fifteen for females, except for peasants engaged in service by the year, or those having any fixed trade or occupation, who are allowed to marry at the age of eigh teen for males and thirteen for females. TWENTY-NINE YEARS. A BURNING ISLAND .- Some thirtyfive years ago there appeared in the Mediterranean Sea a little island thrown up by volcanic action; it was in fact, a crater, from which steam HIGH and cinders were still issuing to the height of several hundred feet.
