

SOME JAPANESE USAGES.

The sovereign remedy for ailments is shampooing, and he who inherits the trade is blinded in his childhood for the sake of modesty.

Among the better classes great care is taken in the education of women, and time, pains, and patience are expended upon music.

Crime is speedily and severely re-buked. The capital punishments are hari-kari, beheading, and, for parrieade and the greater offences, crucifixion.

Sword making is considered an honorable occupation, and a connoisseur of blades can identify the handwork of a celebrated maker with the certainty with which some of us recognize the painting of an old master.

The Bricks of Egypt.—The bricks of Egypt are still made of Nile mud, with an admixture of lime, straw and ashes, which are now burnt in kilns.

In many parts the poor peasantry make bricks with clay and straw, and dry them in the sun, cementing the brickwork with mud.

The Arab builders are as idle and indolent as most of their countrymen, and you may see three fellows sit at their work, whereas they get the chance.

SEED POTATOES.—A writer in the Country Gentleman maintains the doctrine that the sprouted potatoes are quite as good for planting as any other, and generally better in producing earlier crops.

ORANGE PUDDING.—Peel and slice three or four oranges, and lay in a pudding dish, with one-third cup of sugar; make a custard of one pint of milk, the yolks of three eggs, and one spoonful of corn-starch, one third cup of sugar; when cold pour over the oranges; beat the whites of three eggs and one-third cup of pulverized sugar to a stiff froth and pour over; put in the oven a few minutes to brown.

The Permanent Exhibition.

It may be interesting to many of our readers who visited the Centennial Exhibition to know the extent of the permanent Exhibition, and how it compares with its parent.

Of course, it is principally confined to the Main Building, but wherever the visitor looks he sees something to remind him of the great exhibition. Most, if not all, the foreign nations that had exhibited at the Centennial, will also have exhibits at the present exposition.

The educational department will contain several small school rooms, and two models of American school houses. They will be highly ornamented, and will form courts for the display of appliances and work illustrative of all grades and systems of public school instruction.

The display of books will be very large; nearly all the leading publishers of this country have obtained space for the exhibition of their publications. Exhibitors in the extreme north-west section, in a position at the extreme north-west section, the machinery from Machinery Hall has been located in the southwest section of the building, and the power will be transmitted across the hall to the agricultural machinery by wire cable.

A half mile of scaffolding will be assigned for the machinery in operation now entered for exhibition. In agricultural department there are some exhibits that remind you of the old Agricultural Hall—such as the old windmill, State displays of agricultural products, etc.

There will be large exhibits of birds, animals, and specimens of natural history, including those belonging to Mrs. Maxwell, the Colorado naturalist who, it will be remembered, had a large display in the Colorado building, consisting of wild animals she killed. The New England kitchen is to be rebuilt. Norway, Sweden and Denmark occupy one enclosure. China, Germany, Italy and Great Britain have all taken space. "Punch's Court" is to have a new location, perhaps thirty yards from where it stood during the Centennial.

In order to move it this short distance, under the law, it became necessary to go through the form of boxing it up, shipping to Liverpool, the transit being made to the Main Building. Glassware and pottery from all nations will be largely represented. The exhibits in all classes of manufactured goods promise to be very large.

Brazil, Switzerland, Japan and Mexico will render this portion of the building attractive by their gay courts. The latter is to be a large aquarium covering 15,000 square feet, containing salt and fresh water specimens. A department of public comfort will be provided for visitors. To warrant a success of the new exhibition, the Bureau of Managers is composed of gentlemen who had charge of the Centennial, and who have gained much valuable knowledge. The opening takes place on May 10th.

AMERICAN INVENTIVE PROGRESS.—Under the above heading, the Scientific American of May 7th has long and interestingly treated an article, from which we make the following extracts:

To show with what rapidity inventors made improvements in their inventions, the original inventor, says the writer, it may be noted that in the early days of the sewing machine the inventor, Mr. Singer, made improvements thereon in a single year; and out of the 2500 patents issued in the year 1857, 152 were for improvements in the sewing machine.

In the year 1848, three years after the publication of this paper, was commenced, but 1000 patents were granted; but under the same law, ten years later, in 1858, the number had increased sixfold, reaching 3776, while up to January 1, 1860, as already stated, the aggregate of patents issued in this country up to the time of writing, is 181,015.

And curiosity here leads us into the (editor) to review a new extension of the patent law, 170,740 patents have been issued. We find, by the original inventor, that 1022 applications were made through the Scientific American Patent Agency for Patents in the United States and abroad. This average is 1022 applications per day, Sundays excluded, over the entire period, bears the proportion of more than one quarter to the total number of patents issued in this country up to the time of writing.

BY THEIR WORKS WE SHALL KNOW THEM.—The London Standard has thought the following saying because the motto was so small, is only surpassed in his parsimonious droilery by those who persistently adhere to the use of those unmeaning, disingenuous, large and dramatic phrases, which are so prevalent in the present day. The motto is: "Pleasant Purge Pills, which are sugar-coated, and little larger than mustard seeds, will, by their steady and gentle action on the bowels, correct all torpidities, and permanently overcome constipation. In South America, they have almost entirely superseded all other pills, and are relied on fully by the people, and so forth."
