No. 258 North Ninth Birgeet, i hiladel-phia, Pa. was at work last Friday morning in a well in that place which he had been employed to clean out and wall up in the new, and af ter he had reached a denth of about fortythree feet from the surface, a large boulder, weighing a ton or more, which projected from the side of the well, about midway between the top and bottom, suddenly gave way, and falling upon the unfortunate man, rushed the life out of him, leaving him litile more than a shocking, shapeless mass of human fiesh and bones. The stone was so large that it nearly covered the bottom of the well, and as it was impossible to roll it of the body, the huge rock had to be broken to pieces with a sledge and drill before the lifeless remains of the poor victim could be reached. The deceased was aged about 25 rears, and was a married man and the father of two children. A young man named Rhodes, who with one of his brothers was assisting Mr. Kinch, their brother-in-law, at his work, was drawn up from the well only a minute or, two before the terrible mishap occurred. ### Dyspepsia! Dyspepsia! Dyspepsia!

Byspepsia is the most perplexing of all human ailments. Its symptoms are almost infinite in their variety, and the forlorn and despondent victims of the disease often fancy themselves the prey. In turn, of every known malady. This is due, in part, to the close symmathy which exists between the stomach and the brain, and in part aiso to the fact that any disturbance of the diges-tive function necessarily disorders the hyper. the tive function necessarily disorders the laver.
