GEORGE H. PENDLETON Was elected on Tuesday of last week by the Democrats of the Ohio Legislature to the United States Benate, as the successor of Stanley Matthews, whose term will expire on the 4th of March, 1879. The contest, which was a triangular oue between Mr. Pendleton, Gen. Thomas Ewing, and General George W. Morgan, was warmly fought by their respective friends, and resulted in Mr. Pendleton's nomination on the third ballot. He is so prominent a member of the Demceratic party, and is so well known throughout the country, that it is quite unnecessary to refer at length to his merits and his peeuhar qualifications for the high position. His ability is unquestioned, and his services to the Democracy of Ohio in sunshine and is storm placed them under great obligations to him. As a Sonator he will occupy a place in the foremost rank, and no State in the Union will be more ably represented in that body than Ohio with Allen G. Thurman and George H. Peudleton.

Their objective point will be the Legislature, and in order to make that a sure thing, every other consideration will be made to bend, or be brushed aside. If United States Senators were elected by a direct vote of the people, Don Cameron would be defeated by a majority of more than fifty thousand, while under the present infamous apportionment bill a Legislature may be returned that will send him back to the Senate, where he has not yet and never will give any evidence of his fitness for the place. The prize is ten votes for Cameron, Can he win is? We will see.

Men of all shades of politics may honest differ as to the most expedient and most advis-able course to be pursued toward a President toriously placed in office through fraud, sether Mr. Tilden or Mr. Hayes had been made President by the action of the Electoral ommission, the whole proceeding was new in ur history, and unknown to the Constitution. If regarded as an accompatiment of, or as a necessity caused by popular revolution, it might be defended, as Thaddeus Stevens detended Republican unconstitutional acts of Congress: not on account of their legality, but because they were expedient, and heiped the party. But the only revolution was in the Senate of the United States, the Republican majority of which threatened the country with revolution; the overtact of which was to be e proclamation, by Mr. Ferry, then President The civil war showed, amongst other things, that the people of the United States are not cowards; and that they can and will fight for heir rights. It cannot therefore he that there was a great danger staring the country in the face, when the Electoral Commission was created by Congress. The point of points, and the real, solid, historical fact, which the citizens of the United States must never forget, and the rest. and which, robed in truth, must be handed lown to all future generations of Americans, s, that the Republican party, through their leaders, who should be forever held infamous, deliberately planned that intended revolution and senstorial usurpation, and ordered the army of the whole Union to the city of Wash-

TERRIBLE MARCH THROUGH MONTA NA -Mrs. Rosa Griffith, wife of Captain D. A. Griffith, Third U. S. Infantry, Co. D. of which is commanded by Capt. James H. Gageby, of Johnstown, sends to the Reading Eagle an account of the terrible march of the regiment to their new post at Missoula, Montana. The account says:

The regiment, which had been stationed in e South for some years, was ordered to the masylvania cost region during the strike riots last summer, and was then suddenly ordered West to assist in subduing chief Joseph and his Nez Perces ladians. They went to Corinne, U. T., and from there were ordered to Montana, reveral of the companies being ordered to Hel-ena, and the balance of the regiment to the new post at Missoula. The hardships endured by the troops during the trainp of over six hundred miles were terrible. The men of the command were ill prepared, by reason of their long residence in New Orleans, for the rigors of early winter in the Rocky Mountains, and their sufferings were acutely intense. During a part of the journey they were exposed to a violent snow-storn, with the thermometer filteen de-grees below zero. Not an effect or soldier in the regiment was provided with overshoes or gloves. Not a few of the men were nearly barefooted, and added to the agony of freezing feet was the additional forture of being forced to grip the cold steel of their muskets with taked hands day after day. Ween the regiment left New Orleans there were not five doilars in possession of officers and men. The wor and children belonging to the command, in-cluding the wives and off-prings of the officers, numbered thirty-two, and transportation for these of course had to be secured at individual expense. It is said that but for the timely sid of friends, who, understanding the impreuni-ous condition of the rank and file, advanced a ittle money out of their own private mea these dependent and destitute followers of the catep must have suffered abandonment in their time of greatest need. On the march north-ward to Corinne several of the women and children fell sick under the terrible exposure, and for weeks their lives were almost despair ed of. The transportation outfit allowed the command was limited to three ambulances.
