USEFUL INFORMATION.

BUTTERMILK PIES.—One cup sugar two cups buttermilk, two eggs, two tablespoonfuls flour, two tablespoonfuls butter; flavor with lemon. This makes two pies.

AN easy and accurate way to reckon interest at 6 per cent. is to multiply by the number of days of interest desired separate the right hand figure, and devide by six.

STAIR carpets should always have three or four thicknesses of paper put under them, at or over the edge of every stair, which is the part where they first wear out.

TO PREVENT STOVES FROM RUSTING.—Kerosene applied with a rag to stoves will keep them from rusting during the summer; also, good for iron utensils on the farm.

TEN tons weighed at noon when the attraction of the sun and the earth are in opposite directions is twenty four pounds one ounce and two drachms less than at midnight when the attraction of the sun and the earth are in the same direction.

RYE sown among corn, ahead of the cultivator, at the last working of the corn will make a good crop to turn under in the spring. It will keep the ground so much drier and warmer that it can be worked earlier in the season, which is of itself an advantage, independent of its value as a manure.

TO CURE a felon take a pint of common salt soap and stir in air slacked lime till it is of the consistency of glazier's putty. Make a leather thimble, fill it with this composition and insert the finger therein, and the cure is certain. This is a domestic application that every housekeeper can obtain promptly.

CREAM BEER.—Two ounces of tartaric acid, two pounds of white sugar, the juice of half a lemon; boil five minutes, and when nearly cold, add the whites of three eggs, well beaten, one half cup of flour, one-half cup of wintergreen essence. Take a tablespoonful of this syrup to a tumblerful of water, then add one half teaspoonful of saleratus and drink at once.

Of wheat flour, one pound is a quart. Of Indian meal, one pound two ounces is a quart. Of white sugar powdered, one pound, one ounce is one quart. For liquids, sixte enlarge tablespoonfuls are half a pint; eight large table spoonfuls are one gill; four large table spoonfuls are half a gill or one wine glass; twenty five drops are equal to one teaspoonful; a common tumblerful is half a pint.

WHITEWASH THAT WILL STICK.—Whitewash that will "stick" indoor and out is made thus: Slack say one peck of lime, and while hot and at the thickness of cream, add a quart of linseed oil and a quarter pound dissolved glue. Let stand a half day before using. Rain will not wash it off, nor will it prove such a nuisance on interior walls as common whitewash. It should, of course, be thinned with water while using as ordinarily.

PAPIER MACHE articles are prepared first by pasting or glueing sheets of paper together and then submitting them to powerful measures, by which the composition acquires the hardness of board when dry. Papier mache possesses great strength and lightness. It may be made partially wate proof by the addition of sulphate of iron, quicklime and glue, or the white of an egg to the pulp, and perfectly so by japanning. Borax and phosphate of soda render it incombustible.

MOST people, in cleaning lamp chimneys, use either a brush made of bristles twisted into a wire or a rag on the point of a scissors. Both of these are bad, for without great care the wire or scissors will scratch the the glass, as a diamond does, which under the expansive power of heat soon breaks, as all scratched glass will. If you want a neat little thing that costs nothing and will save half your glass, tie a piece of soft sponge the size of your chimney to a pine stick.

HOW TO STOP RUNAWAY HORSES.—The Mexicans have a method of subduing fractious horses and such as are inclined to run away, which might be introduced with profit here. A hood or winker is so arranged that the driver or rider can in an instant draw it directly over the eyes of the animal, effectually blindfolding him. Whenever this is done the horse instantly becomes quiet, and a repetition of the blindfolding two or three times, gradually results in his becoming quiet and docile. Such an arrangement would be a valuable appendage to the head-gear of horses disposed to run away.

THE Germantown Telegraph, a reliable authority, gives the following seasonable advice: In removing the hay from the field the "rakings" should be allowed to remain, for two reasons: One is that it will not pay for the labor in gathering them up; the other that it does pay, and twice over, in being scattered over the field and acting as a mulch to the exposed roots of the stubble. It keeps the roots cool and moist and will add largely to the next year's yield of timothy or orchard grass. Many first class farmers already do this, but there are so many who do not that it may be worth while to remind them of the advantages of it.

A TINY BOOK.—A tiny volume has been found which is only seven eighths of an inch long, half an inch wide, and an eighth of an inch thick. It is called the "English Bijou Almanac," and is illustrated with portraits of notable people. The type is very small, and was probably cast especially for this and similar books, but it is perfectly legible to persons of ordinary sight. Is there any book smaller than this in the world?

Newspaper Menagerie.

The New York World of the 14th strings together the following curious anecdotes and strange freaks of nature connected with the animal kingdom:

The black cat of Pio Nano, Morello by name, is well cared for at the Vatican.

A pig has been added to the attractions of Tipton, Ia., having eight legs, two backs and one head.

A cat at Elgin, Ill., has hatched out a brood of nine chickens and is caring for them in a very motherly manner.

The mare of Mr. William Griffin, of Rushville, Ind., a few nights since gave birth to a six legged colt, which is alive and healthy.

A pig at Sandy Point, Tex., not long ago killed two negro children, an infant and a little boy of two, eating off the head of the former and an arm and a leg of the latter.

A dog in Nebraska deliberately walked in front of a railroad train, laid its head on the rail and was killed, because of its grief at the death of a child, its favorite playmate.

The chickens of Mrs. Birmingham, 111 High street, St. Louis, is two years old, nearly three feet in height and weighs 35 pounds avoirdupois. Its mother weighed only five pounds.

The Newfoundland dog of a resident of Charlton, Ia., when his master cut off his rich coat of hair, hid himself in a very secure place in a cellar, which he cannot be induced to leave.

The cat of Farmer Robinson, of Otis, Ont., being given a nest of rabbits of tender age, by way of a bonne-bouche, killed all her own kittens and accepted the rabbits in their stead.

Two marten in Lancaster, Pa., are now having taken possession of their nest, which was built in a small box, plastered up the entire front with mud and kept the intruder there a prisoner till he died.

A cat at St. Louis, having observed that all of her kittens but two were drowned, has become an advocate of natural selection, and now selects the two of her progeny that pleases her best and kills the rest to death.

The black and tan terrier of a gentleman residing on Drummond street, Montreal squeezed itself through a hole under the veranda and fell into a vault beneath, where it remained for eight or nine days without food or water.

A crow with its foot fast in the mud attracted the attention of Mr. Asa S. Greene, of Surry, Me., the other day. On a dog in the spot investigation showed that the bird was firmly held by a large clam. The crow finally escaped by losing a little toe.

A large chicken entered the hall where the Methodist Episcopal Conference were holding sessions the other day at Atlanta, Ga. The preachers made great fun by giving chase, and frequently were suspicion for a while, but the bird finally escaped under the gate.

The cow of Sir Gaspard Le Marchant, of Glen Sutton, Canada, has given birth to a creature with the body and limbs of a goat, while the head slightly resembles the human organism, having a pointed chin, three inches high. The boy is old enough to talk. The color is nearly black.

The legislative program intimes being troubled with fleas, the reward was told to get rid of them with fatigued zeal. He hunted out the dogs, cats, etc. For several days fish bags lurked in every nook, and he exclaimed to seek for them. He found them in a bed in the woods, all stuck together like stamp postage stamps.

A horse has been on exhibition in Penn Yan that has a snake in the saints name for the left eye. The reptile is perfectly formed, of a white color, and about the size of an ordinary dark hog-ne-nake. It is plainly visible, and is constantly on the move, wriggling and twisting in every direction. Its presence does not seem to annoy the horse in the least.

A dog entered the Beech street church at Paterson, N. J., a few Sundays ago, and after running around for a while, sought out the prettiest girl in the congregation and then sprang on her lap and affectionately kissed her. The girl had never seen the dog before, and her astonishment and fright may be imagined. The dog was got out of the church very soon.

A party was sent over the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad the other day. The cage, incased in paper, was put on a train and was soon forgotten. As the train men were passing through the car they heard a repletion coming issuing from the cabin, crying, "Let me out!" They were startled and thought a dead man had come to life until the bird was discovered.

The horse of Mr. Charles Burckhardt, of Cincinnati, ran away the other day, jumped over a wood sawyer at work on a pile of wood, plunged through the steamer doors of a beer saloon, ran, terrified by the noise, over a street car, leaped over a carriage, turned somewhat bruised, but otherwise safe and sound.

The dog of Mr. Job Godfrey, of Lakeville, Mass., became much disgusted when the family cat, having produced a litter of kittens, seemed to claim for receive an undue amount of attention. Reasoning that the proper thing for him to do was to get rid of those kittens, he took them out and drowned them. Seeing the family in search of the lost kittens one day, the dog's very kind y relieved their anxiety by disappearing and presently returning with a drowned kitten in his mouth.

The cat of a lady living at Lockele, Mo., recently disappeared for three days, and was finally found under the back steps of a grocery store in the neighborhood, with one fore paw bitten off and both hind-legs disabled, apparently from an injury in the gang. By his side lay a dead dog, weighing about forty five pounds, with both eyes scratched out, and the skin of his entire body torn and lacerated. It was evident that the two animals had had a deadly combat, and that the cat had proved the victor. The cat has been tenderly nursed by its mistress, and has entirely recovered.

From Blonde to Brunette.

THE PHENOMENAL CHANGE THAT WAS EFFECTED BY A BOLT OF LIGHTNING.

The Chicago Tribune of a recent date tells the following strange and "striking" story:

Seldom has the electric fluid done a more curious thing than on Saturday morning at three o'clock at the residence of H. L. Gould. Mr. Gould and his wife were occupying a bed room in the second story and Clotilde, a bright faced child of four years of age, with golden curls, occupied a double cot on the first floor in company with her grandmother, Mrs. J. J. Ames, aged about fifty years. Gould was awakened by the opening of the main flue of the chimney. The first recollection that Mr. Gould had of the situation was that he was on the floor of the bed room with his wife clinging to him and screaming. He turned on the gas, and at first glance discovered that the patches of plastering in the ceiling of his room and in the adjoining were hanging over his head, and the lighting prevailing. The shingles in the vicinity of the chimney were torn up. He then concluded that lightning had done the work. The next thought was for grandmother and his daughter Lottie, twelve. Upon arriving in their room, the little innocent, her face, head of curls, and hands black with the soot of the flue, commenced to clap her hands at the appearance of the grandmother, who was also blackened with the soot. Upon examination, Mrs. Ames was found to be in an insensible condition, and a doctor was summoned. He applied restoratives.

The child told the story of how the fire came down the chimney and kneeled herself and "grandma" from the cot to the floor. The child was then subjected to a severe bath, and then was discovered the most remarkable feature of the whole affair. The pretty curls of gears, which were of unusual length, reached almost to the child's waist, and which had been of a bright golden hue, were of a blue black or inky color from the roots to the tip. A closer examination revealed the fact that further than the last that the scalp of the head was also colored, indelibly it seemed, the same as the hair. Up to six o'clock on Yesterday afternoon, after a lapse of fifteen hours, golden locks were washed with ammonia and other solutions, every hair remained the same shade as when the change was first noticed, and so with the scalp of the head.

The physician said that the remarkable change might have been the result of electricity, but in good this he did not venture an explanation. He had heard of one or two instances like it. The vitality of the hair did not seem to be destroyed, for it was still as soft as silken tresses. The child seemed as lively as a cricket, and rather pleased than otherwise with the sudden transformation from a brunette with golden curls.

THE GLOW WORM BIRD.

In India it is said that a species of sparrow builds its nest of grasses, which it weaves very skilfully into the shape of a bottle, and suspends it firmly to the branches of a tree, with its enterance downwards, so as to secure it from the attacks of birds of prey. But the exterior of the nest is not its most wonderful peculiarity. Within, it is divided into several chambers, which, according to the popular belief, the bird is in the habit of illuminating during the night with glowworms or fire flies. The story goes that after collecting a number of these luminous insects, the bird fastens them to the inside of its nest by means of a peculiar kind of clay of a glutinous nature; and thus when the glorious sun, in whose beams it delights to spread its airy pinions, is withdrawn from the world, the bird can retire to its pendent couch, and lie rocked to sleep, basking in the mild beams of the glow worm. A gentleman who has resided many years in India, speaking of the nest of the Indian sparrow states, that taking advantage of the absence of the bird in the afternoon, he examined four of these nests, in three of which he found glow worms attached to the interior. In the fourth he found a little fresh clay attached to the side of the nest, evidently for the purpose of fastening a worm to, but no glow worm On subjecting one of these nests to a second examination on the following day, he found that the first glow-worm had been removed and a second substituted in its place. Sir William Jones endeavors to account for the presence of the glow worms in the nest by the supposition that the bird places them there for the purpose of feeding upon them. He however grants to the little feathered "Indian" various qualities which are if anything more wonderful than the above. He says that it is easily tamed and may be taught to fetch and carry like a dog. If a ring be dropped into a well the bird will, upon a given signal, dive down after it, and, seizing it before it reaches the water, bear it with apparent exultation to its master. It can also be taught to carry notes from one house to another. The young Hindoo women at Benares wear, according to Sir William, very thin plates of gold between their eyebrows and when they pass through the streets it is no uncommon for their lovers who amuse themselves with taking these birds, to send them to pluck the pieces of gold from the forehead of their mistresses and bring them a triumph to the mischievous swains.

CHINESE WINE POWDER.

A recent number of the Journal Officiel describes an extremely curious method of wine manufacture employed by those odd people, the Chinese, who make a powder or cake of what might be called the concentrated extract of wine. A little of this powder, or a pellet of the cake, dissolved in a glass of water, makes a beverage that is consumed in large quantities in China and a beverage which it is said, resembles more or less, as to flavor, the different sorts of wines or spirits. This drink is rather an alcohol than a wine properly so called and the powder of which it is composed is obtained by the pulverization either of rice or of barley or rye, or, indeed, of the three grains united (with or without the addition of aromatic or medicinal herbs), after having undergone a certain degree of fermentation.

The flour, or powder, thus obtained, is known in China under the name of kin-tsee, and when properly prepared it may be preserved for two or three years. Certain manufacturers in the Celestial Empire have a great reputation for the excellent quality of the kin tsee that they produce, and many different processes are in use for the preparation of the powder, and for improving its flavor. Rice, very carefully cleaned, is also used for making different varieties of wines, and in this particular property, that although in certain methods of manufacture much water is used, its evaporation in this case becomes perfect, and the powder is sold in a state of complete dryness.

A DAY GONE.—A noteworthy spot is Chatham Island, lying off the coast of New Zealand. It is one of the habitable points of the globe where to-day of the week changes. It is just on the line of demarcation between days. There, at high twelve Sunday morning ceases, and instantly Monday morning begins. Sunday comes into a man's house on the east side, and leaves by the western door. A man sits down to his noonday dinner on Sunday, and it is Monday noon before he finishes
