The ollowing extract very properly comes under the head of local and personal, and as such we reproduce it here, at the same time comending the first paragraph to the prayerful consideration of the editor of the Johnstown Tribune, who, judging from his tirade against the management of the Mountain House, could scarcely be assigned a front seat among "the wiser portion of the guests" on the oc-

ADULTERY EXTRAORDINARY .- It is not often in our province as a newsgatherer, says the Johnstown Tribune of the 25th, that we otne across a stranger (and it might have added a more disgusting) case than the fol-lowing, which was brought to light at Justice Cox's office yesterday afternoon :

Christian Goldner, alias John Goldner, of pper Yoder, is the name of the sweet scented adividual directly concerned. Eleven years ago he was a young man, and resided at Verona. Allegheny county. He was not a bad sort of a man, apparently, and when he began paying attentions to a widow lady residing in the village he had no trouble in Inding the way to her affections. The courtship was short, and her affections. The courtemp was snort, and the hom ymoon succeeding was one of unalley-ed happiness to two hearts that pulpitated in union. The wislow had a daughter thirteen years old at the time of her second marriage, to whom Christian, alias John, was particularly kind; and it pleased the fond mother to know that the tendrils of ber husband's affections were twined so lovingly about the heart of her child. Thus they lived for five years, or until she was surprised to find her husband absent from her side, and her daughter also gone. She wondered, but did not fear. Something unus-ual had taken them off together and she was sure they would soon return. But they didn't and for six weary years the worse than widowed links rought tidings of their whereabouts. ed buly sought tidings of their whereabouts. Some of the stories told staggered the correspondent's belief in the credibility of these unsophisticated dwellers on the mountain tops, but a description of how the porcupine steals fruit had the effect of causing him to utterly lose faith in human nature. I will now give you what are be-lieved to be the facts in the case, as elleated by leved to be the facts in the case, as elicited by an investigation made since last I wrote you. It seems that about moon on the 12th inst, the deceased and als little brother, aged prombily eight years, mounted the horse and role him to water, about one-fourth of a mile distant and near the residence of Mr. John Smith. While at the watering-place it appears they were confronted by a son of Mr. Smith, a lad of 12 years, who for some reason began hurling stones at them, one of which struck the horse and constituted. them, one of which struck the horse and caused him to jump to one side and throw the boys off the eldest of whom was trampled upon by the animal and so badly injured that he was not able to rise, much less reach home. In this con-dition he remained until a lady pussing near the spot heard his mouns and went to see what was the matter, when she found him lying promupen the ground and his little brother standing beside him and not knowing what to do. The latter she sent to tell his father, wheat the time was about a mile distant, assisting a neighbor to harvest; then picking up the injured had the lady succeeded by dint of carrying and leading in getting him home before his father reached there. Medical his was at once summoned, but the poor how's injuries was a there. Medical sid was at once summoned, but the poor boy's injuries were of such a nature that human skill was of no avail, and he died about 9 o'clock next morning. Most of the farmers are through with all their crops except oars, which is ready for the reaper. I believe I am safe in saying that Clearfield township produced more grain and hay this year than it ever produced in any two years preceding. One reason for this greatly increased yield is that farmers are giving more attention than heretofore to the clearing and cultivation of timber land, having found out that in the long run it pays the best.

CARROLLTOWN, July 30, 1878. DEAR FREEMAN I have often been told that our philanthropic bump is exceedingly well eveloped, and though I never had an opportunity to make a phremological investigation, I always took it for granted, until the last week a issue of your paper, that such was the case. For weeks we were tortured with the heat of a scorching sun, unslloyed by a single drop of rain, and ye lovers of piscatorial sports were consollingly leving place. were consollingly laying plans for the first re-freshing shower. Finally it came, but with it your unwelcome and uncharliable warning, that from Aug. 1st the "spechies" must be left alone. Some of our Carrolltown friends have not, however, been annoyed nor outdone by the class coincidense of the way warden. the close coincidence of the wet weather and the commencement of the necessary restric-tions on their sports. They made use of the tions on their sports. They made use of the last precious moments and apparently struck the tide that leads to fortune. Humbly and unpretendingly they drove out of town in a one-horse wegon, a good looking crew of them, and lookers on predicted that fish would be cheap next day. And they were right, for gossip has it that the draughts were exceedingly good and so many taken that they had toward good and so many taken that they had considerable difficulty in getting some of them home in their one borse wagon.

An accident which might but fortunately did not prove serious occurred the other day to one of our well known citizens, Mr. John Filck. WILMORE, July 21, 1878. EDITOR PREEMAN - Dear Sir: In last wook's issue of your paper I notice a communication from Chest Springs, over the initials "H. J. the Greentnek Labor party in a style which shows at once his ignorance, prejudice and distributed for truth, as well as his lack of political segmenty. While the more cumiling politicians of his party are endeavoring to conditate the Greenback-Labor element—an undertaking which they will never be able to accomplish—this self-constituted champion of the Democrathis self-constituted champion of the Democra-cy of Cembria, in the extregrance of his over-weening vanity imagines that he can, by a few strokes of his able per, annihilate the Green-back-Labor party, and thereby piace his res-cued organization under lasting obligations to him for his efforts in its behalf, and leave him free to pluck the sugar plum of legislative honors to which his ambittion aspires.

date being desirons of obtaining a nomination from the Greenback party, it is almost needless o say that all such aspirations an animously appeal in the bud by a resolution, unanimously adopted in the convention, which declared that the name of no man who was before either the the name of no man who was before either the ce would be allowed even the privilege of beor balloted for.
The charges of Communism so unceremoni-

The charges of Communism so unceremoni-ously buried at our party by your correspon-tient is a backneyed epithet which will serve to delinde no man who is really intelligent. We are not Communists. On the contrary, we would save the country from the vortex of Communism, which will be the logical result of the aggressions of the Money Power, if the people do not beed our warning in time and by beir votes place such a deplorable misfortune eyond the range of possibility. Now, I do not intend to enter into a discussion with your correspondent on this question. Had any man of ability thrown down the gaunt-let as "H. J. H." has done. I would not be slow to accept the challenge; but I will not argue the question with him. What I ask of you, as an act of courtesy, and as one of justice to courtesy, and as one of justice hundreds of your patrons who are Greenback men, in consideration of the fact that "H. J. H." has taken advantage of your leniency to calominiate our cause and its leafers, and to misrepresent our motives, is that you will give a place in your columns to a communication in which I will set forth the principles and doc-trines of the Greenback-Labor enerty, together with my own views on the issues a Yours, truly,

Of wommuhood's day thou hadst seen. The flush of the beetle was glowing Where the rose-blush of health late had been. The solstice of summer was waning,

In the morning of life, ere the senith

The harvest was swept from the plats, the bustandman hoarded his treasure—His barn filled with bright, golden grain. On the death couch thy form was reclining,-

That form now so wasted and wan: Fond friends all around the were wailing While the last selemn moments were on Butthy spirit recoiled not within thee,

Nor shrunk from Death's angel so near, For thy life had been that of a Christian, And what was there, then, thou shouldst fear?

With trust in the love of the Savier, Whose life-bleed was given for all, Thy will bow'd submissive to lieaver A fast fond adleu to the loved ones-Thy husband and children so dear?
