

THE CAMBRIA FREEMAN. EGENSBURG, PA. FRIDAY, JAN. 10, 1879.

MORTON McMICHAEL died in Philadelphia on Monday last, in the 71st year of his age. He was the able and well-known editor of the North American newspaper of that city, with which he had been identified for over thirty years.

CALEB CUSHING died at Newburyport, Massachusetts, on the first day of the month, in the 79th year of his age. He was a prominent man before the country for a long time, and filled various high and responsible positions, the last one being that of Minister to Spain.

We were not aware until the meeting of the Legislature on Tuesday last, that John Brooks had been elected to the lower house from the county of Cameron. We rejoice that such is the fact. Our readers will remember Brooks from his brilliant speech in favor of Local Option at the last session, which was subsequently published in the FREEMAN.

The Legislative machine ran smoothly, and without flaw or break on Tuesday last. The lamented absence of Robert W. Mackey, who on former similar occasions was always at his post, caused the next best man, M. S. Quay, to come up from Philadelphia, and see that the decrees of the Grand Jury, previously agreed upon, would be promptly registered by its obedient slaves in the two houses.

Last Wednesday, the 8th instant, was the sixty-fourth anniversary of General Jackson's signal and decisive victory over the British army under Pakenham at New Orleans. The event used to be celebrated throughout the country with great spirit and unbounded enthusiasm, but the days come and pass away now without attracting any special notice.

The popular sentiment in this State ever approached unanimity on any public question, it may be said to have reached that stage, or condition, in reference to the Board of Pardons, a creation of the new Constitution, but which has utterly failed to meet the laudable purposes for which it was established.

The announcement, from Washington, that William Sharon had arrived there to take his seat as a member of the Senate from Nevada suggests the question, of what possible use to the country in general, or to Nevada in particular, is Sharon in the Senate?

ROBERT W. MACKAY died at his residence in Philadelphia, on the first day of the new year, in the 42d year of his age. He was a native of Pittsburgh, and until his election in 1869 by a Republican Legislature to the office of State Treasurer, was not known as a politician outside of Allegheny county.

Grant and his Surroundings. Was it any wonder that the people should murmur at the manner in which the backs and complain of the extravagance of the public expenditures, when Gen. Grant, with a large party, and a newspaper chronicler to write up his travels and to keep him before the public as a third term candidate, and a ship of war in his disposal for months in and out of the Mediterranean, the whole expense of which was charged to the navy fund?

Grant and his Surroundings. The late General Grant, who has been elected to the Presidency by the Cincinnati Republican National convention. He went to Florida after the Presidential election in 1876, and manipulated the counting of the vote of that State, as is generally conceded, in favor of Hayes.

GEN. GRANT in his travels on the continent of Europe, having dismounted with delight to "the sweet German accent," has gone from Paris to Ireland to enjoy "the rich Irish brogue." He arrived in Dublin on Friday last, where he was received with becoming honor and with genuine Irish hospitality.

In the Senate of Maine on Friday last Alonzo Garcelon, Democrat, was elected Governor, receiving 21 votes to 10 cast for Joseph A. Smith, Greenbacker. The names of these two candidates having been previously agreed upon by the House, they were sent to the Senate, whose duty, under a most singular law of the State, required it to elect one of them.
