AN OWL'S REVENGE.

In a village in the canton of Vaud, the inhabitants of a comfortable dwelling-house discovered that a family of owls had taken up their abode under the same roof with them.

They found several young ones of extraordinary ugliness, and, according to their own account, after examining them they carefully replaced them in the nest.

The next day witnessed a new act in the little drama. The owl was speedily tried, condemned, and the suppression of the entire brood included in the sentence.
