A lew evenings ago he went into the river for the purpose of bething, and while thrusting his head under the surface of the water he thought he heard a load report. Instantly raising his head he was surprised to find matter running from one of his cars, and a little while afterward was astonished to find that his hearing had been actually restored. The only inconvenience he now finds from the occurrence is the fact that persons who have known him for years still continue to talk loud or shout at him, when in reality he hears as well as anybody else since the night he took the bath in the river.

Some time afterward the young man's mother, living in New York, heard of her son's death, called

-Perhaps the most remarkable exhi- ed from the following dispatch, dated Readbition of pluck and promptness on record was recently shown by a miner's son at Hollis, Ill. It is said that the father, Thomas Harland, lighted a slow match leading to a blast, and signaled to be drawn up the shaft. He struck a proection and was thrown back to the bottom of the shaft, where he lay with a rib broken. Realizing his father's peril young Harland slid down the seventy feet of rope, lacerating his bands terribly, but reached the bottom in time to tear the match from the fuse and prevent the explosion.

The prisoner's head was bandaged by reason of wounds inflicted by the child's father at the time of the hearing. The proof against him was complete, and a verdict of guilty was promptly rendered by the jury. Judge Peirce sentenced him to pay a fine of $8,000 and undergo separate, solitary confinement at labor in the eastern penitentiary. The sentence was received by the audience with cheers, though the prisoner pro-
