J. G. Starkey, a prominent and influential citizen of Iowa City, writes: "I have had the Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint for several years, and have used every remedy I could hear of, without any relief whatever, until I saw your Shiloh's Vitalizer advertised in our paper, and was persuaded to try it. I am happy to state that it has entirely cured me. It is certainly the best remedy I ever knew of." Price, 75 cents. Sold by R. J. Lioyn, Druggist, Ebensburg. [9-19.—e.o.w.ym.] They say that on effort will be made to under-mine the water works at present existing in Eb-ensburg. How this shall be done remains to be seen. But we imagine it will be a failure. We judge so, for several reasons, prominent amounts which is that those who are working the job are unable the stry out their plans, the work ledge too much for their capacity.

ALTOONA, PA. OBITUARY. SMITH .- Died, at the residence of her sist Mrs. Margaret Horbert, Cambria berough, on Jan. 20, 1880, Miss ANNE SMITH, agod 35 years.

The deceased was a daughter of Mr. Philip Smith, who formerly resided near Chest Springs. She was well known by many of the readers of the FREEMAN, who will peruse these lines with regret. tellectual abilities, kind and forbearing in temperament and disposition, she was by mature fitted for the position of teacher, communiting the respect and esteem alike of directors, patrons and pupils.
Bereaved of the fostering hand st a father for many years, she labored hard to fit herself for her noble calling, in order to satisfy her employers and justify herself. Her ambition in the cause of education was heightened by feeling it her duty to assist in supporting an invalid brother, greatly loved, who suffered from pamiyels for a number of years, and was entirely helploss.
Washington Lines. Washington Irving beautifully portrays the pure, uncontaminated love of a sister, but not more strikingly than the words uttered by deceased when going to take charge of her school, about the first of November last. She said: "I know that in justice to myself I am not able to teach. I am dy ing slowly. I feel that my time here is very brief but I think it my duty in gratitude to an affection at brother to assist you state. portained of the profession looks forward to see the truit of his or her labor. The writer of these few lines, at one time a tutor of deceased, is mappy to say during the short time of her playimage "she tought the good fight"—she was faithful in her mission to the end. Puring her last illness she bore her affliction with true Christian fortitude.—Fortified by the sacraments of the Catholic Church, she passeed from earth to the mansions of rest lamented by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. Her remains were on Wednesday. 28th uit, taken on mail train to Guilitzin thence unintance. Her remains were on Wednessa Sthuit., taken on mail train to Gullitzin, ther o St. Patrick's church, where the last obsequies religion were performed, and finally to the ceme-tery on Tunnelhill, where they were laid along side of those of her mother. The functal was ne-usonally large, consisting of many sympathring triends. Requireset in pace.
