

JUDGE BLACK'S reply to the plea of ex-United States Senator Howe, in defence of the third term doctrine, will be found on our first page, and will prove to be "mighty interesting reading."

WE second the motion made by the Bellefonte Watchman that if all political newspapers were as frank outspoken, and just as the Lancaster Intelligencer it would be better for political morals everywhere.

CHAIRMAN MILLER has called a meeting of the Democratic State Committee, to be held at the Monongahela House, Pittsburg, on THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1880, at 8 o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of fixing the time and place for the holding of the Democratic State Convention.

THE Secretary of the Navy, in pursuance of the joint resolution of Congress, has ordered a survey of the U. S. steam-ship Constellation, now at the Brooklyn navy yard, with a view to using her to transport contributions to Ireland, believing that it can be done cheaper by a government vessel than by chartering a ship for the purpose from private parties.

CONGRESSMAN OSWALD TURNER, of Kentucky, introduced a bill into the House, on Monday last, abolishing all tariff duty on printing type imported into the United States. If Mr. Turner succeeds in getting this repealing bill through Congress, the newspaper and book publishers throughout the country will owe him a lasting debt of gratitude. We hope and pray that the member from this district will aid in the good work.

COL. JAMES WORRALD, Harry White's convenient engineer in boosting the visionary project of tunnelling the Allegheny mountain as a passage way for the Kiskimintock and Conemaugh rivers when made navigable by slack water, has assumed a new role and is now mentioned as "an old Harrisburg Democrat" who has written to John W. Forney's paper to say that Grant is the only man who can break the solidity of the South, and for that reason he favors his nomination at Chicago. This is an opinion and is eminently characteristic of Simon Cameron's ancient friend and follower, Col. James Worsall.

THE Republicans in Indiana, unlike their brethren in Pennsylvania and New York, are determined to exercise their own judgment in the selection of a candidate for the President, and will not consent that some one who aspires to play the part of a Cameron or a Conkling in their State, shall usurp the right of doing so for them. On last Wednesday week Conventions were held in all the Congressional districts of the State to elect delegates to the Chicago Convention, and the result was the overwhelming defeat of Grant. Six of the thirteen districts Blaine delegates were elected; in six other districts no instructions were given, but the delegates are said to prefer Blaine. Sherman carried the remaining district.

IT should not accept a nomination if it were tendered, unless it should come under such circumstances as to make it an imperative duty—circumstances not likely to arise. Grant's fate is sealed, May, 1876. Well, we should say in view of the two "circumstances" that in Cameron's convention, in this State, the third term resolution was squeezed through by a majority of only 29 out of 246 votes, and in Conkling's convention last week, in New York, a similar resolution was forced through by the meagre majority of 37 out of 307 votes. The demand for four years more of Grant and his surroundings does not seem to be very imperative just now in the Keystone and Empire States.

AS an article in Friday's issue of the Johnstown Tribune on Washington and a third term, the conclusion is reached that the unwritten law against it is nothing more than a "miserable plea." This differs a little from the view taken of the unwritten law of the Republic by Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, who thought it was something far above a "miserable plea"—an example, indeed, worthy of all imitation, and to be religiously followed. So thought the Republican Convention of this State in 1876, as well as similar conventions in other States, and so thought Congress by the almost unanimous adoption of an anti-third term resolution the same year. The Tribune, however, is a Grant organ, and believing that Grant is a better and a wiser man than Washington, Jefferson or Jackson, it cannot be expected to refuse to minister to his unwholy ambition by opposing his return to power.

A BEVEREND SOUNDBREL named Clarkson Doyers, of Bridgeport, Conn., has lately published a statement that two nights before the second battle of Bull Run he saw General Fitz John Porter in conversation with three Confederate Generals, one of whom was Robert E. Lee, and that Porter told him (Doyers) to say nothing about it at the peril of his life. It will be observed that in this transparent lie Doyers takes good care that when he tells it Lee is dead, and as dead men cannot talk, a contradiction from him is impossible. A man named C. Messell, of New Haven, came out, however, on Monday last with a statement in which he says that about seven years ago he heard Doyers tell a similar story, except that he then said it was General McDowell instead of General Porter he had caught in conference with rebel officers. As a bill is now before Congress in relation to Fitz John Porter's case and the finding of the military court eighteen years ago, when he was made a victim to cover up the blunders and ineptness of Gen. John Pope, this wonderful revelation of Rev. Clarkson Doyers will be seized hold of by such of the Republican papers as are not ashamed of it to prejudice Porter's appeal for justice. For all that, however, it is simply the old story of the viper gnawing at its tail.

JUSTICE TO IRELAND.

The Chairman of the Democratic State Committee has a pretty hard time of it. Constant complaints were made against him in some quarters for his delay in calling the Committee together to fix upon the time and place of holding the State Convention, and now that he has performed that duty just when it was proper for him to do so, he is stoutly belabored for appointing the meeting of the Committee at Pittsburg, in the extreme western part of the State. It does seem a trait strong on Mr. Miller's part to compel the members of his Committee who reside in Hendrick B. Wright's bailiwick and David Wilmont's old stamping ground to travel all the way to Pittsburg to determine such a small matter as the time and place of holding the State Convention. It was simply a question as to whether Mahomet should go to the mountain or the mountain should go to Mahomet, and the Chairman decided in favor of the mountain being put on the move. If all Democratic State Conventions, and all meetings of the State Committee, were held at Harrisburg, as they ought to be, and as they invariably were up to about 1860, all ground for complaint would be removed and no imputation of improper motives would be attributed to the Chairman, as is now being done against Mr. Miller. If he has any "firing-line" to play, as we have seen intimated, in assembling the Committee at Pittsburg, he will most likely meet with a rebuff. But, although Mr. Miller ought not to have put the members of the Committee to the trouble and expense of going to Pittsburg, we are unwilling to believe that he was actuated by any sinister purpose until we have some better evidence than mere assertion for the fact.

The New York Republican State Convention, which met at Utica on Wednesday of last week, was run pretty much in the same groove as the convention in this State was run by Cameron. In the mode of selecting delegates to Chicago there was this difference, however, that while a committee with one of Cameron's tools at its head reported to his convention the names of the delegates from the different districts, and the convention afterwards instructed them to vote as a unit for Grant, Mr. Conkling permitted the delegates from each district to name the two delegates from that district to Chicago, and then instructed them for Grant without enforcing the unit rule. The friends of Blaine, though under the most inefficient leadership, developed very remarkable strength, the vote on the instructing resolution showing 217 votes for Grant and 189 for Blaine, or a majority of only 37. It is claimed that about twenty-five of the delegates prefer Blaine, but whether they will bolt Grant at Chicago remains to be seen. Conkling was a delegate to the convention and made a strong Grant speech, which was the only thing, it is said, that saved the Grant crowd from a defeat. One of the incidents of the proceedings was when a motion was made that if Grant should not be nominated, the delegates be instructed to vote for Blaine, which brought Conkling to his feet with a motion to lay that motion on the table. This was done, and as revenge is said to be sweet, Conkling paid Blaine a small installment of the debt he has owed him for fourteen years.

The profits from the operation of the Empire Line since the purchase of the property in October, 1877, have been sufficient in addition to paying the interest upon its cost to redeem $95,000 of the $200,000 of first mortgage certificates issued in payment of the same, and leave a net surplus of $276,262.29. A comparison of the net earnings of all lines east of Pittsburg and Erie for the year 1878 and 1879, shows a gain of $247,975.01. The tonnage shows a gain of $7,848,995 tons. The net profit of the leased lines west of Pittsburg was $1,082,326.12, showing a gain for 1879 of $308,643.

A summary of the lines directly operated east and west of Pittsburg shows the following: Gross earnings, all lines, from 1878, $1,797,926.07; 1879, $3,428,962.93; increase, $1,631,036.86. Gross expenses, excluding rentals, dividends, etc., 1878, $1,353,670.99; 1879, $2,931,011.07; increase, $2,028,760.90. Showing net earnings, 1878, $244,227.78; 1879, $1,497,951.84; increase, $1,253,724.06. The total number of passengers carried east and west of Pittsburg for the year was 21,893,966.

LYNCHING OF A NEGRO FRIEND.—On Saturday last a one-eyed negro, Louis Kings, was brutally murdered by a white woman named Byrd, residing near George's Station, Colleton county, S. C. Kings was captured about 4 miles from the station, and taken to the scene of outrage and had him identified by the woman. The posse, by vote, decided not to lynch Kings, who was then placed in the county house at George's Station. Monday morning he was conveyed to Waterbury jail under a strong guard. On the way the guard were overpowered by an armed force consisting largely of friends of the outraged woman, and conveyed Kings to a secluded spot in the woods. About 9 o'clock Monday night he was again confronted with the woman, and again identified. He was then taken to the woods and prepared to be hanged. At the last moment he acknowledged having committed the outrage, and confessed to having bought a colored woman in Newbury six years ago, to kill her and marry the Kings' free last April to four burglaries, and to innumerable thefts. At half-past 11 he was hanged, after which the crowd fired a volley of pistol shots into his body, and then dispersed.

Clon Farr lives in Morgantown, N. C., and has won renown as a pole climber. In 1844 he climbed a sixty feet pole at a Henry Clay mass meeting, and from its top waved the banner of Harry Lee, a large flag of more or less size. He climbed a Seymour pole and took a drink sixty feet from the ground. Neither of these achievements seemed to work to the advantage of the candidates whose cause he espoused.
