THE OLD PRINTER.

A printer stood at his case one night, In his office dark and drear, And his weary sight was dim as the light Of the mouldy lamp hung near;

The wild wintry winds were howling without, And the snow falling thick and fast, But the printer, I trow, shook his locks of snow, And laughed at the shricking blast; He watched the hands of the clock creep round, Keeping time with its snail-like tick.

As he gathered the type, with a weary click, In his old, rust-eaten stick His hairs were as white as the falling enow,

And silently, day by day, He beheld them with grief, like the autumn leaf, One by one, "passing away." Time had out with his plow furrows deep in his

His sheek was fevered and thin, And his long Roman nose could almost repose Its bead on his gray-bearded chin; And with fingers long, as the hours stole on, Keeping time with the clock's dull tick, He gathered the type, with a weary click, in his old, rust-eaten stick.

For many long years, thro' joys and thro' tears, That old printer's time-battered face, So ghostly and lean, night and morn has been Been.
