wise : The English mail of yesterday brought the full text of the decision, delivered two weeks ago to-day in the House of Lords, by which the sum of £850, 000 (54,250,000), which is now lying in the Bank of England, as the proceeds of bunds sold for the pur-pose of constructing the Madeira and Mamore Eadroad, was ordered to be divided among the bondholders. It will be remembered that last summer a similar decision was given in a lower Courts-the Court of Append. At that time Lord Justice James based his action upon the ground that the construction of the Madeira and Mamore Railroad, with which the Madeira and Mamore Railroad with which the Masters. Colling were at that time proceeding) was utterly impracticable.

that its promoters "polluted the temple of justice by their presence." The decision of the Honse of Lerdz, however, while it returns the money to the bondholders, is based upon entirety different grounds to these ad-vanced by Lord Instice James. The Lord Chan-cellor, who delivered the final judgment, said in effect that the concession of the Bolivian Govern-ment to the National Bolivian Navigation Com-pary stipulated that the railroad should be com-pleted within two years. This stipulation was not compiled with, and, the Republic having with-drawn its concession to the company, the bond-holders have a right to demand that the money should be returned. "It has been said," continued his Lordship, "that the Brazilian Government is prepared to make such concession as would enable the work to proceed, but we have not sufficient ev-idence of this fact before us to Law it into account in arriving at a decision."

After expressions of opinion by the Judges, all the law lords in Stiendance at the seasion, vir., the Lord Chancellor, Lords Hatheriy, Penzmos, O'Ha-ran and Selborne, wited in favor of dividing the fund among the benchhilders. The London Times, in a lengthy leader on the day after the decision, also went back on its own record by admitting that the construction of the railroad was leasible, although it had previously denied this fact expin and again. Said the Times "There is no doubt that a railroad could be innide from Son Antonio to the Bolivian frontier, although and any and invest friendly.
