Adrian (Mich.) Press says:

As an instance of Hancock's broad, generous sympathy, and his devotion to the interests of his soldiers, we mention the case of a soldiers who now resides in this city, who was known for his courage and rimel. We refer to Judeon Beach, who, at the battle of Gettysburg, had been observed with the heat, and was left by his companions under a tree to care for himself. He was utterly prestrate and unable to move, and found death starting him in the face. Gen. Hancock and staff eather gallipping by, and as the gallant commander saw the prestrate soldier under the tree, he reined in his herse and asked what alled him. Beach was madife to reply except with a grean. Hancock leaped from his herse, and, kneeling down by the soldier, soon learned what was the trouble, He at other produced a flask of liquor and a canteep of water, and, after giving him a drink, proceeded in water, and, after giving him a drink, proceeded in which he own hands to bathe Beach's face and head, and successful in off the field.

The following extract relating to the Jew less bravery and high soldierly qualities of General Hancock at the decisive battle of Gettysburg, is taken from a sketch of his life written by Gen. James S. Brishin and published in the Philadelphia Times a short time before the meeting of the Cincinnati convention :

"Hancock was grand and magnificent in the last to feel of Gettysburg and seemed the very incarnation i war. On the second day be was at Cometery leights during the frightful seemonade when the chels someontrated the fire of our hundred subtity gums on our lines. WHO WEST TO THE WAR. -General Mc-Mahon, of New York, during a recent conversation stated :

"The claim that the Republican party restored the Union, is an immit to the people of the United States, who did that work irrespective or party. Any decent American would have been ashmed of his country it, in 1861, when the hag was fired on at Sumpter, there had been division upon party lines. You and I knew that there was no such division, but that the people rose simultaneously as much as a processor. of the listory of the rebellion. The same is true of the rank and me of the Union serm. In States like Vermont—a Republican State—the soldiers enlisted were chiefly liepublicans, and it is but fair to say that Vermont contributed is larger proportion of har population than any other State in the Union. Her soldiers, bowever, wont to the front the Bemostralic States of the North were much larger in population, and so it imposed, sat have said, that so great a proportion of the men composing our armies who first rose to save the Union.

HOW TO GET almost Everything.

Do you know how to ge in the easiest way and to bea advantage what you want for dress and house-furnishing

First, how: Write for a catalogue; see what you can learn from it about the things you want. If samples can be useful to you, ask for them and state your wants so plainly that exactly the right samples can be sent.

Second, where: The place where goods are kept in the greatest variety; where they are sold for what they really are in respect to quality where prices are lowest. where most care is taken to serve customers accentably; and where you have the right to return whatever is not satisfactory.

There-no matter where you are-if you make your wants known and avail your. self of your privileges, you will get the best things in the best way, promptly and without trouble or risk; sometimes by mail, sometimes by express, almost always at less cost for carriage than the money you save in the price.

HOW TO GET Clothing under Price.

If we could sell a little more of this and a little less of that, we could make things come out even-the last man that came in would carry off the last suit; but we can't. Out of every stock there are a great many. sizes left when some are gone. The best we can do with these incomplete assortments is to mark them low enough to set a great many people looking among them for bargains. This we do every day at this time of year; and just now we have enough of such to stock a little store.

Besides, odd parts of suits get left-coats, vests and trousers. We have a room in which there is nothing else. There is in that room cheaper clothing than you have any notion of. We call it the Bargain-Room.

These marked-down suits and garments are of all sorts; they may be among the best in the store. We force a continual clear-
