LAYING THE CORNER STONE. - The corner stone of our new Court House was laid Tuesday afternoon, at the hour of 2 o'clock. In it was deposited a memorial, written on parchment, whereof the following is a copy: State of Pennsulvania, County of Cambria, sv.

The Court House of Cambria county, which was creeted in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and thirty-one, was reported as unfit for Court and office purposes by the Grand Jury of December Sessions, 1879, and that report was confirmed by the Grand Jury of March Sessions, 1839. Whereupon the Court approved of the return of the Grand Jury and ordered the Countistoners of Cambria county to proceed to the erection of a new and sultable building for a Court House. The Board of County Commissioners selected the site and secured the services of M. E. Beebe, of Buffalo, N. Y., to formish plans and specifications and to superintend the crection of said structure. A public letting was had June 10, 1880, when the contract for crocking the building was awarded to Henry Shenk, Esq., of Erie, Pa., for the sum of $79,800, he being the lowest and best bidder. The contract was afterward amended so as to include everything necessary for the completion and furnishing of the same, including steam heating apparatus, plumbing and gas fitting, furniture, clock, etc., for the additional sum of $17,700. The work of building commenced June 14, 1880. Size of building—118 feet in length, 79 feet in width, 150 feet in height; constructed of pressed brick, and trimmed and faced with Ohle stone. June 19, 1880, the Board of County Commissioners negotiated the town of $60,000 with the Johnstown Savings Bank for the section of the Court House, at the rate of $61, etc., per annum, for which amount bonds were traned redeemable within ten years. Two Mishaps in Succession: -Less than a month ago we noted the fact that Master Herman Crouse, eldest son of Mr. H. J. Crouse, of this place, had a goodly portion of in the cog wheels of a washing machine, and now we have something of a similar nature, though rather more serious, to record of the same youth. It seems that shortly before noon on Saturday last young Crouse attempted to pull a shingle from a large pile of old shingles which had been torn from the roof of the Ebensburg Foundry, which is now being replaced for the most part by a ter's chisel, a two inch auger, and various it not only brought down a great many more hingles than our young friend had any immediate use for, but what was still worse, it likewise brought down the chisel and auger, the first named of which implements struck him point foremost on the upper lip, cutting its way clear through the flesh and knocking the eye-tooth considerably out of plumb. The auger meantime get in its work on his head, but the would inflicted is not of a serions nature. The cut in the lip, however, proved to be anything but a trivial affair, though the prompt arrival of Dr. Griffith, who was immediately summoned and suc-ceeded in stopping the flow of blood and binding the severed parts together by the ap-plication of sticking plaster, served for the time being to repair damages to some extent. After this everything went well until about 9 o'clock Tuesday forenoon, when the wound began bleeding a second time, an artery hav-ing been severed, and had it not been for the skill and untiring efforts of the doctor, who was again sent for after several attempts had been made with only partial success to stop the hemorrhage, the probabilities are that the unfortunate youth would have bled to death. As it is, he has been greatly weakened by the loss of blood, and is not yet considered entirely out of danger, though there is good reason to believe that the crisis is past and the wound in a fair way to heal. COMMENICATION.

Gallerery, Pa., May, 1881. Entron Franks n—In every class of society peo-de hold certain relations to each other which make ill participate more or less in the joys and sorrows fills. By this existing relation all are mutually of life. By this existing relation all are mutually benefitted to a certain existat. It is a well known fact that when fortune favors us it is a source of pleasure to have our neighbors rejoice with us in our good luck. Should fortune frown, how glad we are to have their sympathy and to hear them whisper words of consolution in our ear.

The child is delighted in the companionship of its equal, and how pleasantly children enjoy each other source. It is wore possible for me to describe even a foretaste of the joys of heaven, the hest illustration I could give would be a group of innocent children enjoying case others, all is peace, joy, mirth and unalloyed pleasure and happiness. If we reflect for a moment and consider the cause of their happiness, we will find that it is attributable to the relation they bear to each other, each being a similar element of the entire company.

When approaching manbood how natural it is for young men to form groups or societies for mutual enjoyment, each contributing his mite for the deasure of all!

Married folks also rank as a class in society, and Married folks also rank as a class in society, and how pleasant are their associations! Frequently you find husbands and their wives visiting at a neighbor's, spending the evening in sociable conversation, and for the time being the mind is relieved from the burden of care with which it was oppressed. The time passes in agreeable converse, a hearty laugh is enjoyed, the mind is refreshed, the body strengthened, as it were good feeling is promoted, and it becomes easy to obey the command to "love our neighbor as ourselves," the characteristic of a Christian being inculcated,—There is nothing affords more real pleasure than to live in peace and harmony with our neighbors. Without intercourse with others we naturally become morose and meiancholy. Life censes to have any pleasures for us, and we are not only despised by our neighbors, but branded as a churl. With these preliminary remarks, I proceed with my subject:

THE WIDOWER. It will be observed, however, that the party of whose I speak has airendy passed through the different grades of society already minded to, and therefore has a right to know something of their

The loss of a companion, in the opinion of the writer, is the greatest misforture, in a worldly point of view, that a lumbend is called upon to bear. After taking to himself a wife, whom he bear. After taking to himself a wife, whom he promises to love, support and cherish until death shall them part, the true husband finds the toils of life an ever recurring pleasure in trying to fulfil the promises he has made. Should betune favor him, he enjoys it with his companion: if the crosses of infstortune overtake him, he has the consolution of a dear friend to assist in bearing the burden. He leefs it his duty to do his best for her comfort, and with reactive denergy he juits his shoulder to the wheel. "and is never discouraged. The wifewer, after seeing the grave closed upon her whom he loved most dearly, returns home with a sad and broken heart. Home did I say? No, for him there is no such spot on earth. He only returns to his habitation, with no one there to welcome him, no smile to meet him, no kind voice to whisper a word of consciution. Cast your eyes in whatever direction or go whithersoever you may. to whisper z word of consolution. Cast your eyes in whatever direction or go whithersoever you may, there you will find the handlwork of her whose remains you followed to the stient grave, and each glance sends a fresh dagger to pierre the already proken heart. Those objects which heredolore gave delight and pleasure have now no joys for him. Knowing not where to turn for consolution, and seeing his beloved orphans around him too young to realize what they have lost, the disconsolate widower einks under the heavy weight of sorrow, and losing control of himself gives way to copious tears which for a time afford relief to his crushed spirit.

Reflecting upon his zituation, and trying to find some consolution in believing that it was the will of Previdence, who doeth all things well, he humbly bows to the decree.

A double duty is now imposed upon him—that of Previdence, who doeth all things well, he humbly bows to the decree.

A double duty is now imposed upon him—that of a father, as well as that of a mother in instructing and ministering to the wants of the orphans who have been deprived of a mother's care, counsel and example.

The welfare of his children is his paramount object. What is the best plan for him to adopt in order to tear them property? He consults his friends, and they advise him to re-marry. Yes, that he might do, perhaps, but if he did would he get a mother for his children? is the question that suggests itself. He worries himself thinking about what is the best course for him to pursue, time passes, he sees his children growing up around him, but without proper culture and instruction, ethics being foreign to them. Can he expect to see them good and virtuous knowing and practicing their duties to God and society, when it was not instilled into their youthful minds by the early training and example of a pions Christian mather? How can the widower be contented or happy with anch thoughts constantly travelers area. ous Christian mother? How can the widower be contented or happy with such thoughts constantly preying upon his mind? His expenses increase, yet the comforts of life are not enjoyed as formerly in his family. He sees his homsehold affairs gradually going to ruin for want of a skillful housewife. Neighbors that formerly visited him seldon, if ever, think of him. The wife that at one time velerated them. time welcomed them is not there to meet the with a pleasant greeting. The attractions of a der times is lost to them forever. Meantime to ider times is lest to them forever. Meantime the wildower is rick and heavy of heart. He thinks that a visit to former friends, with whom he spent his happiest hours, would revive his drooping spirit; but, alas? he finds by experience that there is no pleasure to be found even among them. The happy times gone by are still fresh in his memory, and he returns as sad as when he departed. Should be dare to mingle in the society of the opposite sex, he at once becomes a target far gossiping tougues. His rank is not with the married, neithor is it with the single. His greatest aspirations are for the welfare of the little married, neither is it with the single. His greatest aspirations are for the wolfare of the little ones now solely entrusted to his care and with what solicitude he broods over their welfare, fearing that they in an cell hour may fall a prey to the destroyer. Can it be wondered at if the sociability and mieth that in former days characterized the now disconsolate widower is no more a frait in his sharacter?

When he sees hughands spending their time in drankenness and debauchery, while their wives are at home weeping and their children are deprived of the necessaries of life, he thinks to himself, Ohlyon cruel and unfortunate wretches! You know not what trouble you are preparing for yourselves. By your prefligacy, cruelty and heglest you are sending your wives to premature graves and carning for yourselves a place among those who experience few indeed of the joys and cemforts of this life—the widowers.

Husbands, endeaver to the best of your ability to fulfil the promise you made at the hymencal alfar, lest when too late you grieve for her whom by your indiscretion you may have sent to an untimely grave.

THE HEROIC DEAD .- Decoration day was served in a half-spirited sort of way by the people of Ebensburg and vicinity. It is true that our local military organization (Co. A. Fifth Regiment) turned out and fired a vol ey over the graves of our dead heroes, twin memories, and laying gariands of flowers on their last resting places. But it is a fact far from commendable that no civilians of mae age marched in the procession, nor in any other manner, not even so much as by closing their places of business, gave evi-dence of their realization of a never-to-be cancelled debt which is due to our dead soliers. This is so manifestly at variance with the promptings of patriotism that we refrain from making any further remarks on the subject, trusting that next year a fuller and freer spirit of fraternity may exist betwixt the soldiers and the citizens. We present below a list of those whose graves were visited and decorated on the occasion :

tted and decorated on the occasion:

Lloyd's Cemetery.—John O. Evans, Geo. W. Davis, Wm. R. Humphreys, David H. Evans, Griffith Evans, Capt. C. H. Heyer, Lieut. Evan R. Davis, Adam Shinafeli. David Powell, Thomas fodd, Peter L. Linton, Joe. Henderson!— Libby, Edward Evans, Lieut. Samuel Henry, Liout. Hugh Jones, William R. Roberts, James Roberts, Thomas J. Evans, William Mills, Wm. D. Davis, David T. Jones, Thomas J. Lloyd, Jeremiah Evans, Thomas B. Moure, B. G. Williams, Jase, A. Littlefield, Thomas E. Evans, David I. Evans, David S. Jones, Congregational Cemetery.—Maj. George W. Todd, Thomas O. Evans, Allton Roberts, Richard R. David Evans, Edward Davis, Cotholic Cemetery.—Stephen Chase, Thomas D. Litzlinger, Andrew J. Litzlinger, Capt. James Murray, Rev. R. C. Christy, Jeremiah Fagan, Andrew Weible, John Lambaugh, James Litzinger, J. M. Eddieblute, Adj. James C. Noon.

ROSE COLD AND HAY FEVER .- Being serlously troublen with Hay Fever and Rose Cold, I (at the solicitation of a friend) tried Ely's Cream Balm and was surprised in obtaining almost immediate relief. I heartily indorse and earnestly recommend it to all similarly affiicted. W. P. Andrus, Drug-gist, Metuchen, N. J., August 20, 1879.

FOR HAY FEVER I recommend Ely's Cream Baim. It entirely relieved me from the first application; have been a sufferer for ten years. Going from home and ne-glecting to take the remedy, I had an attack; after returning I immediately resorted to it, and found instant relief. I believe, had I begun its use earlier, I should not have been troubled. Have stood heat, dust and draughts as well as during other months.— J. COLLYER, Clerk, 118 Broad street, Elizabeth, N. J. THE BOSS GRAIN CRADLE. & HEAP!

HARVEST IS COMING! AND NO ONE CAN AFFORD TO DO WITHOUT A GOOD CRADLE

. THE above "cut" represents the BEST in the market. It is made of well reasoned wood on scientific principles, and is adjustible in all its parts, so that it can be easily and readily changed to cut any kind of grain. The fingers are all morable and the manner of fastening will be found a great improvement over the old method. Each applie is hung correct, care being taken that none are point around. The fined of the crythe is not buried in the end of the smath, but being morable it can be adjusted for either light or heavy grain. For Easy EUNXING, ODGO, CLEAR CUTTING, and SYMMETHICAL SWATH LAYING, the BONS CRADLE cannot be excelled.

Exting, the Bonn CRADLE cannot be excelled.

This celebrated Cradle was formerly known as the "Miller Cradle," but for the fast facty years it has been manufactured by Philip McGuire, father of the understand, and of late years by the understance himself, it has been greatly improved and simplied, and is a much better implement than the old "Miller Cradle." An imitation is being manufactured, but a comparison will show farmers and dealers that "The Bonn" is by far the best. None genuine unless at NANE is stained upon the smath. Any person selling any other make in the name of the Miller or McGuire Cradle will be dealt with according to law.

SEE "THE BOSS CRADLE!" And be convinced that it is the BEST AND CHEAPEST IN THE MARKET BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!

All persons desiring to have their old cradles repaired should send them in immediately, as it will be impossible to accommodate them if they neglect the matter until within a few days of harvest

By the tener of the foregoing, it will be observed that it ought to have been printed a couple of E. F. Kunkel's Worms, worms.

E. F. Kunkel's Worm Syrup never fails to destroy Fin. Seat. Thread, Round and Stomach Worms. The Round Worm (Ascares Lumbricoldes), is a species more commonly met with. It is of cylindrical form pointied at both ends, from six to hine, or even eighteen inches in length, and of the thickness of a goose quilt, thus resembling somewhat the common earth-worm. Its body, however, is half-transparent, and of a whitish, yellowish, or even a browhish hue. They are of both sexes and the lemnles more numerous than males. This worm principally inhabits the small intestines, but it is not unfrequently found in the stomach, and from thence semestimes mounts along up the assophagus into the throat and mouth, or nose. Attacks of violent, incessant, spasimedic cough are often produced by the attempted passage of a worm into the pharyax. Symytoms—occasional conditions into the pharyax. Symytoms—occasional conditions in the abdomen, enlarged or hard, prominent abdomen, nursous diarrhes, occasional conditions, irregular or capricious appetite. There are also at times sympathetic symptoms, such as itching of the nose or anus, or gloitals, increased flow of saliva, restless sleep with startling, or grating of the teeth. Besides the above, more decided semitoms indicating the By the tener of the foregoing, it will be observed that it eught to have been printed a couple of works ago, for not only Spring, but red hot Summer, has come, and ice-cream for the average maiden is a necessity.
