A GRANGER OUTWITTED --- Oil sharps from Pittsburgh a few Jays ago called on Samuel Fisher, a farmer living near Pleasant Unity, and asked him if he would take $200 an acre for his farm and give possession the next morning. After a good deal of talk he agreed to part with a portion of his farm, which has on it some valuable quarries and coal in abundance on certain portions of it. They agreed upon the number of acres he would sell and give possession of the followng morning-he, however, making a proviso that he should retain the house. The papers were signed, and soon after the Pittsburgh capitalist selected all the land with the line coal under it. They took the land in front and rear of his house as well as that on both | right from wrong. sides. They also left him a corner here and there and a patch occasionally that was of no earthly use to them, but that he could not land, and is unable to use his house without their permission to cross their land. It may be that the rules of the compan do not demand a medical examination of th ondition of the applicant for insurance, but whether they do or not we are inclined to think that the examination was altogether superficial in this instance, and that the medical gentleman with whose name comm or has been busy in this connection could if he really had any part in the transaction, explain the matter to the satisfaction of his many friends. Be this as it may, however, K. became convinced before his death that the transaction was a base fraud, and under this conviction he surrendered the not icy into the hands of his spiritual adviser, who has probably ere this made all the effort possible to prevent the final consummation of the villainous venture. As to the disposition made of the other policies we are of course ignorant, but if the camblers in a human life which they knew to a certainty was fast ebbing away have a spark of shame in their compositions, neither of the noticles will ever se presented for payment, and those who are insured in the company will escape being swindled out of the money necessary to meet a demand which would be even worse that downright robbery, provided of course that the speculators have full possession of their mental faculties and are able to distinguish

On the 17th of July, just one calendar month from the date of the policies, the mor-tal remains of Mr. Kittell were hid to rest. In this fact—the fact that his sands of life were so nearly run out that but a very few assessments could in the nature of things a made on the policies--it is to be four the secret of the interest manifested by these shameless swindlers in Mr. Kittell and fami ly. For an outlay of a few dollars they were to pocket thousands. Speculative life insurance is a fraud of so pronouned a type, and has became so great an evil in some pe tions of this State that an effort was made to have it suppressed by the Legislature last winter. But, of course, that immaculate body pursued its usual course in regard to such matters, and refused to place on the infamy its seal of condemnation. An old man named Raber, of Lebanon county, was, it will be remembered, insured by speculaof Mr. James Noci, opposite Munster station, on the Ebensburg and Cresson railroad. The tors on this co-operative plan, in companies for $35,000, but as he insisted on living too long, he was finally decoyed to a stream of water, thrown in and drowned, Five of the speculators were subs hanged for participation in the crime

A correspondent of the New York Under-writer recently paid a visit to several counties where co-operative insurance flourishes, and we give a few extracts from a letter embody ing his observation :

Selipsgrove, in Snyder county, enjoys the un enviable notoriety of being known as the "hot bed d speculative co-operative insurance. Here the age for insuring aged and decrept people and raging policies first became conspicuous. Seling-grove is a little village of less than fitteen hun-dred inhetitants, but it has given birth to no less than six co-operative concerns, all at present in a

A FOOL ONCE MORE .- "For ten years my wife was confined to her bed with such a complication of ailments that no doctor and very lively flea in their ears, so to speak. could tell what was the matter or cure her, and I used up a small fortune in humbug stuff. Six months ago I saw a U. S. flar my folly proved to be wisdom. Two bottles tured her, she is now as well and strong as any man's wife, and it cost me only two dol-lars. Such folly pays.—H. ..... A you's girl of Chest Springs who lived with a family of this place in the capacity of domestic paid a Fourth of July visit to her home, leaving here on the 2d, with the inten-tion of returning on the 5th. She has not returned. On Monday of the present week Moreland was standing directly under it at-the time, and the full weight of the stick struck him, crushing him to the earth. He was rendered insensible by the concussion, two young gentlemen of Chest Springs came to town, and, being intimate acquaintances of the girl, called to see her. They stated that she had taken passage on the appointed day for Ebensburg, and their astonishment that she had not arrived was great. She has not since been seen in Chest Springs, they said. There is a mystery in all this, but we do not insist that a tragedy will be wered though the fact that the girl left behind her here all her clothing excepting the suit she wore, and has been gone nearly three weeks, certainly looks suspicious, to say the least.

IMPROVEMENT FOR MIND AND BODY.-The small-pox scourge has invaded Chest Springs, this county, much to the horror and strength, restoring power than a bushel of mait or a gallon of pure milk. As an ap-petizer, blood purifier and kidney corrector, it meets with astonishing success, and in-valids find its use promptly followed hy m physical improvement, and gradual restora-tion to perfect health.
