SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.

HUMAN BEINGS CONSUMED BY THE GASES OF THEIR OWN BODIES.

Spontaneous combustion of the human body has been, and still is, as much of a question of affirmation and negation as that of the existence of persons of double sex, but in poring over some ancient and modern medical works, compiled by physicians of high standing and of undoubted veracity, the writer has found so many well authenticated cases of spontaneous combustion, that he has selected a few to present to the readers of the Engineer.

As to the cause of this remarkable phenemenon various opinions have been promulgated. A large number of medical authorities suppose that there is an alcoholic impregnation of the body, and that the actual contact of fire is necessary to produce it. To this it is replied that in certain cases that have occurred, there was no proof of such saturation of the tissues, and if it were so it would not render the body combustible. Others refer the combustion to the agency of the electric fluid. This theory supposes that inflammable gases may accumulate in the cellular tissue, and in a system charged with idio-electricity the slightest inflammable substance may commence the combustion. The gas is said to be hydrogen and its compounds, and this explains why water often fails to extinguish fire, and also why combustible substances contiguous are so seldom injured, the heat required for and produced by its combustion being low. It is indeed singular that in all the known cases of spontaneous combustion the fire has not caught surrounding objects, but has ceased with the victim of internal conflagration.

Fontenelle, a celebrated writer on this subject, affirms his belief that it is owing to an internal decomposition and the formation of new products which are highly inflammable, such as phosphorate hydrogen. A dissection by Dr. Aally is corroborative of this opinion. He attended a case of typhus, and after death gas was found in large quantities in the body. This gas, from whatever part it was extricated by puncture, took fire on bringing a lighted candle to it, and burnt with a blue flame. The existence of oil in the serum of the blood of intemperate people is also supposed to conduce to the combustibility of the system. Most of the individuals thus strangely consumed had for a long time made an immoderate use of spirituous liquors. They were either very fat or very lean. The combustion occurred accidently, and often from a very slight cause, such as a candle, a coal, or even a spark. It proceeds in most cases with great rapidity, usually consuming the entire trunk, while the extremities, as the feet and the hands, were occasionally left uninjured. Water, instead of extinguishing the flames which proceed from the parts on fire, sometimes gave them more activity. The combustion of the bodies left as a residuum, fat, fetid ashes, with an unctuous and very penetrating soot. The combustions have occurred at all seasons, the most frequently in winter, and in northern as well as southern countries.

The most widely known case of spontaneous combustion is that of the Countess Cornelia Bandi, of Cesena, Italy. She was aged sixty-two and in good health at the time of her singular and unexpected death. She was in the habit of bathing in camphorated spirits of wine. One evening she felt drowsy, and her maid remained with her until she fell asleep in bed. The next morning when the girl came to call her she found nothing but the remains of her body in the most horrible condition. At the distance of four feet from the bed was a heap of ashes, in which the arms and legs were almost untouched. Between the legs lay the head. The brain, together with the posterior part of the cranium and the whole chin, had been consumed. Three fingers were found in a state of coal, and the body was reduced to ashes, which, when touched, left on the fingers a fat, fetid moisture. A small lamp which stood on the floor was covered with ashes, but contained no oil. The tallow of two candles were melted on a table, but the wick still remained, and the feet of the candlesticks were covered with moisture. The bed was not deranged. The bedclothes were raised up and thrown to one side, as in the case when a person gets up. The furniture and tapestry were covered with a moist kind of a soot, the color of ashes, which had even penetrated into closed drawers and soiled the linen they contained. No noise occurred in the night, and the combustion must have been very rapid. The case occurred in 1763.

Bertholi, a priest, lived in Italy in 1776. He traveled about the country, and one evening arrived at the house of his brother-in-law. He desired to be immediately shown to his room, and when there requested that a handkerchief should be placed between his shirt and shoulders. This was done, and he was left to his devotions. A few minutes had hardly elapsed when a noise was heard in the room and a loud outcry was made by the priest. He was found lying on the floor of his room, and surrounded by a light flame, which died away as people approached, and extinguished itself. A celebrated doctor of the time (Battagalia) was sum moned and examined the priest. He found the integuments were injured. There was a mortification of the right hand which rapidly extended itself. The priest was devoured by a burning thirst, was horribly convulsed and was feverish and delirious. On the fourth day after this strange attack, after two hours of comatose insensibility he expired. A short time previous to his death the body exhaled a most insufferable odor, worms crawled from it on the bed, and the nails dropped from the fingers. The priest's account of the matter was that he felt a stroke, like a blow from a cudgel, on the right hand, and at the same time saw a blueish flame attack his shirt, which was immediately reduced entirely to ashes, with the exception of the wristbands, which were untouched. The handkerchief which was between the shirt and shoulders was uninjured and not a hair of his head was burnt, although his cap was totally consumed. There had been no fire in the room except that of the lamp, which had been full of oil, was now dry, and the wick reduced to a cinder.

HOW COWS DRINK.—Although cows require a great deal of water, many of them are allowed to suffer for want of it, because their peculiar fastidiousness is not understood or regarded. The American Cultivator says on the subject: "If the cows have to drink from any place other than brook or river do not turn out more than two at a time. Many of our hired men expect a cow to drink like a horse, which they certainly do not. Lead a horse to a trought and he will drink immediately or not at all, but a cow will stand and look, wet her lips and sip a mouthful half a dozen times before she begins to drink in good earnest. Some cows, however, will drink immediately. But in case of either cows or horses, proper care cannot be taken of them till their peculiarities are well understood; and whoever undertakes to make the most of his stock must make every individual one a special study. If cows are watered out of a pail it may be found that one animal will drink only from a certain pail, and if a change is made it will be instantly detected. Few cows will eat hay that another has breathed upon. It is well to humor the animal in such cases, while studying to supply the proper quantity and quality of food.

THE SPIDER AS A BALLOONIST.—In speaking of the intelligence displayed by birds and beasts, Mr. Seth Green argued strongly in favor of the reasoning power of insects especially, and related from his own experience the manner in which a spider constructs a balloon. If you anchor a pole in a body of water leaving the pole above the surface, and put a spider upon it, he will exhibit marvelous intelligence by his plans to escape. At first, he will spin a web several inches long and hang to one end while he allows the other to float off in the wind, in the hope that it will strike some object. Of course his plan proves a failure, but the spider is not discouraged. He waits until the wind changes, and then sends another silken bridge floating off in another direction. Another failure is followed by several other familiar attempts, until all the points of the compass have been tried. But neither the recourse nor the reasoning powers of the spider are exhausted. He climbs to the top of the pole and energetically goes to work to construct a silken balloon. He has no hot air with which to inflate it, but he has the power of making it buoyant. When he gets his balloon finished he does not go off with the mere suspicion that it will carry him, as men often do, but he fastens to it a guy rope, the other end of which he attaches to the island pole upon which he is a prisoner. He then gets into his aerial vehicle, while it is made fast, and tests it to see whether its dimensions are capable of the work of bearing him away. He often finds that he has made it too small, in which case he hauls it down, takes it all apart and constructs it on a larger and better plan. A spider has been seen to make three different balloons before he became satisfied with his experiment. Then he will get in, snap the guy rope and sail away to land as gracefully and as supremely independent of his surroundings as could well be imagined. Mr. Green stated that he had repeatedly witnessed such actions by spiders, and that he feels convinced that it is reason, with which the Creator of all things endowed the animals that enabled them to free themselves from their prison.—Rochester Democrat.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.—Farmers who desire to rid their fields of brushes and brambles should take advantage of the long days in August when the sap is nearly all out of roots of trees and brambles, to cut them off close to the ground. A week's delay because of the pressure of business on the farm, will make it necessary to do the work over again another season. Whereas, if all the bushes and brambles were cut off the last week in July or the first week in August, an effectual end will be made of them and thus future trouble avoided. Nothing more mars the beauty of a farm than to see fences and ditch banks lined with hedge rows and bushes, and weeds of unhidden growth. Work now done in this direction is paying and telling work for the farmer.

THE following drink for relieving sickness of the stomach is said to be palatable and agreeable: Beat up one egg very well, say for twenty minutes, then add fresh milk one pint, water one pint, sugar to make it palatable; boil, and let it cool; drink when cold. If it becomes curds and whey it is useless.

A MEDICAL journal gives the following simple remedy for relieving hiccough: "Inflate the lungs as fully as possible and thus press firmly on the agitated diaphragm. In a few moments the spasmodic action of the muscle will cease."

SOMETHING WORTH KNOWING ABOUT CHIMNEYS.—A parlor fire will consume in twelve hours forty pounds of coal, the combustion rendering 42,000 gallons of air unfit to support life. Not only is that large amount of deleterious product carried away and rendered innoxious by the chimney, but five times that quantity of air is carried up by the draught, and ventilation is thus effectually maintained. The ascent of smoke up a chimney depends on the comparative lightness of the column of air within to that of an equal column without; the longer the chimney, the stronger will be the draught, if the fire be sufficiently great to head the air; but if the chimney be so long that the air is cooled as it approaches the top, the draught is diminished. The smoke of a chimney, that so annoys the inmates of a house, arises from inattention to a few well known laws. When a fire is lighted in a grate, the air in the chimney over it becomes heated by the fire, and therefore is made lighter than the external atmosphere, and consequently it must of necessity ascend. Thus is produced what is called a draught in a chimney, which is merely the upward current of air produced by the ascent of the heated air confined in a flue. When a grate has remained for some time without having a fire in it, the chimney and the grate become cold, and when the fire is first lighted, it does not heat the air fast enough to produce a current necessary for the draught, and as the smoke will not ascend, it makes its appearance in the apartment; and this bad behavior is often attributed to the supposed quantity of soot in the chimney, instead of the above cause; for after the grate and flue become warm, the draught is restored, and the chimney is no longer troublesome. Holding a piece of lighted paper up the chimney, when lighting the fire, will rectify the evil.

A REMEDY FOR SCARLET FEVER.—Dr. E. Woodruff, for nineteen years a practicing physician at Grand Rapids, Michigan, furnishes the Springfield (Ill.) Journal the following: Wash the child from head to foot with strong sal-soda water, warm, then wipe dry. Then immediately bathe freely with oil from beef marrow, or oil from butter, applied freely. Then give freely catnip tea, or some good sweating article, pennyroyal, etc. Repeat every half hour, or as often as they get worrisome or wakeful, and in one or two days they will be entirely cured. I have been called to case where they have been fully broken out, and in this way entirely cured them in twenty-four hours. I have had thirty cases on hand at one time, and never lost a case in my life. But now I am old and about to give up my business, and seeing from the papers that your town is infected with the epidemic, I wish to do all the good I can. It is so simple. You do not need to call a doctor. A good nurse can attend to them. If by opening the pores of the skin and sweating you can let off the poison, which is an animaleniæ or animal in the blood, the cure is complete. The same is equally good in fevers of all kinds, hard colds and coughs. I take the ground that all diseases are caused by a stoppage of the pores of the skin, retaining the poison or living animals in the blood, and all you have to do at first is to open the doors of the system and let them out or drive them out. All people know a warm bath is good. But you apply the oil to the skin, and it keeps the pores open for a long time and gives the enemy a chance to get out. I hope all will try it, and they will soon be convinced.

THE first law of nature is self-preservation; but to do it she needs PERUNA.

READ PROOF OF WONDERFUL CURES.

FREMONT, OHIO, Jan. 25, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO.—Gents: I think it my duty to render you my thanks for benefits and profits which I have derived from your invaluable and far famed Spavin Cure. My cousin and I had a valuable stallion worth $4,000 which had a very bad spavin, and was pronounced by four eminent veterinary surgeons beyond any cure, and that the horse was done forever. As a last resort I advised my cousin to try a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure. It had a magical effect—the third bottle cured it and the horse is as well as ever. Dr. Dick, of Edinburgh, the eminent veterinary surgeon was an uncle of mine, and I take great interest in assisting his profession. Yours, truly,

JAMES A. WILSON, Civil Engineer.

Kendall's SPAVIN Cure

WILTON, MINN., Jan. 11, 1881.

B. J. KENDALL & CO.—Gents: Having got a horse-break of you by mail a year ago, the contents of which persuaded me to try Kendall's Spavin Cure on the hind leg of one of my horses, which was badly swollen and could not be reduced by any other remedy. I got two bottles of Preston & Luddath, Druggists of Wasecu, which completely cured my horse. About five years ago I had a three year old colt sweenied very bad. I used your remedy as given in your book without sweelling, and I must say to your credit that the colt is entirely cured, which is a surprise, not only to myself, but also to my neighbors. You sent me the book for the trifling sum of 25 cents and if I could not get another like it I would not take twenty-five dollars for it. Yours, truly, GEO. MATTHEWS.

From a PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

WASHINGTONVILLE, OHIO, June 17, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO.—Gents: Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse who had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement, and also a large splint from another horse, and both horses are today as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars. Respectfully y'urs,

H. A. BERTOLETT, H. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 18th, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO.—Gents: I have a very fine mare that had a bone spavin for a long time. I tried everything man could devise to cure it, but all in vain, and was about to give it up when a friend of mine in this city came to me and recommended "Kendall's Spavin Cure," which I tried with grand results, removing the bone clear and clean. I then sent 25 cents to you for one of your illustrated Horse Books, and I think there is no better book printed on the horse and his diseases. I have taken great interest in it, and have since sold 18 copies for you to my neighbors, and will try and do what good I can by getting them for others Yours truly, G. W. MILLER.

Kendall's Spavin Cure on Human Flesh.

WEST ENOSBURGH, VT., Feb. 15, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO.—Gents: Several months ago I injured my knee joint, which caused an enlargement to grow the size of a large walnut and caused me very severe pain all the time for four or five weeks, when I began to use Kendall's Spavin Cure with the most satisfactory results. It has completely removed the enlargement and stopped the lameness and pain. I have long known it to be excellent for horses, but now I know it to be the best liniment for human flesh that I am acquainted with.

Yours truly, T. P. LAWRENCE.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

Is sure in its effects and mild in its action, as it does not blister; yet it is penetrating and powerful to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, and any lameness and all enlargements of joints or limbs, and also for rheumatism in man, or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mildly and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for man as well as beast.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you; or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off, and thus AVERT BALDNESS.

It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.

The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.

will change the beard to a BROWN or BLACK at discretion. Being in one preparation it is easily applied, and produces a permanent color that will not wash off.

VAN DYKE'S SULPHUR SOAP

is superior to all other soaps. It is combined with Sulphur in its pure, unadulterated state, which enters the pores of the skin, being absorbed into the blood through the minute capillaries, and thus acts upon the skin, whether it be healthy or in a diseased condition, both locally and constitutionally, thereby eliminating all impurities from the blood and exciting the skin to healthy action. It produces a fineness, purity and freshness to the complexion which is unequalled, and can be produced by no other means. No toilet, nursery or bathroom is complete with it. It makes the skin soft, clear, pure, white and healthy; is cleansing, disodorizing, disinfecting, soothing, healing and purifying; removes dandruff, chafing, sores, eruptions, roughness and redness of the skin; relieves itching, burning and stinging of the skin, and irritation of biting and stinging insects; will relieve itching Piles when nothing else will have any effect. Ask for DR. VAN DYKE'S SULPHUR SOAP; insist upon it, and take no imitation. Sold by druggists. Aschenbach & Miller, Proprietors, No. 23 Callowhill Street, Philadelphia, Pa. For sale by M. L. GAYMAN and T. JAMES, Druggists, Ebensburg, Pa. [11-3.-1y.]

ELY'S CREAM BALM

HAVING gained an established reputation, displacing all other preparations in the vicinity of discovery, is now offered to the people as the most direful remedy wherever known. A fair trial will convince the most skeptical of its curative powers. It effectually cleanses the head of Catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions; allays inflammation and irritation; protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds; completely heals the sores and restores the sense of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment as directed will cure Catarrh. As a household remedy for cold in the head it is unequaled. The Balm is easy to use and agreeable. Sold by druggists at 50 cents. On receipt of 50 cents will mail a package. Send for circular with full information.

PE-RU-NA

This is a new remedy, originally compounded and introduced to the medical profession and the public at large by S. B. Hartman, M. D., of 357 Penn Ave., Pittsburg, Pa., who has practiced it to over 40,000 patients, and in every case with the most gratifying success. Being a tonic, the system is entirely built up by that of any other remedy, and is the only medicine needed in almost every disease to which flesh is heir—Epilepsy or Fits excepted—being the only exception. In this PERUNA should not be used. In Constipation and Diseases of
