INE A PERFECT TELESCOPE AND THE OTHER MUCH LIKE A MICROSCOPE.

One day last winter a gentleman living near Litchfield, Conn., took with him to a sleigh ride his daughter, who is just past sixteen years of age. It was a very bright snnny day, but cold. The glistening snow which had fallen the night before was bright and almost dazzling. The man, to perfect his eyes, were a pair of glasses shaded blue, but the young girl had nothing to protect her eyes from the intense glare. Nothing was thought of it at the time, but upon arriving home the girl complained of her eyse paining her. Her mother bathed them with cream, thinking that in the morning they would be all right, but when the morning came they were much worse, and continuing to grow still more so they called in a physician, but all to no purpose, as he could do nothing to relieve her from the pain which her eyes gave her. To make the story short, the girl was obliged to be kent in a room where no ray of light could enter for six long weary months. From time to time other physicians were employed, but none could give her relief. They finally came to the conclusion that she would eventually become blind. In this way she remained a prisoner in this dark room, as a single ray of light either from a lamp or from the sun, pained her eyes, which were relieved when the room was darkened, One day last week, while she was sitting there all alone, she felt a new sensa ion about her eves which she had not before experienced-as she described it: "It seemed as if my eyes were ranning out, or part of them. Putting my hand up to my eyes I could feel something coming out over my lower evelid, which I took hold of and pulled. out. It gave me some pain to do so hat almost immediately my eyes felt better-instead of a smarting sensation when I winked they felt cool and natural and it was a pleasure to wink them. Then came the thought, Why, my eves are better, and I believe I could bear the light, which thought so impressed upon my mind that I was determined to try. Hesitatingly I open the door, when to my great joy I found I was able to bear the light as well as I ever could. The feeling that came over me at the moment that I found out that I could once more leave the dark, dismal room, and see the glorious sunlight again was so overpowering that I gave one scream of joy and then fainted away." Now comes the strangest part of the story. Her eyes, which six months ago were straight and natural were now what we call cross-eye.i, but the girl pays no attention to that. She sees things just the same as she always did, but let ber close her right eye and look out of only her left eye, and she can see a distance of eight or ten miles and distinguish things as well as an ordinary person can only sixty rods away. She is able to look clear to the lake, a distance of three and a half miles, and identify any one, describing their dress, even seeing a fish pole in their hands, and can tell when they catch a fish. The distant hills are brought close to her, and she can see the farmers getting to their hav, even counting the number of hears, which in an air line are seven miles from her. To test her we procured the largest field glass we con get, and her sight would far outreach nov object we could see. If she closes her left eve and looks out of the right, then she cannot see anything except close to, but that eye is a perfect microscope. She is able to distinguish things that the natural eve cannot see. The point of a needle looks as blunt as a erowhar, and it is wonderful to hear be describe the beautiful colors of flies and other insects. To her the bair on your head looks as large as darping needles. and in the finest piece of linen she can count the threads as easy as any one can count bean poles. The moment the openes both eves they assume the cross-eyed expression or shape, and then she sees again as any other person. is the intention of her father to take her to New York at no distant day to let some of the celebrated physicians there are this wonderful phenomenon --

How to Fat Watermelon - There are many ways of eating melons, all of which are good, but some better than in effectually o hers. The primitive way, still ardently pursued by small boys of all colors, is to get into somebody else's patch and 'bust" one open, and then and there larry the countenance in it. Another way is to ent it in two parts, give your neighbor one-half and a spoon, and make similar provisions for yourself, agmake similar provisions for yourself.

A great deal of substantial counting to a few files by Elemsberg Johnstown and Alternative to the files of can be done in this way. The hotel plan of cutting it like a tulip, and putting a lump of ice inside, is the worst way. Ice should not touch the pulp. The best way is to bury it in ice for two days. It takes fully that time to get all the heat out of it. Then cut it lengthwise into about four pieces, and eat it at night-that and nothing else. Watermelous are unwholesome, however, if placked too green, or if much over-ripe. Some unfortunate people are pnable to cat them at all. But the hapby average man can place himself on the outside of a watermelon without any gastric disturbance. People, however, deal unjustly with this fruit sometimes by eating a hearty dinner first. and then topping off with a melon, and then if a moral earthquake sets up in the interior they charge it to the melor, But this is clearly unjust. The watermelon should be taken between meals. It was intended as an episode-an interlude-a romance without words-a nocturne in green and red-not to be minuled with bacon and greens. Its indulgence leaves a certain epigastrial expansion but this is vain and evanescent. The remedy is to loosen the waistband, and take another slice. - Baltimore

CAN COWS COUNT ?- Geo. Andrus, an extensive farmer of Gogosc Prairie, Mich., and one who has had much success in stock raising, recently stated as a most singular fact that his drove of cattle always knew on what day they were to be salted. It has been his custom to give them salt at the barnyard every Smiday morning, during the wing and once in two weeks, or every other Sunday morning during the hot weather. This the cattle have well tenroed, and during the spring they will come up the lane regularly each Sunday morning, and stand there bellowing and making a great noise until thick are salted, when they will return to their pasture lot, which is some distance away. This they do regularly every Sunday morning, and never make a mistake of coming on any other day, The same fact is still more strange in summer, when they only come up once In two weeks,

THE cheapest meat for the farmer, says an exchange, is mutton. It may safely he said to cost nothing, as the sece from a sheep of good breed will pay for its keeping.
