DOMESTIC RECEIPTS.

Cream Cookies.—One pint cream, two cups sugar, three eggs, two teaspoonfuls soda, four teaspoonfuls cream tartar; mix as soft as possible to roll; nutmeg or cinnamon; bake quick.

Corn Fritters.—One-half tea-cup butter, the same of flour, one egg, pepper and salt, one pint grated corn, beat it up and fry it on a well-buttered griddle. They are as good as fried oysters.

Fried Squash.—A delicious dish can be made of the summer crook-necked squash simply by frying them in butter. Slice them as you would cucumbers, dip in dry flour, fry to a brown, and imagine that you are eating fried oysters.

Lemon Pudding.—Put in a basin one-quarter pound of flour, same of sugar, same of bread crumbs and chopped suet, the juice of one good-sized lemon, and the peel grated, two eggs, and enough milk to make it the consistency of porridge; boil in a basin for one hou Serve with or without sauce.

Sponge Gingerbread.—Take one cup of sugar, one cup of sour milk, one small teaspoonful of soda, one cup of molasses, four eggs, the white and yolks beaten separately, one cup of butter, one tablespoonful of ginger, one cup of raisins, four cups of flour. In place of sour milk and soda you may use sweet milk and baking powder.

Fried Egg-Plant.—Pare your egg-plant; cut in slices a third of an inch thick, and lay them in strong cold salt and water for three hours, putting a plate and weight on them to keep them under the water; wipe each slice; dip in eggs beaten with a tablespoonful of cold water and fine cracker-crumbs; fry in boiling drippings of half lard and butter.

Stewed Corn.—Scald the corn just enough to harden; slice off the ear so as to divide the kernel three or four times; scrape the cobs (the sweetest part) from the cob, add sweet milk, a little water, a little butter and salt; simmer ten minutes. Beat an egg and add, stirring in evenly just before taking off the fire. A very little sugar improves it for the taste of most people.

A Good Way of Cooking Onions.—It is a good plan to cook onions in milk and water, it diminishes the strong taste of that vegetable. It is an excellent way of serving up onions to chop them after they are boiled and put them in a stewpan with a little milk, butter, salt and pepper, and let them stew about fifteen minutes. This gives them a fine flavor and they can be served up very hot.

Home-made Crackers.—These are more wholesome for children than cookies, and the novelty of having them made at home goes a good ways toward making them eatable. Take three-fourths of a cup of butter or lard, one pint of sour milk, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Stir all except the milk in with the flour, and when thoroughly mixed put the milk in. Be careful not to kneed them too much, as there is danger of their being too tough; roll thin and bake in a quick oven.

Baked Macaroni.—Break up as much macaroni as you desire for your dinner, put it on to boil in tepid water, so as to allow it to swell. In twenty-five minutes, if soft to a fork, drain it through a cullender. Butter a deep dish, place a layer of macaroni, then sprinkle over it salt and pepper; cover with grated bread crumbs and a little grated cheese. Fill up the dish in this manner, and lay bits of butter over the cheese of the top layer. Bake in a hot oven fifteen or twenty minutes; if left in the oven too long it will become tough and unpleasant.

Alaska Burial Customs.

The dead body is laid on logs or sticks of timber raised a couple of feet from the ground, and then covered in with other timber and stones, giving the whole structure somewhat the appearance of a square pen or pile, with upright posts or sticks at the angles. On these funeral piles are placed one or more mementos of the departed, generally some implement or weapon used by the dead man or woman in lifetime—in the case of a hunter the weapon in the use of which he excelled. Upon one mausoleum I saw a rifle, bidarka, seine, spears, arrows, darts, etc., and upon the bier of a female was placed a kantag, a wooden bowl or dish used to contain food. Such articles are religiously devoted to this purpose, even if they are all the property left by the deceased. A widow may be in want, and a son without a rifle or a seine with which to procure subsistence, but the burial customs of the tribe must not be neglected. These mementos are never disturbed by the superstitious natives but, left to bleach and rust through the Arctic seasons, gradually go to decay. The wooden parts of the funeral pile rot away, leaving the bones of the dead exposed to view. I saw one such case, where the grinning skull looked out between the cracks of his crumbling prison, seeming to invite the raids of the bone sharp. But the bodies of the dead are not always treated with consideration. Sometimes they are rudely thrown out upon the tundra and left to be destroyed by dogs or wolves. A case of this kind occurred near one of the stations here. An Indian woman died in a tent, and when the Indians were ordered to take the body away they threw it out upon the adjacent tundra and left it as food for birds of the air and beasts of the field.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Twenty Dollar Gold Piece.

It doesn't always do to credit people with over-sensitiveness. The other day, one of our "rising young pianists" was giving his opinion of the vulgarity and meanness displayed by our goldish aristocracy. "Why," said he, "for instance, not long ago, I was invited to attend a musicale at the house of old Fullhags, on Nobb Hill. Of course I played a good deal to entertain the company, and when I left, old F., as he shook hands, slipped into my hand a twenty-dollar gold piece." "Why, the thick-skinned old hog!" said the audience, indignantly. "What did you do?" "Why, you just bet I got even with him. I haughtily threw the money on the floor and left, after first exchanging the coin for a counterfeit twenty I happened to have in my pocket just then—don't you see?" "Capital idea, that; served the old vulgarian right." "Yes; it was a huge idea, but the trouble was that his twenty turned out to be a counterfeit, too."—San Francisco Post.

A Simple Disinfectant

A cheap and simple disinfectant which promises to be useful, is a solution of chloride of lead, which was first brought into notice by the late Dr. Goolden, of St. Thomas's Hospital, London. It is inodorous, effective, and its cost infinitesimal. It may be prepared as follows: Take half a drachm of nitrate of lead and dissolve in a pint or more of boiling water. Now dissolve two drachms of common salt in a pail or bucket of water, pour the two solutions together, and allow the sediment to subside. The clear supernatant fluid will be a saturated solution of chloride of lead. A cloth dipped in a solution of chloride of lead and hung up in a room will sweeten a fetid atmosphere instantaneously, or the solution thrown down a sink, water-closet or drain, or over a heap of refuse, will produce a like result.

ELY'S CREAM BALM CATARRH HAY FEVER HEAD COLDS DIRECTIONS. For Catarrh, Hay Fever, Cold in the Head, &c., Insert with little finger into the nostrils and press the nostrils firmly against the head, closing one nostril and breathing through the nose. It will be found the most pleasant and healing application ever used. For Deafness, apply a particle into the ear.

ELY'S CREAM BALM

HAVING gained an enviable local reputation, displacing all other preparations in the vicinity of discovery, is, on its merits alone, recognized as a wonderful remedy wherever known. A few trials will convince the most skeptical of its merits. It effectually cleanses the nasal passages of Catarrhal virus, over the healthy secretions; allays inflammation and irritation; protects the membranal tissues of the head from additional colds; completely heals the sores and restores the sense of taste and smell. Deafness and roaring are relieved by a few applications. A thorough treatment as directed will cure Catarrh. As a household remedy for cold in the head it is unequaled. The Balm is easy to use and agreeable. Sold by druggists at 50 cents. On receipt of 50 cents or $1, Sixty Doses for five dollars, the Proprietors will mail a package. Send for circular with full information.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

HARRISBURG, PA., Nov. 18th, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO.—Gents: I have a very fine mare that had a bone spavin for a long time. I tried everything man could devise to cure it, but all in vain, and was about to give up when a friend of mine in this city came to me and recommended "Kendall's Spavin Cure," which I tried with grand results, removing the bone clear and clean. I then sent 25 cents to you and got your illustrated Horse Book, and I think there is no better book printed on the horse and his diseases. I have taken great interest in it, and have since sold it to quite a number for you to my neighbors, and will try and do what good I can by getting them for others

Yours truly, G. W. MILLER.

Kendall's Spavin Cure on Human Flesh.

WEST ENOSBURGH, VT., Feb. 15, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO.—Gents: Several months ago I injured my knee joint, which caused an enlargement to grow the size of a large walnut and caused me very severe pain all the time for four or five weeks, when I began to use Kendall's Spavin Cure with the most satisfactory results. It has completely removed the enlargement and stopped the lameness and pain. I have long known it to be excellent for horses, but now I know it to be the best liniment for human flesh that I am acquainted with.

Yours truly, T. P. LAWRENCE.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

Is sure in its effects and mild in its action, as it does not blister; yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain, or remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, and any lameness and all enlargements of joints or muscles. Also for rheumatism in man, or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mildly and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for man as well as beast.

☞ Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you; or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

Chinese Cream CAMPHOR!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR THE RELIEF OF PAIN IN MAN AND BEAST!

Commands the attention of all who have been inveterate sufferers of RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, HEADACHE, BACKACHE, FROSTED FEET, STIFF JOINTS, and all pains in every portion of the body. The seat of pain is reached by exciting the pores to action, thus enabling the curative properties of the CHINESE CREAM CAMPHOR to enter, which stifles the pain as soon as the affected parts are reached. The liniment must, upon each application, be rubbed in thoroughly; and in cases of Rheumatism of long standing it should be used three or four times a day, and four applications made each time, until cured. Care, however, should be exercised after the pores are opened, to prevent taking cold.

FOR HORSES —THE— Chinese CREAM Camphor IS INVALUABLE.

It relieves Sprained Joints, Thrush in Feet, Sweeny, Fell Evil, Blood and Bone Spavins, Ringbone, and all hard lumps caused by kicks or other bruises. For Epizooty, Distemper, Fever, Colic, Loss of Appetite, and Weakness, use the IRON HORSE AND CATTLE POWDER.

☞ A half pint bottle of the CHINESE CREAM CAMPHOR can be had for 50 cents from E. JAMES, Druggist, Ebensburg, Pa.

N. B.—The testimonials of persons using this preparation, either on themselves or their horses, will be thankfully received.

TESTIMONIALS.

I have tried the Chinese Cream Camphor for Rheumatism and Nervous Headache, and have found in it instant relief. I have never found its equal in all my travels.—GEORGE BYRD, London, Eng., (son of Capt. Sir Geo. Byng, R. I. N., Singapore, India.)

I used the Chinese Cream Camphor for a severe attack of Rheumatism in the right shoulder, and can sincerely say, after having tried several other well-known remedies, that it is the best thing I ever used, curing me completely.—MILLARD F. WALTON, 117 N. 41st street, West Philadelphia, March 1, 1881.

After one application of the Chinese Cream Camphor I was relieved of frosted feet.—NATHAN EAKAN, 416 North Third street, Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 12, 1881.

Having suffered severely with frosted feet I used the Chinese Cream Camphor three times, rubbing it in thoroughly, and was cured. My mother tried it for nervous headache, obtaining instant relief.—ANTON S. TATTEL, 1216 Melon street, Philad'a, Jan. 15, 1881. [4-8.-6m.]

A WONDERFUL MONKEY.

The Mahratta, a native Indian journal, relates the following story from Indore:—A certain Hindoo watchmaker, residing on the bank of the Khan river, just behind Pandhurinath's temple in Kural Ghat street, accidently met his death, and as he had no close relatives to perform the funeral ceremonies, the police authorities went to the house, took charge of his property, and also of a big monkey kept by him. This animal was tamed by the deceased, who took a fatherly care of his pet. When the monkey saw this sad accident he at once came to him, kissed his feet and cried so loud as no human being could cry. His red eyes and the overflowing tears proved to every beholder his agony for his master; he was perplexed in his grief, and became so wild that he at once jumped on the nearest house and purposely threw himself on a large stone which was laying beneath it to commit suicide. The throng of spectators, who naturally held a compassionate view, gave him some fruit to eat, so that he might calm himself, but the sagacious animal threw all the fruit in the faces of the givers, showing every beholder that he was, as it were, insulted. Nobody dared to go to the deceased and take him to the burying ground; the police were frightened, and went to get more men.

On the other side the monkey was crying; he fell on his master's feet and kissed them. Sometimes he took stones and beat himself; sometimes he went to the nearest large stone and dashed his head so heavily against it that it seemed as though it must be fractured: sometimes he tore his hair. He now and then went to the deceased, and by lifting his hand he saw whether the pulse of his master was beating. Words fail to describe the agony of this poor animal. There was not a single soul whose heart was not melted. After three hours, when the order arrived from the nearest magistrate to remove the corpse at once, one of the policemen went to catch the animal, but the instant he reached the place the monkey attacked him desperately, and would have killed him had not the policeman taken proper caution to save himself. Afterwards some four or five men volunteered their services, and suddenly caught the animal and fastened him with a chain to the nearest wooden post, and took the corpse away. When the poor animal saw his master being removed, he bade his last farewell, and fell to the ground unconscious.

After the funeral the policemen who had removed his master took all the property and the monkey to the goal ward. Now it is told that the monkey does not wish to behold the four men who took his master away, and up to date he has not eaten a morsel of food, and has been crying day and night. When he sleeps in the night it has been noticed that he wakes from his slumber and looks out in every direction with a joyful eye, thinking he has heard his master's call.

HOW LITTLE BIRDS CROSS THE MEDITERRANEAN SEA.—According to a writer in Nature, the small migratory birds that are unable to perform the flight of three hundred and fifty miles across the Mediterranean Sea are carried over on the backs of cranes. In the autumn many flocks of cranes may be seen coming from the north with the first cold blast from that quarter, flying low, and uttering a peculiar cry, as if of alarm, as they circle over the cultivated plains. Little birds of every species may be seen flying up to them, while the twittering songs of those already on their backs may be distinctly heard. But for this kind provision of nature, numerous varieties of small birds would become extinct in Northern countries, as the cold winters would kill them.

ABOUT BEES AND BEE-TREES.

BY A HUNTER OF EXPERIENCE.

It will soon be time, says an exchange, for those who love to make a business of hunting the bee-tree to start out on their expeditions. Once this kind of business was quite lucrative. Bee-trees could be found after a little work almost anywhere in the woods. They are usually well filled, and if a man could manage to discover one tree a week he would consider himself earning good wages. Now and then, while following a trail or bee-line, two trees have been traced out, but this is very rare. A gentleman last night, an old bee-hunter, told a story how he once took some honey out in the woods, warmed it on stones, and then left it there as a sort of a feeding place for the bees, and a day or two afterward noted the direction in which they went after loading themselves, and by following them some distance found there were two lines running parallel to the other. In about three hours he found one tree, marked it, and then again set his honey. In a short time he took the other line for the other tree.

He hunted and hunted for a long time without success. Finally reaching a cliff of rocks, while trying to pick his way down he accidentally slipped and slid to the bottom. Somewhat stunned, he lay a few minutes, and looking up to see how far he had come, lo! and behold his experienced eye saw bees going in and out of a hole in a tree within a few feet of him. From those two trees he took eighty or ninety pounds of honey, with a considerable quantity of beeswax, and considered it one of the most successful hunts he had ever had. Besides honey, there is used in bee-hunting a strong flavor of young clover, as it is called, of which the bees, seemingly, are fonder than honey itself. The proper way to trace bees is to beat a stone warm, drop some honey on it, have the comb near by, and the heated honey will immediately draw the bees, who will then find the comb and proceed to load themselves with it and return to their homes. It requires a sharp eye to follow the line, but the term a bee line is well-known to be a line straight as an arrow, and all the bee hunter has to do is to get the course of the bee and follow it straight, until he has reached the vicinity of the tree, as near as he can judge, after which he will try his honey again, and so tell whether he has not reached or gone by. Some hunters select a good lively bee, throw flour over him, and then by noting the time it requires for that bee to unload himself and return, get a good idea of the distance. There are a number of old bee hunters living up town who can recite bee-tree yarns by the week.

A LONG-LIVED WOOD.—The Chinese and Japanese build most of their vessels of teak. This wood is very durable, and will stand the water better than any other wood that is used in shipbuilding. According to the Australia Shipping News, there lies at the bottom of Dusky Bay a large vessel that can be plainly seen in clear water. She has been there for centuries, and the Maoris have a legend about her. They say that their grandfathers told them that in their childhood a large vessel sank in Dusky Bay; that the crew managed to reach one of the small islands, and after living there for years died off one by one. Who they were or where they came from the Maoris could not say. A diver is said to have recently examined this mysterious old hulk. He reported that she is made of teak, and appears to be still perfectly sound and firm.

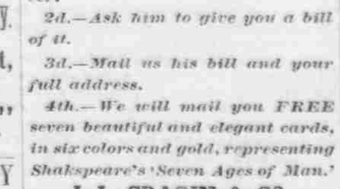
VAN DYKE'S SULPHUR SOAP



Is superior to all other soaps. It is combined with Sulphur in its pure, unadulterated state, which tones the skin, whether it be healthy or in a diseased condition, both locally and constitutionally, thereby eliminating all impurity from the blood and exciting the skin to healthy action. It produces a fineness, purity and freshness of the complexion, and the skin becomes as soft as velvet, and cannot be produced by no other means. No toilet, nursery or bathroom is complete without it. It makes the skin soft, clear, pure, white and healthy; is cleansing, deodorizing, disinfecting, soothing, healing and purifying; removes dandruff, chafing, sheets, sores, eruptions, roughness and redness of the skin; relieves itching, burning and stinging of the skin, and irritation of lotting and stinging insects; will relieve Itching Piles when nothing else will have any effect. Ask for VAN DYKE'S SULPHUR SOAP; insist upon it, and take no imitation. Sold by druggists. Aschenbach & Miller, Proprietors, No. 301 Callowhill Street, Philadelphia, Pa. For sale by E. JAMES, Druggist, Ebensburg, Pa. [11-6.-1y.]

Forest Manors.

In 1757 Frederick the Great, about 100 miles in front of Berlin again, after Rossbach, a distance in fifteen days, but men through exhaustion. In 1760, 40,000 men and 1,000 wagons, accomplished about eighty miles in days. The same year the Russian General Lascy, with 15,000 men "knocked off" 180 miles in three Prince Eugene, of Wurtemberg, believe Berlin, made a forced march the 4th of October, 1760, of 42 miles in one day. This latter would approach the feat of the 6th corps, thirty-five miles in nineteen hours, may be remembered by many of those who served with the army of
