DEATH OF REV. P. M. GARVET.—On Saturday night last Rev. P. M. Garvey, pactor of the Catholic congregation at Freeport, Armstrong county, died from a cancerous his face and neck. About nine months ago the affliction manifested itself, and its growth was so rapid as to alarm him. He was treated by several Pittsburg physicians, but owing to the danger which would attend an operation, none of them cared to take the responsibility of cutting it out. for many years, and was a gentleman who About the beginning of July last he went to during his long life commanded the highes a Philadelpela hospital, and placed himself in the hands of some of the most eminent surgeons connected with the medical col-leges of that city. A partial operation was performed, but finding that the patient could not survive a complete removal of the foreign substance, they were reductantly compelled to inform him that no surgicalskill could save his life, and that he had but a comparative brief space of time to live. On sued and Westbrook was arrested and the his return to Preceport, the latter part of lothing recovered at his former home on August, Father Garvey stopped off here over night, continuing his journey home next day. He fully realized that the end was rapidly nearing, and his farewell to such of his friends as met him carried with it a mournful meaning. Gradually the flesh sloughed off from the cancer, until a vital spot was reached, and he was at rest at last. Deceased was born in Ireland about fifty four years ago, and soon after attaining his majority became ordained to the Catholic pastorate of the old Catholic church which stood on what is now part of the burying ers. Galloway, who fought for his life desperately, now hes in a critical condition and will probably die. Some of the flends then bound and gaged Nancy Newell, throwing her on the floor and actually outraging her person. After intimidating the old gentleman and lady, they searched the house and took $1,900 belonging to Mr. Galloway and $500 of Nancy Newell's, which they found in a boreau drawer. Miss Newell, after the desperatoes left, succeeded in freeing herself and went for aid. Frank Newell and they did floffman, two young larmers living in the neighborhood were arrested on raspicion two days afterward, but Hoffman was subsequently discharged for want of existence, while young Newell was sent to the Greenshurg mil to await turther developments. Six hundred dollors has been offered for the arrest of the flends, and detectives are diligently at work trying to ferret them out.

EVERY school teacher in the county, who has he welfare of his profession at heart, should work and vote ugainst F. H. Barker for Treasurer. He is the man who tried to bring the County Superintendency and school matters into polities, and thereby in a great measure destroy their good and efficiency in this county. He tried to make the County Superintendency a matter for political strife and partisans to wrangle over. Had Barker succeeded in his bold and disreputable efforts to swindle Mr. Strayer out of his office, it would have had an extremely had effect on the common school system in this county. School teachers, school directors, and all those who take an interest in the weifare of the public schools, should reduke

To the Editor of Tun Function's: Webster defines a "nuisance" to be that which annoys or gives trouble or versition, and adds, "nuisances are public when they annoy citizens in general; private when they affect individuals only." The point which troubles me just here is this ix." The point which troubles me just here is this. There is a cow belonging to one of the citizens of this place which runs at large at night. The aloresald cow wears a bell which is at least one degree smaller than the new Court House bell and is hung alter the manner of some women's tongues—the result being that hit is never silent. Now when that cow with that fell takes her like of march up and down a public street for the space of two hours or more in the middle of the night, or thereabouts, is she or is the not a public nuisance to the citizens along that street, and if a missance ought not that missance to be abated? Two or three individuals with more never than nerves did with matice aforethought steal that same bell last sommer; but their consciences reproved them to such an extent that they returned the bell to the owner, and the cow now swings it in triumph, having it attached to a riveted strap, so that there is an danger of it becoming unbuckled. And so the lanting lation of that anhallewed bell continues to be heard in the land, greatly to the manyance of everybody, and especially to the
