OUR PHILADELPHIA LETTER.

HAPPY TIDINGS-WHAT AMERICA OWES TO THE CATHOLICS-AFTER THE BLECTION THE SLAUGHTER.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31, 1881. [Special Correspondence of the FREEMAN.] DRAF HENRY-1 am thankful and happy that I was not a depositor in that New Jersey bank of which Mr. Baldwin was the cashier. I feel joyful that I am not embar-rassed on account of that bank's failure.— The directors of the Mechanics' National Bank of New Jersey should also be happy— at least should felicitate themselves with the pleasing reflection that their able, enter-prising and obliging cashier did not give Mr. Nugent the bank building. They should be thankful that Mr. Baldwin did not allow Mr. Nugent to carry off that magnificent structure. Mahone is happy that every revenue district in the United States came down handsomely to help him in his repudiation propaganda. He is happy in obtaining the resources of success, and makes no bows in saying that with the money thus attained he bought every negro vote in Virginia. I am delighted to learn that we are to have "A Swallow Tail and Chateau-Yquem Admin-istration." There is to be a different branch manners in the White House. Arthur had a preacher for a paternal sire, and mov-ed all his life in good society. It is said that to see Arthur in a drawing room you would think he was born there and grew up with the place. It would charm a Chesterfield to see Arthur turn easily from one group of gentlemen and ladies to another with nothing in either tone or manner to indicate that he was anybody in particular, but that he had just that easy dignity and polish without the least ostentation, which befits high official life in a Republic. There is to be no bygone provincialism at the White House, but igs will be done on an educated New York basis. At the Executive Mansion there will be no gross vulgarity of plain whisky, but the choicest old vintages; no more of the garlic and Sans Cullottes barbarities of our ancesters, but the ethics of a bill of fare fit for gentlemen, and clothes that fit. Yes, indeed, dear Henry, times wi'l look up under Arthur. Is it any wonder, then, that I am delighted? Who should not be? It affords me infinite pleasure to be able to impart to the readers of the Fareman the joyful tidings that President Arthur has for the past week been in New York finishing up his awfully complicated private business, and that most fortunately for him he has Grant, Conkling and a host of other stalwarts with him assisting to settle up his WHAT AMERICA OWES TO THE CATHOLICS.

Col. John W. Forney, editor of Progress, an article on the religious commemoration St. Joseph's Catholic church, this city, of the one hundredth anniversary of the surrender at Yorktown of the British army under Lord Cornwallis, says: "All the diplomatic history of the period proves the assertion that, but for the aid rendered to the cause of America in the Revolution by the Catholic King of France, Louis the Sixteenth, this continent would to day be as much a British depend-ency as the Dominion of Canada." All the estant powers of the world, headed by Great Britain, were either hostile to the Colonles or silent, It was Catholic France that ead the way, and saved the American con-tinent to freedom. Washington, Adams, ingston, Morris, and Franklin, all admitted it and there is a special historic justice in the gratitude the American people owe to the two Catholic governments, France and Spain, The descendents of Lafayette, De Grasse, Rochambeau, Steuben, De Kalb. One brief month of the adulation of the courtiers of power have effaced all memory that Arthur pulse of Arthur to show some respect for arfield's policy, but Grant and the leading staiwarts of the party would not allow him to do so. Giant is closer to Arthur than any man except Conkling, and Grant demands a stal wart administration He commands that administration be made boldly stalwart, and that the party be given to understand that Garfield is dead and that his policy is dead with him. He commands an immediate and entire stalwart Cabinet which will at once dismiss all the Garfield Cabinet but Greenshi ncoln, who was a Grant delegate to the hicago Convention, but not admitted. Although Brewster is a stalwart, he is not stalwart enough for the stalwartism of the day gressive a stalwart as Grant, but he is a fore adroit politician than Grant, and although the great gift-taker urges the immediate nomination of Conkling, Beale, Boutwell and others, Arthur will wait until after he election to begin the work of shaughtering the Garfield men. Blaine must remain a time. The reason for the postponement of the execution of Blaine to stalwartize the administration until after the election that it would cost the Republicans of ennsylvania the loss of thousand of votes for Baily by throwing them to Wolfe. Arthur's desire is to get the stalwarts into emplete possession of the administration without fatally shocking the Republican party. After the election the slaughter of REDEEMING HIS PROMISE. On taking the oath of office Mr. Arthur ade a solemn promise that he would h guided by the example and policy of his lamented predecessor, and notwithstanding this it will not be two months before not one of the advisers of Garfield will be left in the andlords, who of course would repud- Garfield's Cabinet and destroying his policy his policy is being done by Arthur with cir cumspection. Morgan was intended as a warming pan for Conkling, whose immediate appointment would have been too se vere a shock to the nervous system of the "Half Breeds." In a few months the public mind will be better prepared for the re-ception of Conkling. The "Half Breeds," though they are making desperate efforts to conceal the unpalatable truth from themselves, see the purpose of Arthur to sur round himself with stalwarts who were defeated at Chicago in 1880. This is the way Arthur is redeeming his promise on taking the oath of office that he would be guided by the example and policy of his lamented pred-ecessor. Before the year is out, there will not be one Garfield man left in the Cabinet. Thus is Arthur redeeming his promise

JAMES REDPATH ON ENGLISH MISRULE .-A large and extremely respectable audience was gathered in Chickering Hall last evening, says the New York World of Monday, to hear Mr. Redpath describe the results of his last experiences in Ireland. Mr. Redpath was introduced by Mr. D. Gallagher, President of the Parnell branch of the Land League, under whose auspices the meeting was held, and received a perfect ovation. He described most forcibly the impression produced by an extended tour through Donegal and the west of Cork, and pictured the solation and misery produced by landlordism in the former county, where families av-eraging four and a half in number were ted poses of the matter by outlishing the and clad for a total of $61 a year, and yet compelled to pay a rent three times gre than Griffith's valuation. He rec'ted in feeling terms the outrages perpetrated in the County Cork, in the neighborhood of Skibbereen, where the country is peculiarly rocky and barren, during the wholesale evictions carried on there by the authority and by the authority and with the help of the Euglish Gevernment. He said he saw a woman who and quite lately an old woman and a young girl were bayonetted and are now dead. — And this under a woman's reign! Cromwell massacred the Irish in the name of God : Victoria massacres them in the name of property. But the men of Ireland were firmly united in determination to obtain their rights, and behind them were the great mass of the clergy, who are among the most radicat in their views, and behind them a greater power still in the women of Ireland. Ireland was the only country in the world where it was an honor to be in jail, and he, thanked God that Parnell, Davitt and the rest had been imprisoned, as their utterances had far more power from the cells than they could have from the platform. The race that for centuries has found in every new

A VERY SAD SCENE.

A MOTHER AND DAUGHTER SENT TO JAIL FOR FORGERY, PERJURY AND CONSPIRACY.

The U. S. District Court, this morning witnessed a scene of an unusually sad character. During the week the case of John Love, Mrs. Mary M. Love, and Mrs. Sarah E. McDowell, was called up for trial. They were indicted on three charges, growing out of an attempt to obtain a pension from the United States, and the charges involved connesday with appropriate ceremonies.

Spiracy and bribery. It seemed that a son —Massy Hill, colored, who attempted an spiracy and bribery. It seemed that a son of Mr. and Mrs. Love had been in the army, and that after his return home he had been attacked with typhoid fever and died. Subsequently the parents received blanks from a pension agent in Washington, accompanied by a letter informing them that they were entitled to a pension, and requesting them to fill in the blanks so that the application could be made in due form. They returned the blanks several times, but finally concluded to attempt to obtain the persion which the agent asserted was due to them. Having gone thus far they indulged in the crime of forgery, and also perjury, the latter crime having been committed in making affidavit that the son had field from disease contracted while in the service. The husband, wife, and daughter live in Fairfield township. Westmoreland county, and up to the time of the charges being made in this case, were highly respected by their neighbors and ac-

As soon as the charges were made, however, the husband, who was an elder in the church, was summoned before session, and after a somewhat protracted trial was exonerated. When the case came on for trial in the District Court this week, District Attorney Stone moved for a nolle pros. so far as the husband was concerned, and Mrs. Love and her daughter, Mrs. McDowell, entered a plea of guilty in manner and form as indicted on the three charges.

This morning the mother and daughter were present to receive the sentence of the The mother, who has reached a venerable age, was bowed down with grief. Her face was wrinkled, her hair almost white, and she was clad in deep black. The daughter sat close to her, and clasped the hand of the mother with such earnestness that it was observed by all spectators who were present. The father, who had been relieved from the tolls of the law, sat near his wife, and when she gave way to tears wiped his eyes in a nervous way that indi-cated deep feeling.

W. C. Moreland, Esq., attorney for the defendants, made a brief but feeling address to the Court. He said the guilt of the charges had been admitted, but he asked the Court to consider the age of the mother, and the temptations which had been held out to the daughter. While the father had out to the daughter. While the father had been kept in ignorance of what was going on, the claim agent at Washington had been isting on the mother and daughter filling in the blanks he had sent them. They had done wrong, but they did not seem to have had any conception of the wrong they were committing. He hoped the Court would be as lenient as was consistent with justice.

District Attorney Stone said the case was one of the saddest with which he had ever been connected. He alluded to the charges which had been preferred against the de-fendants, and said that as a piea of guilty had been entered it was his duty to ask the Court to carry out the law. He alinded teelingly to the gray-maired mother, and said that while he; was the prosecutor for the Government he would ask that justice would be tempered with mercy.

Judge Acheson, after the attorneys had concluded their remarks, said the case was certainly a most distressing one. That two women, respectably connected, should engage in such a crime and carry it out was almost beyond belief. In view of the plea made by counsel and the statement made Catholic; Americas Vospucius was a Catholic; Vasce de Gama was a Catholic; Vasce de Gama was a Catholic, and so was the heroic priest, Las Cassas. It was Catholics who movey to the front of destiny and assisted American freedom with their blood and treasure.

almost beyond belief. In view of the piear made by counsel and the statement made by the District Attorney the Court had concluded not to send the defendants to the penitentiary. The Court might err in this matter, but the error would be on the side matter, but the error would be on the defendants. The age of one of the defendants had influenced the Court in imposing the entence, and instead of sending the convicted parties to the penitentiary they would be committed to the Westmoreland county The parties were then each sentenced to the Westmoreland County jail on two indictments, and on the third were sentenced to pay a fine of $5, and $100 in addition to the prosecution. On the third indictment they were each sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs. After the sentence had announced ooth mother and daughter burst into tears, and some minutes elapsed proceedings were resumed .-Pittsburg Chronicle of Saturday.

The prisoners were taken to the iail at urg on Saturday afternoon where another sad scene was enacted. It is the genopinion that the old lady will not outlive her two years' imprisonment.

FOUR MEN KILLED AT THE POLLS .-Four white men were killed and two severely wounded by negroes on Tuesday last at Marion station, Miss. The negroes opened fire on the whites at the polis while the election was going on. The whites had no arms to defend themselves with and conse quently none of the blacks suffered. One of the men killed was A. T. Harvey, Democratic candidate for County Assessor. Sheriff, with a posse from Meridian, found about a hundred negroes barricaded in the dwelling house of their leader. Ed. Vance. The posse were fired upon by negroes as they approached the house. Another body of armed men from Meridian went to the e of the disturbance to assist the Sheriff. With this exception the election in that annty passed off quietly and orderly.

A Sheriff's posse, consisting of about one undred men, surrounded Ed Vance's house to capture the instigators and perpetrators of the murders, and demanded their surren-der, which was refused. John Vance, aged a son of Ed. Vance, riding up, pointed a gun at the posse and was shot and killed A. G. Warren, of the posse, was killed in stantly by a shot fired from inside of the house Ed. Vance and the negroes escaped. Several negroes in escaping were shot at and wounded. Will Vance, aged about 30, a son of Ed. Vance, was captured and lodged in jail. The Sheriff received a slight wound from a spent bullet. Hardin Jones, of the se, was slightly wounded. Vance and the negroes fought desperately all day.

THE Irish landlords are greatly alarmed at the recent decisions of the Eand Court. If rents are to be reduced 30 per cent, the oss to landlords will not be less than 27,000, 000 a year. The English landlords are also panic stricken, knowing that it is their turn next. It is rumored that Mr. Parnell and the other imprisoned members will be released before Parliament meets.

-A special despatch relates a heroic act of Antoine Freitag, a native of Poland, in saving a passenger train on the Lake Shore road near Otis, Ind. On Monday last Freitag and several other section hands were riding on a hand-car, when a special train came upon them suddenly. They could all save their lives by jumping, but the alternative might be the wrecking of the train with loss of life. They resolved to take the hand-car from the track, and Frettag volunteered to take the post of extreme danger. Every man's strength was essential to success.

of a suit of clothes that was made for him at the Atlanta (Ga.) Exposition: "That coat was made in a day. The cotton was growing in the morning and I was receiving it in the evening. It was brought to me at Gov. Colquitt's mansion, two miles outside the city of Atlanta. You couldn't tell it from broadcloth in the evening, but of course in the daytime and under close inspection it looks rough and shows its true character." witness the show. The girl was 17 years old and the boy 16, and they became companiely fascinated with what they witnessed, and decided to join the circus. The girl fasting her sax would stand in the way of her designs, donned a shabby sail belonging to her brother, and succeeded in securing a situation with him without betraying her identity. The show went south from this point, taking the twain with them. The father and mother of the two were frantic with grief, not knowling what had become of their children. They remained in town secural days, searching for them everywhere, but, being unable to find them, returned to their mountain home atterly bewilnered by their best and the mystery in which it was shounded. Today's train from Texas brought beak the children, who rate away just a year ago. In the tweire months which have elapsed they have learned enough experience to last them during the remainder of their lives. They were hires by the management of the show at $2 per week, which the interpering affection to the blisteria use to the blisteria. agement of the show at $2 per week, which to them seemed a large sum, and took part in the outsert which followed the regular performances. They traveled through the greater part of Texas, the gitter and tinsel of the business fading away at every step. Finally, when at Galvest a, the manager grew weary of them and set them adrift. They were thus left without a friend and withouly $5 in money. This was in December last. The girl had kept the secret of her sex so well that no one except her brother took her to be other than a comely youth. Alone and in a strange city, they were gird to get a situation at once, and the only comely youth. Alone and in a strange city, they were giad to get a situation at once, and the only thing which offered employment was a briz plying between Galveston and New Orleans, and on it they both shipped. Their experience on board the brig was anything but pleasant, the crew being bolsterous and their employer atterly brutal. When they reached New Orleans they again ran away, forfeiting all their wages thereby, as they had contracted for the round trip. Here the bey was taken ill, and their situation was becoming critical, when the girl encountered a faster of charity to whom she told her story. Convinced into it was true, the sister had the sick boy removed to a charitable institution, where he was nursed back to health. She also provided the girl with garments suitable to her set, and succeeded in enlisting the interest of a wealthy and charitable lady of New Orleans in the children to so han extent that the lady furnished them with mone, to carry them home, and a comfortable out it besides. A MAN hal a curious race for life near Meriden, Conn. He swallowed a large doze of morphine, intending suicide, but quickly changed his mind, and started for the nearest physician, who was two miles, away. He felt the dangerous drowsiness stealing over him, and ran with all his might. The exercise kept him awake, but his month became parched, his eyes filmy, and his-stiength less He stopped to pray, but an instant of delay warned him that, unless he depended on miraculous help, there was no time to be lost on his knees. He at length stumbled into the doctor's office, and fell senseiess on the floor, but was saved by energetic treatment.
