

THE PHILADELPHIA TIMES

Now stands confessed at the head of Philadelphia journalism in all that makes a thoroughly complete, general and family newspaper. It is more complete in its news, in its special correspondence, in its varied contributions on all subjects of popular interest, and in all the qualities of a newspaper for the family and for the business man than any of its contemporaries, because its facilities and resources are equal to every want of a first-class national journal.

"The Weekly Times"

has nearly doubled its former large circulation during the past year. Its contributors from week to week are among the foremost men of the nation, and no department of news or literature is slighted in any number on any pretext. It is adapted as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate, while selections from other sources are liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travels and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the country is filled with news, and the selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE "ANNALS OF THE WAR"—chapters of unwritten history, contributed by prominent actors in the war of the rebellion, are a valuable feature of the paper and have become a recognized depository of such matters, whether from Northern or Southern sources. This department, as well as all others, will be kept fully up to the high standard of former years.

TOO MANY GOODS and NOT ENOUGH MONEY

Is what's the matter with us now! That is to say, we have bought such a large assortment of goods this fall that we cannot find room on our shelves and counters to place them; so we shall be glad to exchange them with the public for the public's money, as we can find plenty of places to put all the cash any of our old or new customers have to spare. In

BOOTS AND SHOES

We have the largest and most varied assortment we have ever carried. We have taken special pains in selecting our stock of LADIES' FINE SHOES, and we take pride in saying that we have the finest assortment in Philadelphia, while in BOOTS for MEN AND BOYS everybody knows we keep two as many as any other merchant in town; so it is useless for us to say anything further about Boots or Shoes, except that we have all kinds and quality, as well as either buckled or plain, for both sexes and of all qualities and sizes.

OUR STOCK OF CLOTHING

is much larger than we have ever before kept. We have found it difficult heretofore to account for our large assortment of clothing from 4 to 10 years of age, but now we have all the sizes requisite for children of any age, while for men we have suits at any price desired, and will guarantee to sell you a complete outfit as cheap as the same kind of a suit can be bought at any other establishment in the State. Our special bargain, however, and it is a great bargain indeed, is a SUIT WE ARE SELLING FOR TEN DOLLARS.

We claim that it is the cheapest suit of clothes in the country, and the very best for the money. We also have the ever displayed in Philadelphia. If you want to see the

Cheapest HATS and Winter CAPS

you ever did see, call at our store and we will show them to you. We challenge anybody to show you as good Hats at 75c. and $1.00 as we are offering at those prices. We have also a

LINE AS A PRESERVATIVE.

It would be interesting to record the many evidences of the value of lime in arresting decay. Long ago as 1700 a Mr. Jackson, a chemist, obtained permission to prepare timber for the shipyards, by immersing it in a solution of salt water, lime, muriate of soda, etc.; another practical experimentalist suggested slaking lime, and immersing it in a solution of glue, for moping the timbers of a ship. The preservation of timber has been attempted by surrounding it with pounded lime, and several attempts have been made to preserve timber by lime. Mr. Britton, in his work on dry rot mentions a number of cases where lime has been of service. He says, "Quicklime with damp has been found to accelerate putrefaction in consequence of its extracting carbon; but when dry and in such large quantities as to absorb all moisture from the wood, the wood is preserved, and the sap hardened." "Vessels long in the lime treated, have afforded proof of this fact, also examples in plastering laths which are generally sound where they have been found dry." The joints and surface of boarded floors are rendered less subject to decay by a coating of limewhite; and this might be renewed at intervals. The same writer adds, "It does not appear practicable to use thinbed with water for preserving timber, because water holds in solution only about 1-500 part of lime, which quantity would be inconsiderable; it, however, renders timber more durable, and is, as a time very hard and difficult to be worked." These facts are instructive; they show, at least, that lime in a sufficient quantity will preserve timber from decay, and some practical chemist might earn a deserved reputation if he could prepare a lime solution that would be capable of rendering so substantial a service to the timber trade. Such a solution would be at least sufficiently strong to make it worth while to try a few experiments in this direction. It is stated on good authority that the white ant in India, the government of India, for a year for repairing wooden bridges, etc., caused by its depredations. Concrete masonry has been found to resist the encroachments of the ant. Dr. Darwin proposed a process of timber preservation some years ago, in which an absorption of lime water was effected, and after that had dried a weak solution of sulphuric acid, so as to form sulphate of lime in the pores of the wood. The growth of dry rot or fungus on timber has been prevented by lime-water, and many instances have been mentioned of its value. The cleansing and sanitary virtues of lime-water are generally known. The painter uses lime-water to kill the grease upon his work instead of turpentine; and soot stains on the outside of flues have been removed by the agency of this simple and generally known. THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

CHARCOAL and honey, mixed together and used as a dentifrice, will whiten the teeth with a few applications.

A PIECE of linen cloth dipped in turpentine and wrapped round the toe on which a soft corn is situated will give relief and after a few days the corn will disappear.

An excellent poultice for use in cases of cold on the lungs or for cough or hoarseness in children is made thus: Take a small quantity of soft soap and thicken it with Indian meal or flour, and spread it upon a cloth, in a bed of it is put it into a small bag, and lay it upon the flesh. There is less danger of taking cold after removing it than if any other poultices, and it will work like a charm.

It is an old notion that it is healthier to sleep with the head pointing to the north, toward the north pole. It is if it does so good it can hardly do harm, and a physician writes to the Edin Journal of Medicine to support the old theory as really substantial. He has tried to experiment in this case, and his patients with marked effect, and says that there are known to exist geoelectric currents, always rising in a direction around the earth, and the nervous systems are in some mysterious way connected with this electrical fluid.

WITNESS CORNER—Medical opinion seems to be generally in favor of the efficacy of the carbolic acid treatment in whooping cough. Dr. J. Banning has been in the habit of using it for some time with very good success. A friend writes to him that he had a child in the bed with whooping cough, and that he had generally prevented any severe attack during the night. He is also found the administration in the ordinary course of whooping cough, he says, Mr. J. R. Cliding, M.R.C.S.E., considers carbolic acid the most successful mode of dealing with the disease which he has employed during the ten years he has been in practice. How TO MANAGE COUGH—A distinguished English physician, in a work on coughs and colds says if you must learn how to manage a cough we must learn how not to cough. The inclination to cough should not be suppressed until the secretion, the existence of which sets up the cough, is within your reach; a full inspiration should now be taken and the accumulated phlegm is then coughed out with a single effort; thus the mucous surfaces are not unnecessarily irritated, and a severe bronchial attack passes safely through its stages, whereas, if the cough is suppressed by violent and useless fits of coughing, it gets sore and raw. Again, by inhaling steam, or taking an ippecuanha lozenge or first waking, the dried secretion may be loosened and expelled, and the usual fit of morning cough partly prevented.

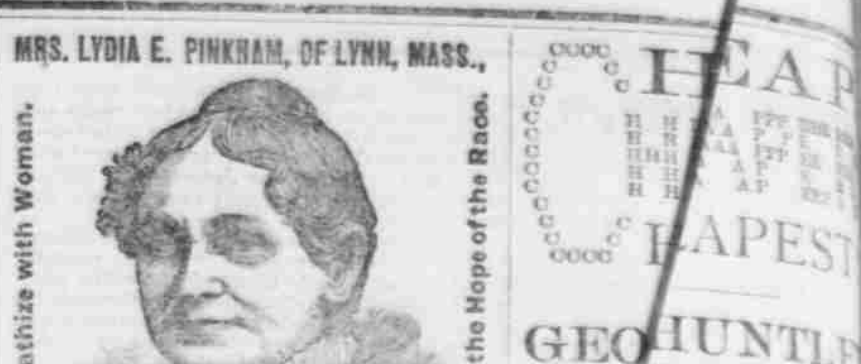

BEST ANTIDOTE AGAINST INFECTIOUS DISEASES.—It is terrible to read of infectious diseases with which we are still troubled. There are now whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and typhoid fever, and for fear that small-pox will invade them or spread within their towns are dreading the coming of malarial fevers; others are already suffering under diphtheria, while scarlet fever, measles, etc., are not even mentioned.

We think that a certain class of antiseptics have never been sufficiently appreciated in these cases. There is one especially which is particularly to be trusted, the fumes of boiling vinegar.

They dispel infectious particles rapidly and kill their virulence, particularly if used in time. Where these fumes are used, windows and doors should be closed and not opened for about twenty minutes. After this the fresh air can be freely admitted. When these fumes are used repeatedly, disease will usually be kept off.

This is also an excellent preventative among cattle and sheep against infection, and even a curative in certain cases. The great power of acid to dispel and kill malarial particles is not sufficiently appreciated, and any one who makes a trial in the simplest form by allowing the fumes of boiling vinegar to spread about.—Food and Health.

THE water-boatsmen among the most agile of water insects row themselves along under side of logs. This habit is of great use to them in feeding, for many of their victim-like hard backs, so the water-boatsmen dive down and come under their prey, thus attacking them from their soft side.
