VACANT PLACES.

When the lingering rays of twilight Softly melt in sombre gloom, And no more the cheery day-beams Light the social sitting-room; As we group around the fireside. Do we miss no cherished face-

Some dear face which those around us Cannot from our memories chase? Some dear tones which have entwined so Round the tendrils of our hearts,

That we most seem to hear them When the loved one e'en departs ; And each gentle, kind word spoken, We do vividly recall.

That we seem again to hear it Now, as the evening's shadows fall. Still, alas! the vacant piaces Show that fancy's dream is this-Tones and words and dear, sweet faces, All around us still we miss.

No! not e'en to-morrow's dawning Shall the missing's ones restore; Still remain the vacant places Which they never shall fill more. Spring may deck the mounds above them Flowers may wreath the hallowed mould,

Tears may fall from those who love them-Cannot warm the hearts there cold. Still the world pursues its pleasures-Passing pleasures -- bright but brief, Heeding not the vacant places

Nor the fond hearts plunged in grief. Ah! ye sorrow-stricken mourners, Who are tempted to despond.

Who can only view earth's shadows-Is there nothing more beyond? See you not the silver lining To the clouds that now hang o'er ; Know you not that all your loved ones Are but safely gone before?

Gone where never shade of sorrow, Doubt or darkness can find room Poor bereaved ones! do you see not All that lies beyond the tomb? Death is but the gloomy portal To that bright home of the blest;

While you mourn o'er vacant places, Those you miss are gone to rest.

HOW JIMMY NURSED THE BABY.

I never could see the use of tubies. We have one at our house that belongs to mother and she thinks everything of it. I can't see anything wonderful about it. All it can do is to cry, pull limit and kick. It hasn't builf the sense of my dog, and can't ever chase a est. Mother and Sne wouldn't have a dog in the house, but they are always going onabout the buly, and saying, "Ain't it perfeetly sweet !"

The worst filing about a baby is that you are expected to take care of him, and then you get scolded afterward.
