SOME SEVERE WINTERS.

NOTABLE STORMS AND STINGING COLDS In the course of the winter of 1814, not only was the list of persons who per-ished in the snow a painfully long one, but many animals were lost, particularly sheep. There were, however, some remarkable instances of the latter being rescued, after a protracted entombment One belonging to a gentleman from the south of Scotland was rescued after having been burled for six weeks. It was not much the worse for the imprisonment; for, atter a little stumbling it was able to walk home before its shepherd, and by and by was as strong as the rest of the flock. On the 22d of February, a sheep belonging to a farmer n Berwickshire was dug out, after having been entombed for fourteen days in Neither are instances wanting of the almost miraculous preservation of human beings when buried in a drift wreath. Few more remarkable than the following will be found, which occurred at the village of Impington, about three miles from Cambridge. On the 2d of February, 1799, Mrs. Elizabeth Woodcock, a respectable resident of the village, on returning home from market, was overtaken by a snow-drift. Lying down beside a hedge, she was immediately enveloped, and remained there until the 10th of the month—a period of eight days and eight nights. During the interval one of the villagers is said to have dreamed on three different occasions, that a hare was to be found at a particular spot at the roadside near the village. Immediately after the last occasion he resolved to go and see; and on doing so, he discovered a handkerchief in a hole in the snow; and on further search, to his amazement, found Mrs. Woodcock. She was conveyed, in the full possession of her faculties, to her family and friends, who had given her up as lost. She said she had a distinct recollection of hearing the village beils chiming for the church service, on the day after that in which she was inwrapped in what she believed was to be her winding-sheet; and equally good was her hearing on the morning of the day on which she was rescued, when on the bells chiming, she recognized them. About thirty or forty years ago, a monument commemorative of the event, with an inscription stating the particulars, was erected on the spot; and persous are said to be still living in the vilage who remembered having seen Mrs.

The great storm of 1795 lasted for fifty-one days; and on a simultaneous appeal being made to the "oldest inhabitants" in all parts of the country that venerable personage positively failed to conjure up from memory a parallel winter, unless, indeed, it was that of 1740. On the Thames, there was a general suspension of commerce, and it was said that there were no fewer than four hundred vessels fast in the ice. During the months of January and February, a great many persons perished in the mow or from cold-not a few in circumstances exceedingly painful, But there was also a very considerable catalague of gallant rescues. We select the following two examples of deliverance effected by the agency of dumb animals, that have always been among the best friends of man. One day toward the end of January, a Norfolk farmer, while ning home from the town of Norwich, became so benumbed by the cold that he was compelled to lie down in the snow. He would undoubtedly have perished but for his dog, which, with a pathetic sagacity, stretched its body across its master's breast, and so protected his lungs from the cold. In this position it lay for several hours, until at length, by continued barking and howling, it attracted attention and relief. An almost equal power of discernment was displayed in the following instance: About the same period, while a farmer near Huntlycote was, with the assistance of his shepherd, relieving some sheep from a snow-drift at the side of a bank, a large quantity of snow shot down in the form of an avalanche from the higher ground, and enveloped the two men. They must have remained, and perhaps perished, but for the sagacity of their two faithful collies. The dogs at once scampered home, and by their excited demeanor and continuous howling, aroused the suspicions of the women, whom they by and by induced them to follow them to the spot, and where the animals commenced to scrape the snow; and the situation having thus been made plain, the men were dug out, after a confinement of six hours, of which, however, they were not much the worse. - Chambers' Journal.

A PECULIAR PLANT, -American ladies will prick up their ears at the information that serkys is a plant much in use among the womon of Eastern Europe in order to inhance and retain their charms. Its properties have been known to Turkish women ever since the introduction of coffee into Europe, It is said to be a little herb which grows at the foot of the Mountains of Lebanon spoonful of it in a breakfast-cupful of boiling water forms a delicious infusion, which may be drank with milk and sugar like ordinary tea, but is far more pleasant to the taste. Its great recommendation to the fair sex is that it has the virtue of retarding the ravages of age on all those who drink it daily. Dr. Paul Lucas, physician to Louis XIV., mentions it in his travels. He relates that, having been called on to attend the widow of Hassan Pasba, he was surprised to see her waited upon by two young woman, apparently 25 or 30 years of age, whereas he knew that it was customary for her to be waited upon by old women only. On expressing his surprise he was told that both those young adies were over 60 years of age, and that they owed their youthful appearance to the abundance of serkys tea which they drank. Dr. Lucus immemediately asked for some of the piant, and took it with him to France. It is supposed that he made a present of it to Ninon de l'Euclos, and that it was the mysterious secret of her extraordinarily youthful appearance when old. There is a great run on this article not in Paris just now, for the doctors have discovered that it purifies the blood and thus preserves the skin fair and transparent as in early youth. It also makes the flesh firm and is particularly conducive to a full bust. About three years ago it was reintroduced into Paris by a French doctor who had traveled in the In Turkey, where it costs but little, it is often mixed with the water of the bath. Taken, however, in the same manner as tea, twice a day, its of feets are said to be certain. It costs five five francs an ounce; but a thimbleful is enough for a breafast-cupful of the

OBJECTIONS TO SHEEP.

With all the advocacy that has been made in favor of sheep breeding by those who have found it profitable, the one single objection so common to farmers has stood in the way and been an obstacle almost since the settlement of our country. The repungnance to sheep is the fact that they graze too close. Farmers are willing to risk all the disadvantages of foot rot, grub and other diseases, but this great terror of close grazing is too much for them. In vain have the large yields of wool from the Cotswolds and Merinos, been displayed, and useless have been the exhibits of the marbled carcasses of the Southdowns. The close cropping of the pastures cannot be borne, and the consequence is that the most useful and easiest kept animal we have is pushed aside for those that often do tenfold more damage,

This very objection, so strenuously held forth, is one of the highest merits possessed by sheep. It is the quality of being able to crop off the scantiest herbage that grows on profitless places, that makes them desirable as farm stock. Their ability to endure great thirst, or rather, to better state it, to do with little water, enables us to keep them in fields not adapted to other stock. It is true they crop down to the very roots, leaving but little; but the weeds, as well as the useful plants, receiv the same treatment, and the waste matter that is rejected even by the hog is an item in favor of the keep of the sheep. There never has been a pasture, or a cultivated field, nor a barren waste that has not been benefitted when grazed up on by sheep. The evenness with which they spread their droppings, the treading of it into the ground with their feet, and the constant motion kept up by the flock that facilitated this disposal of dropping, prevents not only the slighting of any portion of the land, but enriches it to a degree beyond even the supposition of those who are aware of such advantages. The close grazing is thus not an actual loss of grass, for by a frequent change of pasture and reseeding, the sheep leave the land in a condition to produce a much larger quantity than before. Let any farmer select a pasture and stock it with sheep, giving them privilege to eat as close as they wish. him smother his feeling of horror at th sight of disappearing grass, and patiently wait—wait till the season for breedng and marketing is over-and then figure up the receipts and expenses, valuing his pasture at its worth the time the sheep were placed therein. With all the objections that can be conceived against them the farmer will find that, for the amount of capital invested in the sheep, he has realized more than from any other animals on the farm, and this will not include an item that belongs in favor of the sheep, which is the increased fertility imparted to the land. In fact it is a difficult matter to keep sheep without profit. They pay in the face of every obstacle. Most farmers delight to keep up old pastures, but old pastures in time become well run out, and weeds will be doubly fortified if farmers will cross their sheep with thoroughbred rams. If great carcasses and long wool are wanted use the Cotswold; but this tioned a large lot of breed needs a little better pasture than the others. If the fineness and weight of the wool is desired try the Merino, but do not expect large sheep from them as they are the smallest breed, but the best, and very hardy. If mutton is needed, with good middle quality of wool, try the Southdown, with its dark face and legs as its badge of purity, and the result will be satisactory. The flock will be improved, the prices greater and the weight of carcass and fleerce increased. Sheep will pay even when badly treated, sometimes; but like other stock care and attention bring their reward, the farmer being more than repaid for any trouble they give. Give them the pasture and keep large flocks, and let them crop close if they wish, for they will pay their debts in full at the proper time.

HOW TO KILL WHEAT MOTHS.-I know of but one efficient remedy for this insect, and that applies as well to the weevil and to the Angoumois grain moth, which is said to do no little damage in the southern and southwestern part of our country. I have frequently seen every kernel of corn in samples fram the Gulf States perforated by this latter moth larva. The remedy proposed is bisulphide of carbon. We have only to pour a quantity of this into the bin at the bottom of the grain to kill all of the insects. It is very penetrating and volatile, and equally deadly to all the insect tribes. I think that a half pint of the liquid would destroy the in-sect tribes. I think that a pint of the liquid would destroy the insects in a bin of 50 to 100 bushels of grain. Not having experimented with grain in such quantities I cannot give the precise quantities of the liquid to be used in fferent sized bins of grain, but this can ply the remedy it is desirable to pour the liquid at the bottom. der—a gas pipe will do—and fit into it a wooden rod, which shall be a little longer than the iron tune.
