VARIETY IN FOOD.

There is nothing more acceptable t the appetite than a change of diet. long continuation of the food, prepared in the same way, is extremely tiresome. It is easy to have a variety, if one chooses to manufacture it, out of the same materials. For instance, one wearies of having boiled potatoes continually. They are good and wholesome, but it is easy to mash the potatoes, add a little milk and salt, heat it in the oven, and set the dish on the table in a new form; or cut the potatoes up, when cold, in chips, and stew them in a butter gravy till well scalded. It is a delightful change, and an economical one, too, for it saves the whole potato, which is quite an item in many families at present prices. Slicing and frying cold potatoes in drippings is another good way to cook this vegetable. In meats, too, different methods or cooking are very desirable, as well as saving. One gets tired of fried meat; it is better occasionally to roast, bake or stew. There are so many dainty methods of preparing meats for the table that it really seems as if there is little need of urging the necessity of change in the lies are in the habit of having the same 14 Samuel Gill...... bill of fare all the week.

people who live in this style like to make visits, so as to get a change of diet once in a while. Vegetables should form an item of food at every dinner table. Perhaps farmers cannot obtain so great a variety of these as if they lived great a variety of these as if they lived hext to a market, but every man who hext to a market, but every man who have cables onlines onlines.

19 J. B. Kauff healthy appetizer to one's meals. Apples and pears, if eaten after meals, are a most wholesome luxury and one which all enjoy. Fish is another pleasant change of diet, and is far better for an occasional meal than for a regular summer diet. Indeed, there is no kind of food that will not tire one, and satiate the appetite if used all the time. All kinds of poultry make a very inviting meal occasionally, but one cannot relish them for many days in succession. It is the same with pastry, a change is needful in order to have it highly appreciated. Bread is the only compound of which people never get tired, and they enjoy that occasionally toasted better than to have it set on the table in a stack of thin slices. I know that some claim that it is of no account what you eat, if it is sweet and wholesome and will sustain nature, but it is not true. Our happiness and bodily comfort both depend in a great measure upon the food we eat and the manner of cooking Admitting this fact it is an important branch of science to understand cooking in all its forms, and be able to make victuals as tempting and palatable as they can be cooked. I do not believe in too rich food, or extravagance, but in light, wholesome, plain and substantial food, cooked and arranged on the table so as to look nicely and taste well besides, Let the housewife seek for a variety of dishes-not for a variety at one meal alone, but a change for every meal. It is just as easy as the everlasting sameness that clogs the appetite of a family. Hash for breakfast is very welcome once a week, but having it seven times a week is six times too much. So with every kind of cooking. Baked beans have them four or five consecutive days, would incline one to the belief that he is not very fond of beans. Circumstances alter cases, but a little forethought will generally arrange matters. es alter cases, but a little forethought will generally arrange matters so that the mistress of a family can vary the bill of fare, so as to have her cooking enjoyed and appreciated. Professor Judd in his recent volume on volcanoes. It will be a novel idea for many of us to imagine the earth like a globular bottle of effervescent liquid, and its crust like ice covering a lake of aerated water. But such a constitution would account for many of the phenomenature of the pheno which usually herald them, the rise of molten material in a fissure, the exist-ence of permanently liquid lava like that

> GUM ARABIC. - The most familiar obects about us are often least underand from whence it comes ? In Morocabout the middle of November (that after the rainy season), a gummy ce exudes spontaneously from the runk and branches of the acacia. It gradually thickens in the furrow down which it runs, and assumes the form of oval and round drops, about the size of a pigeon's egg, of different colors, as it comes from the red or white gam tree, About the middle of September the Moors encampon the borders of the forest, and the havests last a full month, The gum is packed in large leather sacks and transported on the backs of camels and bullocks to sea-ports for shipment to different countries. The harvest occasion is made one of great rejoicing, and the people, for the time being, almost live on gum, which is nutritious and fattening. Such is the commercial tale of this simple but useful article.

UNDER THE WATER

The way that fish live, their structure and motion, are exceedingly curious, and only afford fresh proofs of the wisdom and power of God; for all must know that in order to live in water the bodies of creatures must be very differently made from those which live only John H Clark ... $50 00 John Metugar ... 50 C A George ... 50 Pat J McCormick 50 George Brandt ... 50 C Mulherron ... 50 Margaret Hoelle ... 50 John Hamilton ... 50 50 C Robine ... 50 50 upon land, and this is the first peculiarity we find in both the exterior and interior structure of fish,

"Why," you will ask, "have most fish a slender, thin body, flattened on the sides and pointed towards the head ?" and the question, on a moment's reflect tion, answers itself. Why but to enable them to swim and move easily through the water?

Why are they generally covered with scales, if not that their bodies may be defended from the pressure of water, so entirely surrounding them?

Why are many fish, particularly those which have no scales, enveloped with a smooth, oily covering, but to preserve them from injury and keep them warm? Their bones are peculiarly light and flexible, and the construction of eyes of fish are both curious and wonderfully adapted. Being in an element so much more dense than our air, they could see nothing, and, indeed, would be blinded by the strong reflection of the rays of light were it not for the sperical or globe like form of the portion of the eye known as the crystalline humor, by which the rays of light are so much better collected.

Although they have no eyelids, and cannot even draw back their eyes, the intense hardness and horn-like nature of the cornea preserves them from all danger. Their flus are, then, only limbs, and by them they perform all the different motions.

By means of the tail fin, they move forward; the back fin directs the motion of their bodies; their breast fin en" ables them to rise to the surface of the water, while the fins under the body preserve their balance.

The gills are their organs of breathing. They are placed, as you will always no-tice, behind the head, and are mostly four on each side, the uppermost being the largest. They constantly take in water by their mouths, and evacuate it though these gills. Then the blood, which comes from the heart and passes through the veins of the gills, does not return through the lungs to the beart again (as in all land auimals), but is disributed directly to every part of their

But the great organ most essential to fish in swimming is the air bladder, inclosed in the body, and connected with the stomach. By means of this bladder they make themselves more or less heavy, as when it is inflated they become lighter, rise and swim near the top of the water, and when it is contracted and the air in it compressed, they become heavy and sink in the water.

The immense number of fish, and the great variety of shape and size, also merit our attention. In the waters of Germany alone there are known to exist almost five hundred different species of fish, and one of the smallest as well as the largest. Some are long and fine as a thread; round, triangular, etc. Some are armed (as it were) with a horn, some with a kind of saw. Some have regular nostrils, through which they drive out the extra amount of water they have swallowed. And many more wonderful things can be written about these dwellers of the mighty deep. But even from this little outline we may learn of the wisdom of the great Creator in adapting each and every living thing to its uses and its element, and truly appreciate the words of the royal Psalmist when he tells us, "They who go to sea in ships, who do business in the mighty waters, these see the works of the Lord and his wonders in the deep, "-Mrs. A. Mitchel in Golden Days.

A RIVER UNDER GROUND .-- Mete Green, not long since, while out with his cattle, made a most startling discovery, and one that may possibly take its place among the grand wonders of Idaho. He was riding along early in the morning on the divide between Indian Creek and Snake River, when his horse sprang aside, snorted and otherwise A GREAT CAUSE OF HUMAN MISERY gave evidences of having heard something unusual. The spot was a little knoll on the comb of the ridge, and Mete who had been almost asleep, taking a sweep around with his eyes to learn the A Eccture on the Nature, Trentment, and Radical Gere of Seminal Wenkness, or Spermaterrhous, induced by Self-Abuse, Involuntary cause of his horse's fear, finally rested his vision on what seemed to be a hole materrhoea, in I need by Self-Abone, Involuntary Emissions, Impo eccy. Nervous Debility, and Impediments to adarrhage generally; Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits: Mental and Physical Incapacity, &c. By ROBERT J. CULLVERWELL, M. D., author of the "Green Book," &c.

The world renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awoll consequences of Self-Abuse may be effectually removed without dangerous surgical operations, bougies, instruments, ribgs, or cordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once estain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically. in the ground a few paces distant. Dismounting he was soon looking into a funnel-shaped orifice fifteen or twenty feet deep by ten or twelve at its rim in diameter.

At the bottom of this funnel-the soil giving out there--was a rift in the rock two or three feet in width by four or five feet in length, which seemed to open in the bowels of the earth. Through this aperture came up from the depths a terrible roaring, as of a leaping cataract, a mighty rush of waters, tumbling over THE CULVERWELL MEDICAL CO.,
