—At Greenfield, Ind., on Saturday evening James Meek, a young man and a painter by trade, while under the infidence of liquor, accosted Albert Daily, saying, "You stole my chips." Daily replied with an oath, "I did not." Meek thereupon turned and left him, saying "I will see you later." In about twenty minutes Meckreturnes, and drawing a pistol fired at Dally's forehead, making a fatal wound. Meek then walked off about twenty feet, placed the pistel to his right temple, and fired. Meek is dead, and Daily's deafli was expected at any moment.

—A man may be a hero and yet an unlucky one. For instance, in New York, Policeman Thomas McBride, according to the San, is known as the "Life Saver," as he has rese many persons from drowning, and two from a burning building. Last week he lost by death his father, mother and brother. His wife is now very ill. On Thursday night McBride, tired out, lay down to rest in the front room of his apartments. While he siept thieves entered by the back window and stole his clothing, jewellery, medals, shields, keys, and $30 in money. While he was at the funeral of his brother last week his net dog was stolen.

—A special telegram to the Pittsburg Dispatch, dated Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 7, says This afternoon Sister Agnes Gubert died at Mt De Chantal Seminary, near this city. She was, perhaps, the most noted teacher of vocal music connected with any institution in the United States. Twenty-five years ago she came to this city from Philadelphia and took the vell, and was soon afterwards placed in charge of the musical department of Mt. DeChantal, where she has been ever ce. She soon acquired a reputation as a musician, and when Parepa Rosa was in this city she visited the convent and Sister Agnes sang the "Alpine Echo Song" so sweetly that that great cantatrice frankly neknowiedged she was the greatest singer she had ever heard. Soon afterwards Max Stra koash offered her fifty thousand dollars for a season six months in concert, but Bishop Whalen deined to permit her to accept, and she remained at the school, where she devoted her talents to her always large class. In every State in the Union she has old pupils, who will remember her kindly, not only as a teacher but as a friend." May her soul

HOW TEN CHILDREN WERE DISPOSED OF. A Pole named Holm, living in the town of take, a southern suburb of Chicago, has eighborhood about eight years, and children ave been born to them with unusual fr causing much talk among the neighbors, but direct steps were taken nutil yesterday. After Holm's arrest he confessed that during the time he lived at Lake his wife had borne eight children, all of whom dien when very young, and that whenever one of them died the lake, and buried it in the sand. He said that the bodies of the eight infants were thus interred between Thirty first and Forty-third consented to this disposition of the bodies. He admits he sometimes hit the babies, but denies that he killed them. He states, more-over, that during a short residence in Neraska two children were born to them and died in a like manner.

A FISH WITH HANDS -In June of 1881 we published the subjoined: A most extraordinary creature was drodged up from the bottom of the sea, not long since, near the northern shores of Australia. The body was that of a fish, but, wonderful to relate, it had in place of fine four legs, terminated by what might be called hands, by which it made its way over the coral reef. When placed on the sky-light of the Australian Selipse Expedition, tells strange tales about rats. He ways a little island upon which he and his mates pitched their tents was overrun with them, and, what was most extraordinary, they were of every color, from black to yellow, and

One of the Sisters booked and drew up the animal from the ereck bordering the grounds The collar is perfectly defined and cocalli-form. At first we supposed it to be detach-ed from the body, but Mother St. Mary, who prepared the animal for preservation, orms us that the collar is joined to the flesh. It certainly is not only a "most extraord nary creature," but most extraordinario found, when we consider that the only other of which there is record-so far as we can learn-was dredged up from the deep sea of far Australia. - Cleveland Catholic University
