POPULAR WEATHER SAYINGS.

UPON WHAT THE WEATHER WISE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE BASE THEIR

[Correspondence Boston Journal.] The Chief Signal Officer at Washing-ton is seeking material for a collection of "popular weather sayings, proverbs and prognostics used throughout the country, and by all classes and races, including Indiaus, negroes and all foreign-The readers of The Journal may be interested to see a collection made in New Hampshire for his use. The writhe prognostics. He gives them as they were given to him, and the reader may adge for himself as to their value. The livision made by the chief signal officer are twenty-three in number,

1. The sun. A halo around the sun indicates that there will be rain or snow soon. If the sun rises clear and soon goes into a cloud it indicates that it will rain before night. If the sun will shine while it rains, it will rain the next day. A sun dog, or mock sun, indicates that there will be stormy weather soon. 2. The moon. "One Saturday change s enough for seven years," as there is a evere storm after it. The nearer the time of the moon's change to midnight, the fairer will the weather be during the seven days. The space for these calculations is two hours before and two hours after midnight and noon. A halo around the moon indicates a coming storm. The number of stars seen withn the circle shows the number of days before it will occur, If the new moon stands upright so that the crescent will not hold water, there will be rain, as the water must all descend. If the new moon is horizontal, so that the crescent will hold water, there will be rain, as the water collected will be poured down. Grain should always be sown in the new of the moon, that it may grow with the increase of the moon. The same rule should be observed in planting flower slips. To kill bushes they should be cut after the full of the August moon. when the sign is in the heart. Pigs and hogs should always be killed in the increase of the moon, or the pork will di-minish in balk while cooking.

3. Stars and meteors. The Aurora Borealis always indicates a change of weather, and if it is very red the weather will be very cold. If there are no falling stars to be seen on a bright summer evening, you may look for fine weather. If there be many falling stars on a bright summer's eve, you may expect thunder and heavy rain.

4. Rainbows, "If you go to the foot of the rainbow where it touches the earth, you will find a pot of gold," and when there is a rainbow in the morning there will be rain soon. When there is a rainbow at night, it will not rain the

"A rainbow in the morning Is the sailor's warning; A rainbow at night Is the sailor's delight."

5. Mist and fog. A sheet of fog along the river in the morning indicates that the day will be hot one. When the fog settles on the mountain in the morning it shall certainly rain before night,-"When the fog goes up the mountain you may go bunting. When the fog comes down the mountain you may go

6. Dew. When you feel the dew falling heavily in the evening, you may be sure it will be fair next day. When in the morning you see the ground covered rain before night, for the spiders are outting up umbrellas. But others say When the spiders put out their sun shades it will be a hot day."
7. Clouds. If the sky is very red in the west in the evening, the weather will be fair next day. If it is red in the east in the morning it is a sign of a big storm. If in the evening it is a deep red low down in the west and very black above it is a sign of rain. If there be a sheep sky, or white clouds driving to the northwest, it will be fine for some days. "Great clouds like an old mare's tail, Make great ships carry low sail."

S. Frost. White frosts on three successive nights indicate a thaw. If the tee erack much, you may expect the Snow. When black clouds are in the north, there will be snow. If on a fair day in winter a white bank appears very low in the south, it is an indication of snow very soon. If snow fall in large flakes, and they increase in size there will be a thaw,

10. Rain. If rain commences before daylight, it will hold up before 8 a. m. If it commences about noon, it will continue through the afternoon. If not until 5 p. m., it will rain throughout the night. If it commences after 9 p. m. it

'If it rains before seven. It will stop before eleven,"

If the wind is from the northwest or southeast the storm will be short : from the northeast, it will be a hard one; if from the northwest a cold one; and from the southwest a warm one. After it has been raining for some time a blue sky in the southwest indicates: fair weather soon. After it has been raining some time "if you see enough blue in the sky to make a Dutchman a pair of pauts it's going to clear off." 12. Winds. A south wind brings rain, a northeast wind a severe storm, and a northwest wind fair weather. If the wind veers around with the sun there will be fair weather. If the wind starts up while it is raining it will blow the rain clouds away and there will be fair

13. Animals. The following are said to be signs of rain: If bats fly low and come into the house; if cattle lie down in the morning and chew their end : if horses toss their heads, sniff and are uneasy; if rats and mice are restless and squeek; if swine are uneasy, grunt loud and squeel; it cats and dogs eat grass and sheep spring about more than usual "When the ass begins to bray,

We surely shall have rain that day."

When the donkey blows his horn, "Tis time to house your hay and corn." 14. Birds. Before rain, cucoos sing, eks and other fewl pick up and of their feathers, guinea fowls are noisy. swis hoot, peacocks equall, quails whistle, crows caw, swallows fly low and water lowis scream and plung into the water. If birds flock together in Septem-, it is the sign o' a coming storm. If crows are sen going a uth in the fall if is a sign of cold weather; but if they go orth there will be warmer weather.

15. Fish. Fish bite best before rain. there will be fair weather, but, before tain, wind or snow it will be agilated and will rise to the surface, and if it comes entirely out of the water you may expect flumder.

Insects, Before rain anta are bustling and active, and will earry their eggs from place to place; bees are busy, out do not go far from their bives; crickets sing and try to get into the house; fles are very annoying and bite OLD RELIABLE "ÆTNA" sharper than usual; and spiders spin gossamer webs in the air. Before rain tables may be heard to crack, violin strings will break, corns will be more troublesome, rheumatic pains more intense, and the places where broken limbs have united will ache.

20. Days of the week. If the sun sets clear on Friday night, it will rain before Monday night. If the first Sunday in the month be stormy, all the other Sundays in that month will be stormy also. But others have it, that two other Sundays will be stormy. Important business or agricultural opera-tions should never be commenced on Friday or Saturday. MAKING CIDER. Cider is something that cost but very little where the orchards are large and the fruit plentiful, as in its manufacture may be used much fruit that is unsalable. The best apples pay better when sent off; but there are many old seedling trees that produce nothing fit for eating, but whose fruit make good cider, and in some sections are used for that purpose entirely. While it is not necessary to use the best apples, yet good, sound, ripe ones only should be used. They should be carefully assorted, wiped clean and dry, and every unsound one discarded. The old method of preparing a bulky press in the orchard, to be left standing until next season, should be done away for we now have crushers and press that do the work in a more cleaner, better and economical manner, their cost being small compared to their effectiveness. As full directions for making eider accompany them it is unnecessary to go into details; but it is not every one who knows how to keep cider for any length of time. In order to do this the cider should be strained into clean barrels and immedietely placed under shelter. It should ferment until ready to put away if it is desired to be a little "hard." but if preferred sweet it should not ferment. To prevent fermentation at any time first place the cider in a barrel from which a stave of the head has been removed, care being taken to leave a space of about ten inches between the top of the barrel and the cider. Now place on the cider a deep block of wood, which, of coarse, floats, and on this place a half pound of sulphur. Set fire to it, close up tight as soon as you are sure the sulphur is burning, and leave it closed for an hour. Repeat this several times during the day, by igniting the unbarnt sulphur, and when the process is over put the cider in the barrel intended for Now fill the barrel with more cider and treat in the same manner, filling al most full the barrel previously used The operation is this: Sulphuric acid gas is formed, which the cider absorbs. This gas instantly arrests all fermentation and destroys fungus, the consequence being a good, sweet article for an almost indefinite length of time. The sulphur gas is perfectly harmless and imparts no unpleasant taste. To make apple butter the cider should be used as it comes from the press, as the sweeter the better, and porcelain lined pots are the best, as brass and iron often cause metallic precipitation from the union of the acid from the cider (malic) with the metal. This is partially avoided when the cider is very fresh, yet there is danger at all times. Exposure to the air allows eider to absorb oxygen, and we have vinegar. After a while the vinegar will be changed by the oxygen into carbonic acid and water, which is a return to its primitive condition before entering the apple. All the acids of fruits, whether tartaric, citric or malic are finally transformed into carbonic acid, and the decomposition of cider are only the progress of changes that are The LARGEST and MOST COMPLETE in the World ever taking place in substances formed by the union of oxygen and hydrogen in fruits, for the same change takes place among the expressed juices of blackberries, currents and even the vegetables. Sugar added to eider strengthens it in alcohol by adding more carbon. Cider is a healthy drink when not used to exvess .- Boston Star.

A Cure Worth Reading and Trying.

The following very carious communi-Mr. Julius Kircher, to the Journal of Austrian Apothecaries, at Vienna, we translate from the German for the benellt of those readers of the Morning Star who may be suffering from consumption catarrh, broughitis, or other kindred diseases. Mr. Kercher writes:

"I am the owner and overseer of an ultramarine factory which I have been running the forty-tour years on a plan of my own, In this factory a vast amount of sulphur is daily used and consumed whereby a large quantity of sulphuric contracted consumption or died of that lisease. Even those who came tainted with the disease became healthy and strong after working merely a few weeks amid the vapors of the sulphurcholera ever occured among my employes. In fact all diseases produced by microscopic animalcula soon disappeared in my factory, when exposed to the action of the sulphur. It is a well established fact that all catarrhal affections are soon cured by simply inhaling sulphureous acid. The acid kills the parasites that have entered and caused the inflammation, whereupon the pituitous glands are opened and phiegm is ex-pelled without difficulty. In the same way the little mites of the itch are killed by the action of the same acid.

"The discovery of bacteria in the lungs of consumptives proves that consumption, like the itch, is caused by microscopic animalcula, which infest and consume the lungs. As the origin of both diseases is analogous, the remedy for each is naturally the same, name ly, the action of sulphureous acid which destroys the bacteria of the lungs as well as the mites of the itch.

"The treatment of all consumptives should therefore be the following: Bring the patient to a room wherein small quantities of sulphur (about one or two drachms) are burnt every hour on a hot stove or over a light flame. The inhaling of the sulphur vapor will soon effect the comfort of the parasites or bacteria in the lungs. As a consequence, the patient will cough oftener and exsectorate copiously. After eight to ten lays the irritation and expectoration will entirely cease, because the bacteria will die off gradually. Thus the irritation on the lungs, membranes and serious fluids are stopped, and the patient is put on the way of complete recovery. Afterwards it is well to remove the patient to a place where he can inhale the vapors of aromatic water. My wish is that my observations and experience of many years may be made known, and that this often tried and always successful remedy may benefit suffering human-

A Missouri farmer writes: "As soon as I find an animal in distress from bloat (from eating wet grass or clover) I wet it along the back with cold well water, and also place a large cloth or blanket of several thicknesses over the paunch after being saturated with all the cold massi passages of charmal virus, caus-charmal virus, causapplied, one will not have to wait long for a cure."

> CROUP, it is said, can be cured in one minute, and the remedy is simply alum and sugar. The way to accomplish the cure is to take a knife or grater, and shave off in small particles about a teaspoonful of alum; then mix it with twice its amount of angar, to make it as possible. Almost instantaneous relief

MANY people have an idea that radishes are vegetables only suitable for the table in early spring, and they never sow them at times when they will be in good condition to eat at other seasons of the year. The fact is during the growing season.
