Our friend John, we have reason to believe, will vote the Democratic ticket all the same, and neither he nor any other Democrat should need a watch to tell them when it is time to perform that duty. P. S.—Since the above was in type the Altoona papers made a note of the robbery, putting Mr. O'Neill's loss at $300, which may possibly be correct.

-About five years ago, as we learn from last Monday's Johnstown Tribune, Wm. D. McMillen, a laboring man now about thirty years of age, and said to be sober and industrious, married a widow named Lee, who was the mother of three children-two boys and a girl, the latter named Antha, and now between eleven and twelve years of age. McMillen and his wife live in Millville, and since their marriage four children have been born to them. They apparently lived a peaceable and quiet life until last Saturday evening, when McMillen, his step-daughter, Antha, and her younger brother, it seems, were in a room of the family residence—that McMillen ordered the boy to leave the room from the Bi-Centennial: from the Bi-Centennial:

"Mr. Gottleib Bantley returned home from Philadelphia this morning on the second section of western express. He had in his possession when he boarded the train about $1,500-$250 in cash, and checks on New York banks representing the balance. He says he thinks he had the money yot when he left Altoona, but of this he is not sure. It is certain however, that he did not have it when he landed in this place, hence he naturally infers that some unconscionable scoundrel robbed him of his wealth. Telegrams were sent to Altoona and Pittsburgh by Chief Harris to stop payment of the checks if they should be presented, and messages were also forwarded to New York, Philadelphia, and other points to head off any attempts by the and other points to head off any attempts by the thisf or thieves to realize on the paper."

We have received a strange sequel to the above from our regular Hollidaysburg cordent, says the Altoona Tribune of Monday. How the pocket books got into the bull nose can be explained by no other hypothesis than that the thief placed them there after taking the amount of cash they contained. Here is the explanation :

Here is the explanation:

"Howard Nokes, of Gaysport, on Saturday morning found in the opening of a built nose of a freight car standing in the Alfoons yard opposite the passenger station three pocket broks containing cartificates of deposits and draits amounting to over twenty-one hundred dollars, all belonging to Gottleib Bantley, of Johnstown. When young Nokes discovered the treasure in the queer hiding-place he informed William Dent, jr., employed on the Holliday-burg branch train. He took them out and brought them home, and after an examination of contents telegraphed to Mr. Bantley. It is certainly a most singular find, but perhaps the owner may be able to account for his pocket books being found on this side of the mountain, in the coupling or link hole of a bull nose."

A CLEAR CASE OF ABSENT MINDEDNESS. A pretty good joke is told at the expense of a baggage master on the Western Division, R. R., and the best of it is that It is true in all essential particulars. It seems that the gentleman in question undertook to see that little boy who had been placed in his charge at Altoona should be safely delivered to his mother, who was to meet him in Pittsburgh on the arrival of the train in that city, and pursuance of his contract the baggage master took the lad with him to the passenger depot in Altoona, where he gave him his lunch basket and told him to go into the ticket office and sit there until he called for The boy did as instructed, but the baggage master forgot his part of the contract the boy until he began to feel hungry, being then well on his way to Pittsburgh, when the idea struck him that the lad and the lunch had both been left behind. The mother of the boy, who had come about fifteen miles for the purpose, was promptly on hand to meet her son when the train arrived in Pittsburgh, and the only excuse the b. m. had to offer was that he hadn't promised to bring the boy that day, but some other day. Mean-time the youth, finding that he had been left with the lunch and in the lurch, began to cry, which attracted the attention of some humane person, who took or sent him back to the residence of the absent-minded and absent-bodied baggage master, from whence he was taken to his destination the next trip.

THE Bi-Centennial was a big thing and a grand success in every respect. We were in attendance on Wednesday and Thursday, and like Brother Magee, of the New Bloom-field Democrat, for a crowd and a crush we never saw anything to equal it. Mr. John Wanamaker had the largest, finest and most expensive display, and the men from the Altoona R. R. shops did the best marching in Thursday's parade. The saddest thing was an accident at Fairmount Park during a display of fireworks on Tuesday night. By the bursting of a mortar six persons were killed and ten others more or less injured, two of and ten others more or less injured, two of whom have since died. Oak Hall and the

Bi-Centennial.

Our exhibit in the Trades Procession of the Bi-Centennial Celebration on October 25th will illustrate the great stock of men's and boys' clothing now ready in Oak Hall. Our preparations for the trade of this Autumn and Winter already reach

One Million Dollars.

Our stock is in all respects the best we have ever offered, and we firmly believe has never been equaled in volume by any retail clothing house in America.

Do not fail to visit Oak Hall. Look at the Clothing and Piece Goods, go through the workrooms and see how the vast place goes on. We have a hearty welcome for all, whether buyers or visitors. The tens of thousands of friends we have made in the country about Philadelphia during the last twenty-two years are, we are sure, more firmly our friends than ever before. We have gained their confidence by giving them the best dollar's worth of clothing to be had anywhere, and we offer a new pledge of fidelity in our low prices and elegant Autumn stock for this year's sales.

ALTOONA, PA., OCTOBER 27, 1882.-16. Tus boys have come back to their schools, PUBLIC SALE To violate grammar and rules,

The lawless joke and the stealthy grin.
The clinging wax and the crooked pin.
The capsized ink and the whispered din.
Ah, me!

Ah, me!

Those bovs will need a suit of new heary clothing shortly—likely. The New York Clothing Hall, 210 Main street (next door to the Opera House), Johnstown, has just the article you need. Its stock is foll to overflowing with garments of approved material and manufacture, cut in the the latest styles. The display of overcoats is particularly fine. West for men for either business or dress purposes is also on hand in bewildering variety of cut and color, and everything will be sold at prices satisfactory to customers.

----Amp the overcoat in town, And the pancakes golden-brown On your plate, And the brooks that came to flow The autumnal rumors co-Hoborate—

That winter rapidly approaches. Get ready for That winter rapidly approaches. Get really for it! Doff your warm weather wear and procure clothing which will protect you from the north wind's piercing blasts. And when you go to tuy it, be sure to patronize Jas. J. Murphy. 190 Clinton street, Johnstown. He has the buggest and best atock you ever laid your even on, and the prices will astonish you by their liberality. If you buy from Mr. M. you will be sure to get the worth of your money.

"I'M in love with your figure," the young man fighed;
"You cipher me, then," the young lady replied.
"Let's add both our fortunes and then divide."
And then they were married and multiplied, And then they were married and multiplied,
That they acted wisely none will dispute, and it may be added to their credit that both parents and the multiplication-table referred to ever and always made it a point to buy what boots and shoes they needed at S. Blumenthni's, 1110 Eleventh avenue, Altoena. The establishment of that gentisman is well known to be the largest of its class in this part of the State, white no chaim has ever been put in that the same quality of goods can elsewhere be purchased nearly so cheap.

WALNUT LEAF HAIR RESTORER. WAINUT LEAF HAIR RESTORER.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead, and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. SMITH, KLINE & CO., Wholesale Agents, Philadelphia, and C. N. Chitzenov, New York. [6-2-1y.]
