Congressional districts of Pennsylva-The act of Congress of February 25. 1882, fixes the number of Representa-

It also provides that these twenty-eight Representatives shall be elected by districts composed of contigious, territory and containing as nearly as practicable the same number of inhabitants," and that no district shall elect more than one Representative. It will thus be seen that the law lays down three rules to be observed in the formation of Congressional districts to wit : that the districts shall be sinlican, than any other man ever exergle, that they shall be composed of contigious territory, and that they shall be other arising from the spirit of our State Constitution upon the subject of apportionment, and from the accepted principles of fairness and public convenience, and that is that the districts be reasonably compact as well as contigous. Of the twenty eight-districts eighteen are surely Republican, seven are Democratic and three may be classed as doubtful, though of these three one is at present, and has been for years, represented by a Republican, and the other two have been carried as often in the Appollo-like figure. It was a corious sight himself to death. He was forty-five years last decade by that party as by any other. Regarding these districts, however, as doubtful, the bill gives eighteen Republican and seven Democratic districts. How has this result been reached ? The leading issue made by Forsker's supporters in that apportionment question, true to the campaign was that in his boyhood he wore a pair of trousers made from an old coffee bag. The Convention that nominated him last week supplemented this rough and ready garment of Foraker's in his youthful days, by decorating him with the torn and tattered bloody shirt which has so often been used by the Republican party in its extremity, to fire the Northern heart. The Democratic Convention in the same State will not be held until some time in August, but if Allen G. Thurman, the noblest Roman of them all, could be induced to accept the nomination for Governor, there wouldn't be a shred left of Foraker's coffee bag and bloody shirt costume when the returns of the election were added up. The fear, however, is that Judge Thurman will not consent to take the nomination. Be this as it may, the Democrats of Obio will make a vigorous effort to carry the State.

ONE of the most important acts passed by the late Legislature is that relating to marriages. Under the provislons of the new law, on and after the first day of next October "no person shall be joined in marriage until a license for that purpose shall have been obtained from the Clerk of the Orphans' Court in the county where the marriage is performed." Minors can obtain the necessary license by presenting to the Clerk of the Court the written consent of their parents or guardians, which must be acknowledged before a Justice of the Peace or other officer competent to take acknowledgments.
