THE great strike of the Monongabela river coal miners came to an end last week. The miners demanded three cents per bushel, but went back to work at two ceuts and a half, the price they were paid when they struck for an increase of half a cent six months ago. During the long continuance of the strike about six thousand men were thrown idie, and the suffering endured by innocent women and children cannot be computed in dollars and cents. It is estimated that the losses of the miners in wages during the strike amount to nearly two million of dollars, to say nothing of the losses sustained by the owners of the mines. When the strike began the miners refused to abide by the award of the arbitrator agreed upon under the provisions of what is known as the "Wallace Act," which was passed to enable employers and employes to compromise disputes in regard to wages, and now after a long and bitter experience they have been compelled, in obedience to the law of self-preservation, to resume work at the prices they originally refused. The Wallace Act would have settled the difficulty promptly and satisfactorily if its provisions had been acted on in good faith.

The Legality of Bequests for Masses.

We believe the decision just rendered n Brooklyn by Judge Cullen, of the Supreme Court, in the suit of Holland against Smyth, is the first case which has arisen in this State involving the the British sparrows in England last year validity of a testementary provision for | will reach $4,000,000. prayers for the dead. The case is therefore one of peculiar interest and much buckwheat importance. The Court of Appeals had previously held that a contract made with a woman n her lifetime to expend certain money of hers for masses after she should be dead was valid. The court expressly declared that there was nothing illegal in the purpose to which she wished her money applied, and to which the person to whom she gave it promised and his sister. agreed to supply it. But no contract existed in the case presented to Mr. Justice Cullen. The testator by his will simply gave his residuaty estate to his executors to spend in procuring masses for the repose of his sonl; and the question to be decided was whether such a provision was good in law. Judge Cullen holds that it is, and the

The right of a man, however, to appropriate by will years pasto as much of his estate as he chooses to Harrisburg the erection of a monument to his memory has never been denied by the courts, after the claims of the testator's creditors were satisfied. The doctrine that a man may do what he will with his own has been strongly applied in cases of this kind in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Judge Cullen finds a close analogy between such provision for monu- 32,540. T ments and this provision for masses. In both cases the thing to be done is for the benefit of the dead, and if the expenditure for one purpose is so obviously lawfui as uniformly to have been recognized as proper in the courts, why should not the other purpose, which is just as worthy, also receive approval?

The suggestion has been made that a distinction exists, because monuments | Sunday, a him, threatened the judges with infamy afford gratification to the surviving Ky., Char relatives rather than to the dead them- tin quarr selves. This may be answered by saying that masses also gratify and solace leaden steps of justice welcomed with the friends of the deceased.
