The finest lines separable under the microscope, according to Mr. Crisp, of the Royal Microscopical Society, may be taken as 146,543 lines to the inch with white light, but the use of monochromatic light gives increase to 158,-846 lines to the inch, and 193,037 may be photographically recorded.

Reports concerning the meteoric shower of November 27, 1885, place it in the front rank among such phenomona. At places favorable for observation about one meteor per second, or 3,600 per hour were observed. The appearance of the shower according to the prediction confirms the theory that a dense stream of meteoric matter is traveling in the orbit of the lost Biela's comet.

A new illuminating agent, which an eminent Russian chemist predicts will supersede kerosene, has been tried in St. Petersburg. It is called pyronaphtha, and is prepared from the waste product of the Baku distillery of petroleum. It burns with a bright light, without smoke or vapor and is not liable to take fire accidentally or to explode.

A notable feature in the climate of Southeastern India, according to Col. B. Branfil, of the London Geographical Society, is the frequent lightning storms which occur daily for two weeks together, before the setting in of the southwest monsoon, unaccompanied by rain or any sound of thunder. This curious phenomonon is most frequent in districts where the land and sea breezes alternate with much regularity.

From English mortality statistics extending over a considerable period, Dr. Wm. Ogle finds that the death rate among clergymen is lower than in any other occupation. If the mortality for the three years 1880, '82 and '83 among ministers be represented by 556, that among farmers will be denoted by 631, among lawyers by 841, and among physicians 1122. The high rate of mortality among the doctors is a source of alarm to an eminent authority, and is regarded as demanding the most thorough investigation.

A new American process for rapidly drying timber, hides, wool, grain, and other substances charged with moisture, has been attracting considerable attention in England. It is called the cool dry air process, and consists in passing through the chamber containing the moisture-laden material a continuous current of furnree-dried air having a temperature of between 80 and 90 degrees Fahrenheit. The moisture is absorbed by the air in so remarkable a manuer that oak logs are reported to have been finished in nine days although natural drying would have required three or four years. The temperature is so moderate that delicate fibres, fabrics and chemicals are not injured.

In a late paper read before the Scotch Institution of Engineers, Mr. Peter Carmichael stated that all qualities of iron become hard and brittle after service in bollers for more than a dozen years, especially where exposed directly to the fire. In the furnaces even the best iron becomes as brittle as common iron in that time, and great care has to be taken in making repairs to prevent the plates from cracking. For this reason sixteen to seventeen years is long for a boiler to be in use, at a pressure of forty to fortyn-ve pounds. If used longer the pressure ought to be lowered. In two boilers that had been in use nineteen years the rivets were so brittle that their heads flew off on being struck.

Perhaps no more remarkable additions to human knowledge have been made during the past twenty years than those pertaining to the ocean, whose dark abysses have become familiar regions. The physical features have been quite clearly determined, while most surprising and until recently unsupected facts concerning the life forms of the depths have been revealed. The most extensive explorations were made by the British ship Challenger, which returned home in 1876 after three and a half years of investigation in all the oceans. By this famous expedition thousands of new organisms were discovered, in all localities and at all depths in the sea, and have been and are now being described by specialists in all parts of the world. There seems to be no part of the ocean bed so deep, so dark and so still, or where the pressure is so great as to have effectually raised a barrier to life in some of its many forms. Even in the greater depths all the great divisions of the animal kingdom ars represented. Descending into the deeper waters and proceeding farthseaward from the borders of the continents, species and the number of individuals become fewer and fewer, till a minimum is reached farthest from continental land and in the greatest depths. In the adaptations of organisms to deep sea conditions curious modifications have occurred, such as the disappearance or enlargement of the eyes, the elongation of fins antennæ, the increase In size and decrease in the number of eggs, and the development of phospho-

The Founding and Development of the Magic City of the South.

Birmingham, the magic city of the South, was incorporated December 19, is the county seat at present. The former capital town of Jefferson county was Elyton, distant about two miles, now a suburb of the city, containg a number of fine residences. James R. Powell, T. R. Miller and Samuel Tait were the original promoters and founders of the new city. They saw their chance to make a fortune, and had the nerve and means to go in and win by buying up the lands about the time the South and North Alabama and Chattathis then wild and comparatively unwealth here deposited.

About Women.

Some women can't pass a millinery store without looking in ; some men can't pass a saloon without going in. A woman never sees a baby without wanting to run to it; a man never sees a baby without wanting to run away gum arabic.

Women love admiration, approbation, self-immolation on the part of others; are often weak, vain and frivolous.

Ditto men. A woman always carries her purse in her hand so that other women can see it; a man carries his inside pocket so his wife can't see it.
