Concerning the data of the life era in other worlds than ours, he remarks: "In the presence of time intervals seem to be at once infinitely great and infinitely little-infinitely great compared with the duration of our earth, and infinitely little by comparison with the eternities amid which they are lost-what reason can we have, when viewing any orb in now is the time when that orb is, like our earth, the abode of life? Why should life on that orb synchronize with life on the earth? Are not, on the contrary, the chances infinitely great against such a coincidence? If, as Helmholtz has well remarked, the duration of life on our earth is but the minutest ripple in in the infinite ocean of time, and the duration of life on any other planet of like minuteness, what reason have we for supposing that those of life must needs be abreast of each other on the infinite ocean whose surface they scarcely ripple ? * * * than that life exists at this present time.
