

Farmers are using pure ground hone as a fertilizer, to a much greater extent than ever; there is no danger of injuring the soil with it if applied judiciously.

Never grease a hen that is setting. for if grease gets on the eggs it closes the pores through which the confined chick gets air, and the consequence is death to the chick.

Oats grown in a northern locality are much better than those grown farther nouth ; therefore, in selecting your seed CHICACO get from as far north as possible, and renew your seed every two or three VOATS.

If your garden soil is stiff and heavy. mark out a small space, spread on it a quantity of clean sand, and work it well Hes attained a standard of excellence which in with the soil ; in this spot you can ad grow radishes that are crisp, and not get pithy.

As soon as the soil is ready plant potatoes. Early planting of early varieties is advisable where the beetle is troublesome. If "the bug" attacks the crops do not delay the use of Paris green.

What new crop can I try this season In a small way that is likely to turn out more money than than those I have been growing-cauliflower, celery, cucumbers for pickles ? Perhaps I may find some seedsman who wants a careful man to grow some of his specialties.

A cheap and good disinfectant to use (about poultry houses and yards when contagious fowl diseases are present or feared, is made by dissolving 3 pounds and copperas in five gallons of water and adding one pint of crude carbolic acid. Sprinkle about the house and yards with a common watering pot.

Many of our people, says the Indiana Farmer, were taken in one year ago by in Obleage sharper who induced parties The Chicage Cottage Organ Co. to sign their names to their family record, for statistical purposes they claimed. Now they are called upon by another agent to pay for a $12 book, the history of Dearborn county, partly taken from old newspapers.

A Connecticut man says he has found four or five grades of Paris green offered in the market, and adds the manufacturers claim it is better to cheat the farmer a little in selling them the poison than to have them kill their potatoes by too liberal doses. How thoughtful these manufacturers are of their friends, the farmers, to be sure ?

We cannot afford to throw away the cobs. They should be made the most of, and the way to do it is to have the corn ground, cob and all. Out West they have big cob-crushing machines which crush the ear, husks and all, and the cattle eat these chips of ears with the corn on, and chew them well. It is an economical way of feeding.

Ducklings should not be allowed water beyond that furnished from a fountain from which they may drink, but not swim in. Young ducklings will stay in the water till cold and cramped, when the death rate will be great .-Ducklings kept out of water till grown have fully fifteen per cent. lower death rate than those which are permitted a
