

In view of the riotous and bloody demonstrations of the Orangemen in the north of Ireland over the defeat of Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill, the Pope has addressed a circular to the Irish clergy intimating a desire to have them abstain from political party strife.

STEVEN B. ELKINS, who did so much work for Blaine in the last Presidential campaign, says of Mr. Cleveland: "In some respects he is like Grant. He has a mind of his own. He is grand, sound sense. He is unaffected, unpretentious and a straight forward man. His intentions are good, and I believe that he wants to do the right thing by everybody. I find him a most agreeable man and one whom you can't help liking."

O'DONOVAN ROSA, who is one of the stoutest of the Irish in this country, thinks the defeat of the Home Rule Bill is the right time to re-organize the Democratic Movement, and he calls for five dollar subscriptions to be opened for the cause.

GENERAL JOHN GIBSON, one of the bravest and most brilliant of the regular army brigadiers, made the address to the graduating class at West Point on Saturday last, in the presence of General Sheridan and Secretary Endicott.

It is said that the marked simplicity which characterized the Presidents wedding was quite a surprise to the foreign visitors who were in Washington. Being accustomed to the pompous surroundings of European courts they were astonished when they saw the White House regarded by a single soldier, not even a footman lurking in its spacious grounds, and the doors opened and watched.

MINISTER GLADSTONE'S brief but eloquent address to his constituents of Middleham, says the Philadelphia Record, will furnish the keynote of the coming campaign. In this address he is less an expression of confidence in the good faith of the Irish people, and a desire that the honor of Great Britain should be restored to their Parliament.

HOME RULE got a big boom at a meeting held at the Hoffman House, New York, on Monday night, called the purpose of raising funds to assist Mr. Parnell in defraying the expenses of the approaching Parliamentary Election in Ireland. Eugene Kelly, the well known banker, who presided at the meeting, put down his name for $1,000, and two others subscribed the same amount, and several put their names down for $250 and $100, until the aggregate amounted to $14,000.

The Republican State Convention will meet at Harrisburg on Wednesday the 23rd day of June; the Democratic Convention will be held on Wednesday, August 18, at the same place; the Greenback-Labor Convention will also meet at the same place and on the same day, and the Prohibition Convention will assemble at Harrisburg, on Wednesday, August 25. Gen. Beaver will be nominated for Governor by the Republicans without any contest, and the balance of the ticket will be composed of the candidate now seeking nomination who has the endorsement of Matthew S. Day, who has usurped the position of chief boss of the Republican party in this State.

The New York World says: The Orange men of Ulster who have been cracking a few fragile skulls and destroying a few obnoxious tenements by way of demonstrating their hostility to Home Rule or any other kind of rule that involves good behavior, call for a bit of good news, and the three-legged bit of satirical poetry which describes that end of Ireland as peopled by:

It is a noteworthy fact that Samuel J. Tilden, who has been reported dead or dying a score of times within the last five or six years, is still able to answer roll call, and has outlived Garfield, Grant, Hancock, Hendricks and McClellan.

No man in England is more directly responsible for the riotous proceedings which disgraced Belfast last week than Lord Randolph Churchill. He visited that city about two months ago and the incendiary speeches which he then and there delivered were calculated above all other things to arouse a feeling of sectarian hate which culminated on Tuesday and Wednesday last week in the destruction of a large amount of property and the loss of several lives.

Lord Randolph Churchill inherits many of the thrifty and other qualities of his "great" ancestor and he would not be true to his character if, as one of the Tory leaders against Gladstone's Irish policy, he could refrain from setting ignorant and hot headed partisans on to kill their opponents if by doing so he could promote any party or personal purpose of his own.

MR. POWDERLY'S OPINIONS.

He defends the Home Club—ill advised Strikes in the Order Will Not Again Occur.

SCRANTON, June 8.—General Master Workman Powderly is at his home here. He said today that he had a first time in his life, and that he was well satisfied with the result of the special meeting of the General Assembly. In answer to a question as to whether he had been satisfied by the radical element in the Convention he replied:

"Considering the fact that the Convention granted everything that I asked for, and that I am anxious to hear that I was annihilated."

"What did the Convention refuse to do?" "I absolutely refused to accept my resignation as General Master Workman. I left the Chair and told the delegates they would have to accept it, but they positively refused. That doesn't look as if I was annihilated, does it?"

"The plan which I forwarded to the advance of the Convention was carried out. Hereafter no more strikes until the members have first voted on the question by secret ballot. Each man must record his vote. The strike called in the District of Columbia, and the members of that body will endeavor to effect a settlement by arbitration, so that the strike will not be continued. Not only this, but every week during the continuance of a strike the men will vote secretly as to whether they will continue or not. The feeling of the strike will be expressed by the vote. If the strike extends beyond the district, they will become a matter for the General Executive Board to consider. The strike system would not be possible unless the General Executive Board ordered it."

"No such thing was done. We did not, in fact, enlarge the Executive Board. We merely appointed, at my request, six men as the agents of that Board, and to act under its orders should they be required. They have no executive power, and simply carry out our instructions."

"Were you authorized to recall the commissions of the organizers of the strike? At my request, the commissions of organizers were cancelled, and I am authorized to appoint new organizers right along. Hereafter no man who is not authorized to drink will be appointed an organizer."

"A great deal has been said about the Home Club. What is the character of that club?" "The Home Club in the order is a body of men who get together to establish a home for aged members of the organization. The man who was most radical in the club was a Catholic priest, and he was the only one who was not a member. How serious the alleged opposition was to me was shown by the fact that I was unanimously elected at Hamilton last October. Not a man in the club had any objection to me in that club at present. Most of those wild rumors were set, about by reporters who were not in the club. I did not speak of giving them news."

"Are you a candidate for Congress?" "No, sir."
