COWS FROM THE CHANNEL ISLANDS. -Considerable confusion exists in the minds of many farmers in regard to the terms "Alderney," "Jersey" and "Guernsey as applied to cows from the Channel Islands or their decendants bred in this country. In a word, they don't quite know the distinguishing traits between a so-called Jersey cow and an Alderney, for instance. Properly speaking, an Alderney cow is one from the island of Alderney or its direct decendant, just as a Jersey is, properly speaking, a cow from the island of Jersey. The fact, however, that the cattle imported from these several Channel Islands are substantially the samethe islands having a similar appearance and belonging to the same geological formation-renders it of small importance which name is applied.

The fact that but few other than Jerseys are imported to this country from the Channels Islands has naturally encouraged the use of the term Jersey for the Channel Islands cows and their decendants.

Distress After Enting

This result of indigestion will no longer be experienced if Simmous Liver Regulator is taken after each meal. It is such a good digester, and so mild and pleasant in its effect that it is used by many, after a hearty meal, to insure good digesion. The Regulator does not nauseate or irritate the stomach, but corrects acidity, dispels foul gases, allays irritation, and assists the stomach in its digestion.

A SWINDLER does not refer possible purchasers to his victims. The Athlophoros Co. gladly refers sufferers from rheumatism, neuralgia scintica, nervous or sick headache, kidney and liver complaints to those who have been cured of these diseases by Athlophoros, and will furnish names and addresses of many such persons to those desiring them. Athlophoros is the only remedy for these diseases that can stand such a test.

A. L. Thomas, Cuba, N. Y., says: "My son, J. M. Thomas, had been suffering from rheumatism for several months. Athlophoros relieved him of the pain, and reduced the swelling of the joints, and the lameness entirely disappeared. I have seen those having neuralgia cured by taking one dose."

A. Beard, Mt. Kisco, N. Y., says: "I have been troubled for some time with sciatica and rheumatism, brought on by working in a damp place. I could find no remedy in medicine I was using, until I tried a bottle of Athlophoros, which gave me immediate relief." Mrs. Alfred Thurston, 42 North Main Street, Wilkesbarre, Pa., says: "I am not troubled with rheumatism now, since using Athlophoros. I believe should it in any case fail to relieve and permanently cure, the cause would be that the directions were not faithfully followed." J. J. Savitz, Nazareth, Pa., says: "I gave two bottles of Athlophoros to my sister, and she has entirely recovered. She

BORDEN, a corespondent of the Philadelphia Record has this to say I am glad to see people are taking this sensible view of the country question. There is no such place as the country to live in if one live properly in it. The trouble is that when people go to the country they ignore all the laws of hygiene, and disregard all the rules that they have lived by, and the consequence is that they come home in the fall with fevers or malarial diseases, and curse the country as their cause, when the trouble is entirely with themselves. The country is all right; it is only that they don't know how to live there. They sit out at nightfall without anything on their heads or around their shoulders, they walk in the grass when it is wet with dew, they drink iced milk by the goblet full, and they live altogether in the most reckless and desperate manner, and then they blame the country. There is no place that I know of where people can sit out of doors, particularly just ifter sundown, without a hat or a wrap of some kind, and it is impossible for a person to begin drinking milk by the gobletful without bringing on a billious

attack. Milk is about the richest food hat a person can take, and those who are unused to it have to take it by degrees. I was talking to an old country doctor the other day on this very subject, and he said just so long as people would drink milk in quantities, as such people do when they go to the country, just so long would they suffer the consequences. They must take to it by degrees, and when their stomachs shall have become used to milk they can, if they want to, live on it entirely without any other food. I know one man who is about 80 years of age, but who is so young looking and so active on his pins that his friends have got an idea that he is in league with the devil. I asked him one day what was the secret of his health and his youthful appearance. He said milk entirely; he lived on a milk diet, and he felt as young as when he began on the same food

A SOLID FACT,-The prudent man in business never fails to keep his name before the public in some shape. There is a wide diversity of opinion as to the best way to advertise, but as to advertising at all there is, and can be but one opinion, and that is advertising by those who have goods to seil, is not only a good thing, but absolutely necessary to success. There is no use in advertising for a day, a week, a month, or even a year, and then stopping, thinking that all has been done. A good trade may have been built up by advertising liberally for a year, but are your customers going to stick to you when you stop letting them know what you have to sell and inviting them to come and buy. An occasiona! one will, but the great majority of the people who do the buying will go where they are constantly being invited to go. A well regulated, systematic and prudent system of advertising, backed up by the establishment itself making good all it says in the advertisement, is certain to lead to success. It is just as important that care should be given to the business man's advertising as it is that customers should be politely and courteously treated when they enter his establishment. In these days of competition, no business man can afford to neglect giving attention to the advertising of his wares.

Make much of it while yet you have that most precious of all good gifts, a loving mother. Read the unfathomed love of those eyes; the kind anxiety of that tone and look, however slight your pain. In after life you may have friends; but never again will you have the inexpressible love and gentleness lavished upon you which none but a mother bestows. Often do I sigh in the struggle with the hard, uncaring world, for the sweet, deep security I felt when, of and evening, nestling in her bosom, I listenread in her untiring voice, Never can I forget her sweet glances cast upon me when I appeared to be asleep; never her kiss at night. also has its serious drawbacks. Before making the plunge into the city life country girls should ask themselves what is really gained by it. Perhaps in their quiet homes some stray advertisement has reached them, promising to young women high salaries and light work. Hundreds of these advertisements are framed for the purpose of deceiving the unwary. They accomplish their purpose, however and a large number of young girls rush up to the city, dazzled by the generous profusion of promises. A girl on a farm answers one of these advertisements. Life may have been slow at home, but there was good food and in plenty, and there was some one to care for in the old farmhouse. When she goes to the big city, she finds that the "light wark" consists in working all day in a badly lighted work-shop, where scores of other girls and women are employed, at wages hardly high enough to keep body and soul togeth-We know what often comes next. The girl has left home; she is ashamed or unwilling to return, and she must take the conquences, oft times one of the two things-shame or suffering. Mary a girl finds first in the frivolities and next in the iniquity of the streets that excitement by which regret and remorse may be deadened. If she is to strong in principle, too pure and elevated in tone thus to sink down to one of the pitiable women of the street, she may find herself in some cold garret, NOT DEAD YET lonely, overworked, despondent and such a pun, with the sinister than with dexter hand. He says that no traveler has yet come into contact with a purely left-handed race, but there are some tribes which, from immemoriel time, have given preference to the use of the left-handed. It is sometimes the rule among such tribes to account the leftappendix by Dr. Monro, who has made extensive studies of the physiological peculiarities of the criminal class. Dr. Monro asserts that he has found among the condemned criminals twentyfive per cent. who were left-handed while a comparative research among other persons has convinced him that the proportion of the left-handed is not
