

She gave up His Money. A woman's quick wit makes her when she has the courage to act upon it, a valuable aid in an emergency. Some years ago, in the days when "road agents" abounded in Montana, a woman was traveling by coach to join her husband. One day a fellow passenger said to her: "I have $1,000 in my pocketbook, and feel uneasy about the road agents. Would you mind concealing it in your dress, and returning it to me at the end of your journey? If the highwaymen do stop us they are less liable to search you than me. She acceded to his request, hid the money in her dress, and the stage drove on without meeting a road agent. "Throw up your hands!" was heard. The driver promptly pulled up as four men on horseback, with masked faces, appeared in the road and covered him with their pistols. Two of the highwaymen then rode each side of the coach and ordered the passengers to give up their arms, which they did promptly. "Now shut out!" said the robbers. The passengers handed out their pocketbooks even the man who called in the woman's aid gave up a few dollars. He was congratulating himself upon his caution, when he heard the woman say in a quiet way: "I have got $1,000, but I suppose I must give it up." Suiting the action to the word, she handed over the man's roll of greenbacks. The robbers rode away, and then the man gave expression to his feeling by abusing the lady and accusing her of betraying his trust from sheer fright. She smiled mysteriously. "You will see, sit; but I can't explain now. At the end of the journey she asked him to stay all night at her house, and said that her husband would be glad to see him. "Yes, ma'am, I will come to your house," he answered in the tone of an injured man; "it's the least you can do, ma'am, seeing that you have left me without a cent in the world. At the lady's house he was treated as a distinguished guest but neither host nor hostess offered him one word of explanation that night, and he went to bed a sad irritated man. The next morning as he entered the dining room, the host shook hands with him and said: "Here is your $1,000, sir, which my wife ventured to borrow in an emergency. She had $20,000 which she was bringing to me concealed in her dress. She thought by giving up at once the $1,000 entrusted to her by you she would save herself from being searched by the robbers. "Her quick wit saved me from a heavy loss, and I am much obliged to you for the forced loan. Breakfast was a far more cheerful meal to the man than the supper the night before.—Yonah's Companion.

All Sorts of Paragraphs.

The silent man is often worth listening to. Every duty which is hidden to wait, returns with seven others. The consciousness of integrity gives ease and freedom to the mind. The point in question—An interrogation point. Good credit in business is often better than a fat bank account. Every lane has a turn, but many of us get tired before we reach it. He who loves to read and knows how to reflect, has laid by a perpetual feast for his old age. The best characters have a mixture of infirmities, and the worst have some redeeming virtues. It is a noble species of revenge to have the power of severe retaliation and not exercise it. Gladstone was in Parliament at twenty-two, and at twenty-four was Lord of the Treasury. There is a tide in the affairs of men which, if not skillfully dodged at the proper time, drowns them. With this year's appropriation, the nation will have paid fully $1,000,000 in pensions since the civil war. Cornelius Vanderbilt's income from his capital is said to be a million dollars a month, while that of William K. is not very far behind it. "If there is anything I do like," remarked Crimmonback, as he came out of the church, yawning, "it is a finished discourse." The paper doors now coming into use are claimed to possess the advantage over wood, of neither shrinking, swelling, cracking nor warping. Girl violinists are becoming numerous. Girls are always after beaus of one sort or another—at least in leap year. The channel of the Congo can be traced for a hundred miles out to sea as a remarkable submarine valley having a depth of 1432 feet just at the river's mouth. A man recently cut one of his rooster's wings and then gracefully told his neighbor that the bird could not get in his garden on account of the defective flew. The size of Texas—The area of Texas is more than equal the area of all the New England States, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, New Jersey and Delaware combined. Many a man who remains "at the office" till late at night to balance his books, finds considerable difficulty in balancing himself on his way home. If a man received three dollars per day, and saved every cent of it, one thousand years would elapse before he could be master of a million. "You have a brother, then sir?" "Yes, madam." "Strange! I just asked your sister the same question, and she replied that she had two. A religious weekly is discussing "How to bring young men to church." The girls are better qualified to solve that problem than bald-headed editors. During the past ten years no less than six species of North American birds have become extinct, and it is claimed that the English sparrow has been the cause of their disappearance. A maiden fell overboard and her lover leaped over the side of the boat, as she rose to the surface, and said, "give me your hand." "Please ask papa," she replied and sank for the second time. Bobb! Max did the doctor bring me in the day-time or night-time? Mother—in the night-time, Bobby. Bobby—Well, I guess that's the reason I don't remember anything about it; I must have been asleep. A conductor poked his head in the door of a car and called out the station "Sawyer," whereupon a young man upon his wedding tour, who was about to kiss his bride, yelled back: "I don't care if you did sir, she's my wife. Tramp (pitifully) please help a poor sinner (money). Bless me, why, of course. How are you crippled, my poor fellow? Tramp (pocketing the money)—Financially crippled, sir. An interesting work is about to be commenced in northern Egypt. It is proposed to reclaim from the sea an area of land extending over 31,000 acres, and for this purpose works and steam pumps have been already established at Abukir. A particularly vigorous speaker at a woman's rights meeting waving her long arms like the sails of a windmill, asked: "If the women of this country were to rise up in their thousands and march to the pole, should like to know what there is on the earth that would stop them? And in the momentary silence which followed this peroration a still small voice remarked: "A mouse!" Neither or Nither. The pronunciation of the word "neither" is very generally considered to be a matter of taste. Most dictionaries give both pronunciations, but good speakers invariably give the long s sound, although the long i sound is generally supposed to have no more serious objection than being somewhat affected. It is, however, incorrect, as its origin will show. It is well known that the German pronunciation of ei is long, as Ferdinand, the enemy, while the English rule is to pronounce the diphthong as long e in receive. The lone s sound was invariably given in neither until the reign of George I. of England. Being of the House of Hanover, and speaking English indifferently, he gave the German pronunciation to the diphthong. Court parasites thought it proper to ape the King and his pronunciation spread. Few people know this origin, and hence the general mistake. Oh, What a Cough. Will you heed the warning. The signs perhaps of the sure approach of that most terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cents, to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shilo's Cure will Cure your Cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the last year. It relieves Croup and Whooping Cough at once. Mothers do not be without it. For Lane Plaster, Side or Chest, use Shilo's Porous Plaster. Sold by Dr. T. J. Davidson.

Farm, Field and Garden.

There is no subject of more vital importance to the farmer than that of manures. How to supplement the accumulations of home-made manures with least outlay of money and time and greatest benefit to the farm, is as yet an open question with some, though many farmers have accepted commercial fertilizers as an easy solution of the problem. There are not a few cultivators who assert that the commercial manures are stimulants rather than fertilizers, and ask the very pertinent question how a few hundred pounds of these made fertilizers can cause such a large increase as has been gained, for instance with wheat, in any other way than by forcing the soil to part with some elements necessary to plant growth which it was holding in reserve after having given up all it could spare to former crops. These objectors state the case with plausibility and also with some truth, unless the theory of the artificial fertilizers is altered with substantial of a grosser and more material kind, when their continued employment must be a positive advantage. The true theory of successful farming is the rotation and variety of manures as well as rotation of crops, all being useful and necessary in their turn. When this rule is observed lands may not only be made to make remunerative returns every year in grain or grass, but also increase in general productiveness under good cultivation. At the head of all fertilizers stand the product of the barn yard, not only on account of its general distribution, but also for the reason that as it has been wholly derived from the land it contains all the elements necessary to be returned to it. Clover in the north and cow peas in the south offer to each section ready and reliable fertilizers, valuable not only for their chemical properties, but especially for their usefulness in mechanically changing the character of hard and compact soils. Along with these are the numerous kinds of commercial manures, the trustworthy brands of which contain in fair proportions the elements found in those from the stable, with the important exception that they cannot form vegetable mold, which is just as necessary to a well constituted soil as its mineral and chemical elements. The following formula, made by the Mapes company, indicates about the average chemical composition of many of the well known commercial brands, along with the other necessary ingredients. Ammonia, 4 to 5 per cent; phosphoric acid, 10 to 12, and potash, 4 to 5 per cent. The analyses of scientists make it appear that a ton of average barn yard manure contains about 10 pounds nitrogen, 12 pounds potash and five pounds phosphoric acid. It must, however, be understood that these amounts will vary according to the condition of the manure and the food out of which it was made.

Great Chances for Three Years.

I have often taken occasion to remark that the world is waiting for the work of three inventors, great men who have yet gone before, and who will accord honors and rewards for exceeding all ever yet known. The one who will show us how, by the utilization of fuel, directly to produce electric current; the second is one who will teach us to reproduce the beautiful light of the glow-worm, the production of which means the utilization of energy that is now so seriously wasted; the third is one who will show us how to utilize the light while the third is the one who is to give us the first practical ship. The first two of these inventions may be pardoned except we should it prove to be such, when contemplating the enormous quantities which must come of such inventions, we look confidently for the world to an extent besides what the boon conferred by the creation of the steam engine and the telegraph will appear overshadowing. When the inventor comes forward, and more probably not till then, it is very likely we shall see steam superceded rival.

Time For Poultry.

It is perfectly true that all the used in feeding poultry call for more or less percentage of lime, and no other supply is furnished which are laid will generally be closed in a shell that is also composed of lime. It is also true, that the universal presence as well as the general use is to provide lime in some additional form, and that such provision is to furnish ground shells, granulated bone, cracked bone meal, old plaster, sea shells, lime allowed to cool and then gradually stirred into the feed. When cracked oyster shells, ground bone shells, old plaster and air or slaked lime are used in any way to provide vessels and keep them before them at all times. A self-feeding hopper, such as is used by men for feeding their pigs, is a convenient receptacle for lime forms. Bone meal is usually mixed with the soft food, and its consumption in that way assured. We think the mer method, however, except in case of very young chickens, is to use, as it is but little labor to the hopper, and the fowls will eat as liberally with lime, and thus prevent shell-less eggs, and we might truthfully add, get more good ones.

What Causes Headache.

Overstudy. Neglect of the stomach. Want of fresh air in bed-rooms. Nervousness, however induced. Want of abundant skin-extending exercises. Neglect of the ordinary rules that conduce to health. Over-indulgence in food, especially a stimulating character. Weakness or debility of body, however produced. This can only be remedied by proper nutriment. Work or study indoors, carried on an unsuited or cramped position of body. Literary men and women who do most of their work at a standing desk, lying down now and then to rest the back and head, and permit blood to flow. They should work out of doors in the fresh air, and in the winter weather—with their feet resting on a board, not on the earth—and in canvas in bad weather. It is surprising the good this simple advice, if followed, can effect.

Origin of the Sandwich.

Of the millions of travelers who have partaken of the luscious sandwich as they traveled through life and died in the gorgeous lunch room, few probably know where this hungry-appealing viand got its unique name. It was not from the islands in the Pacific Ocean, as some suppose, nor from the sand "wich" is found in some of them. The sandwich is the invention of Lord Sandwich, an English aristocrat, who was such an inveterate gambler that he would not leave the gaming table, and had slices of meat placed between slices of bread, which he devoured during the progress of the game.—Hotel Vaux.
